Married at First Sight Chapter 2109-When Duncan heard what his mother said, he felt that his mother was complaining about Liberty.

He heard Lily reply to his mother: "Auntie, you can't force your relationship. Duncan doesn't like me, and I have nothing to do with him. Auntie, you also said that this is fate. Even if he is with me, there is no guarantee that he will not.

Now that Duncan is facing the reality, he is thinking about it. Auntie, you can't say such things in front of him. He will think you are blaming Liberty. From the beginning to the end, Liberty was in a passive position. She took care of her. I have been with Duncan for a while, and she often encourages Duncan, but she is still the same to Duncan."

Mrs. Lewis sighed again, "Yes, we can all see that Liberty hasn't fallen in love with Duncan yet. It's not that she dislikes Duncan and can't walk anymore. She never thought about remarrying from the beginning to the end. It hurt her too much. I didn't blame Liberty. I knew she was innocent. I just sighed and wouldn't let Duncan know."

Lily comforted Mrs. Lewis: "Auntie, don't worry, Duncan is willing to do rehabilitation. The doctor has said that he insists on doing rehabilitation, and there is a 90% hope that he can return to normal. I heard that Duncan occasionally goes back to the company to deal with official business, the main thing is that he has a good attitude, that's fine."

Mindset is very important.

Just like those cancer patients, two people undergoing surgery at the same time, the one with a better mentality, can live longer.

Mrs. Lewis hummed, "I still have to thank Liberty. Although she didn't accept Duncan's feelings, she always supported and encouraged Duncan, and she will never run away from him. She is Duncan's spiritual pillar. She will insist on doing rehabilitation. Well, I don't think about anything now. As long as Duncan gets better, as long as Liberty is willing to marry him, our family will have no objections. After Duncan's incident, I also think about it that Duncan may have such a fate."

Liberty had not died yet. If they got married in the next few years, Mrs. Lewis would still be able to hug her grandchildren.

Even if they were together, they probably wouldn't think about having kids if it went on for another ten or eight years and Liberty got older.

As a mother, Mrs. Lewis still hoped that her youngest son would have a queen.

Mrs. Lewis liked Sonny, and he was a good kid, but his surname was Brown, and his father was still alive.

Lily comforted Mrs. Lewis again.

When Lily was about to leave, Duncan stopped eavesdropping and asked the bodyguards to push him into the room.

“Duncan, you’re back.”

When Mrs. Lewis saw Duncan coming in, she was quite flustered, worried that her son would hear her chatting with Lily.

Duncan looked gentle, and he responded: “When I went to the hospital, I met Liberty and Sonny. The mother and son were going to visit Hank. Later, Liberty invited me to dinner, and I came back after dinner. “

Duncan: “Ms. Harmon is here, have you eaten yet?”

Mrs. Lewis felt relieved when she saw her son’s gentle expression, as if she heard her chatting with Lily.

Lily responded: “We’ve had dinner. How are you, Mr. Lewis?”

Duncan: “I’m good. I keep doing rehabilitation, but the effect is not obvious. I feel that I have done rehabilitation for a long time, but in real terms, the time is not long. The doctor told me not to worry, take my time.”

Lily said: “Don’t be anxious, there must be a process, as long as you persevere, you will recover. When you recover, I will treat you to dinner.”

Duncan smiled, “Use your mouth to eat. You don’t have to wait for my feet to heal. You should do your business first. When you’re done, remember to treat our family to dinner before you leave Wiltspoon.”

Lily readily agreed: “Okay.

Mr. Lewis, Auntie, I’m leaving first, and I’ll come to see you some other day when I’m free.”

Lily was also very busy now, so she could only visit Mrs. Lewis on weekends. After Duncan’s accident, her mother was worried about Mrs. Lewis, afraid that Mrs. Lewis would not be able to bear it, so she came to visit several times.
