The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 491

"Mister Wolf, this is entirely my fault and I should not ask you to risk yourself for my mistakes, but you are the only one who can help my wife. I'm begging you. Have mercy and try." Vincent fell to his knees and pleaded..

For the sake of his wife, the almighty Southern King was down on his knees!

"Mister Poole, please get up. I told you, the likelihood of this working is so slim that you can beg me all you want, but there's still nothing I can do about this." Leon sighed with resignation.

"We don't care how likely it's for you to succeed. All we ask is that you try. Don't worry. If your energy foundation gets damaged, we'll do whatever we can to find the ingredients that will make the pill to fix it, Vincent said sincerely. He understood that Leon did not wish to take the risk and hoped that resolving Leon's concern over his energy foundation would convince Leon to help.

"Um," Leon hesitated.

Feeling his insides turning, he spat blood.

"You scammer! I've asked the Holy Doctor and he told me that the adrenaline injections have negative side effects and have to be used with caution! You gave my wife adrenaline injections under poor judgment, causing her situation to worsen to this state! If something happens to her, I'll make sure you suffer for this!" Vincent glared daggers at Doctor Chase.

If Doctor Chase did not question Leon's skills, Vincent would not have chased Leon out and Gloria would not be in such a critical condition.

"No, you came to the rescue just in time! Just keep transferring your energy and I'm ninety percent sure that I can get Missus Poole to open her eyes!" Relieved, a smile appeared on Leon's face.

Vincent was far more powerful than he was and with Vincent's true energy, it would be easy to repel the cold force that took root within Gloria's body without having to worry about the rebound.

"Really? That's great!"

The Pooles were overjoyed, especially Vincent as Leon said repeatedly that there was no hope at all. The situation took a sharp turn and Leon claimed that there was a ninety percent chance of saving Gloria, so Vincent was over the moon.

Time flew by and with the help of Vincent's true energy, Leon managed to repel all the cold force in Gloria's heart.

The Pooles misunderstood and were not on the same channel as Leon right from the start.

Leon meant that he was going to cure Gloria once and for all, while they thought that he merely helped Gloria in regaining consciousness as Doctor Chase did in the past.

After all,

Gloria was seen by many doctors and no one, including the Holy Doctor, had the means to cure her. It was only normal for the Pooles to assume that it was already a miracle that Gloria woke up at all.

"You don't have to worry, Missus Poole! Your illness has been cured completely and you won't faint out of the blue again!" Leon said as he got up and walked over. After focusing on his internal circulation, he managed to repel all cold forces that infiltrated his body and reached the peak Acquired state at the same

Vincent was especially impressed.

He was slightly appalled by Leon when Leon refused to disclose who taught him martial art and at that point, Vincent gave up on matchmaking Leon and his daughter. However, Leon risked his life to save Gloria and apart from feeling grateful, Vincent started thinking about having Leon as his son-in-law again.

As Fane mentioned before, Snow and Leon looked perfect together.

“Um, I was too excited. Sorry,” Realizing what she was doing, Snow blushed and pulled away, before tugging her hair behind her ear sheepishly, not knowing how easy to read she was.

“Mister Poole, please spare me! I just mean to get Missus Poole to wake up. I didn’t mean to,” Terrified, Doctor Chase fell onto his knees.

He did not think much of the side effects of the adrenaline injections and he wanted to revive Gloria as soon as possible so that Vincent would reward him handsomely. Naturally, he could not possibly confess his true intention at the time, or Vincent would kill him right there and then.

As the Southern King, Vincent would encounter no issue with killing a mere doctor.

“Vincent, that’s enough. Doctor Chase helped me through the past two years. Since he didn’t mean to make a mistake, just spare him,” Gloria said.

“No way! This scammer doesn’t have any sense of morals and almost got you killed. I refuse to let him go!” Vincent gritted out furiously.

After lunch, Vincent sent Leon back to Cynthion Group.

In the president’s office, Cynthia stood from her chair when Leon stepped inside. “Leon, you came just in time. There’s something important that I need to tell you.”

“What is it?” Leon massaged his temple in confusion, feeling slightly light-headed from all the wine that Vincent made him drink at lunch earlier.

“My brother just called me, saying that he has leads on where to find wild Panax that has grown for five hundred years,” Cynthia explained with a smile but was cut off before she could finish.

“Seriously? That’s great!” Overjoyed, Leon immediately sobered.

Leon was merely a man and since he was single, he could not be immune to her charm.

Before he knew it, Cynthia left a mark in his heart and as their relationship progressed, the two realized that they meant more than friends to one another even though they were not officially dating.

So long as Leon agreed, Cynthia would happily become his girlfriend, but he knew that Iris remained to be the love of his life and he could not bring himself to accept Cynthia's feelings.

Despite his reluctance, Cynthia was happy with their progress regardless.

She knew that Leon was still recovering from the breakup with Iris and was in no rush to start a new relationship. She had the time and patience to wait until he forgot about Iris before she could slip in and replace Iris.

A day before the auction, Cynthia drove Leon to Seacove City and the two selected a five-star hotel to stay the night.
