The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 69

"Go on. Keep cutting," Leon urged calmly.

The staff cut a few more times but all that came out of it was gravel inside and nothing else.

"Still nothing?"

"That's unlikely!"

"Is it possible that there's not even any low- to mid-grade jadeite inside this rock, not even pea-greens or flower greens?"

The shock that everyone felt was such that they did not even bother to bemoan. Leon's bad luck anymore!

Low- to mid-grade jadeite was the least that such good-quality raw jade stone would usually produce, but nothing of the sort was seen yet. Under such circumstances, he was better off buying a piece of raw jade stone that was extracted from pea-green jade!

Even if he were to find some clear jadeite inside, Leon will still be making a loss—it was only a matter of how much that loss was!

"Just keep cutting."

Leon's heart sank and the calmness that he initially began to slip away.
