The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 109

It was obvious how he felt about that!

"Mister Duvall, you've lost the bet! You shouldn't be a sore loser. Do you have anything else to say?!" Leon looked right at Michael.

"I..." Michael paled, and his expression sank greatly.

With things as they were, even an idiot could tell that he did not just lose, but Leon wiped the floor with him!

Based on the bet, the loser would have to leave the company. It was not something he could accept.

After all, it was incredibly difficult for him to climb into the higher ranks of the company. In two years, he put in so much effort and suffered so much. There was no way he would willingly leave in such a pathetic manner!

Miss Young, Mister Wolf won the bet this time."

"But the bet was just a show. It shouldn't be taken seriously. Surely we can't have Mister Duvall leave the company over a joke?"

"That's right. Mister Duvall has contributed quite a lot to the company over the years. He's put in a lot of effort. I think we should forget about the bet..."

A few of the higher-ups who were closer to Leon tried to plead for mercy in his stead.

Leon was the one who lost this time, would you have tried to defend him?!" Ariel scoffed as she looked at them with
