Chapter 941

I'm here to mourn Nelly's grandma and also to see Nelly" Clair tried to squeeze out a few tears, "Nelly's dad passed away early, and her grandma was her only rock. Now that her grandma's also kicked the bucket, I'm worried Nelly is gonna have a hard time."

What Clair was saying was exactly what Tanisha and others were worried about, "We share the same concerns. So we can only try our best not to leave Nelly alone for a short time. We can only spend more time with her and comfort her as much as possible"

Clair went on, "After all, Nelly's only family has passed away. A few comforting words might not do much. I've got an idea now, and I hope you guys can give it some thought, to see if it's feasible?"

Tanisha said, "Spill it."

Clair, "I want to take Nelly back. Have her live with me, in my city, and I will take care of her from now on Upon hearing that Clair wanted to take up the responsibility of a mother, Tanisha was naturally happy, but she couldn't make the decision, "Nelly's an adult now, so it's up to her how she feels about this. We can't make the decision for her

Clair, "Of course I know Nelly's wishes are the most important. I just want you guys to help persuade Nelly. You know, I left Rosenberg when Nelly was just a few months old, and she might hold a grudge against me. She might not be willing to come back to me."

Tanisha was a soft-hearted person, seeing Clair looking so pitiful, she felt sympathy for Clair, "Nelly mentioned you last night. Although she didn't say she missed you, I'm sure she did, but..."

Clair, "What?"

Tanisha continued, "You want to take Nelly back, does your current family agree? Nelly has her own family now. As far as we know, her husband's family treats her very well."

Clair, "My family agrees. The key is Nelly's wishes..."

Tanisha, "Alright, wait here for a while, I'll go ask Nelly in the room."

Clair tried to look into the room, but because there was a corner at the entrance, she couldn't see what was going on in the room, "Can I go in first?"

Tanisha was soft-hearted, but Roy stopped Clair, "Wait a minute, let's ask Nelly first, then decide whether or not to let you in."

Clair smiled at Roy, "You're Roy, aren't you? So many years have passed, and you're still as handsome as ever. If I had met you earlier, maybe things would have been different."

Roy looked at this woman who was smiling at him. This woman was prettier than his wife, in her forties but still had a good figure, even her hands looked smooth, but he still thought his wife was better.

Roy, "You're not even fifty yet, and your eyesight is already this bad?"

Clair didn't understand why he suddenly asked this question, "My eyesight is fine."

Roy said, "If your eyesight is so good, why would you say I haven't changed at all? Last time we met was over twenty years ago, I was young and looked alright. Now not only is my hair almost completely gray, I've also gotten a big belly. Anyone who isn't blind wouldn't say I'm still as handsome as before."

Clair was silent. She didn't expect that when she made a polite remark, Roy would take it seriously and even blame her for having bad eyesight. If it weren't for the fact that she needed his help now, she wouldn't even want to talk to him.

Roy continued, "You left a few months after Nelly was born, and Nelly doesn't even remember what you look like. Now you're back, do you think she will welcome you?"

“No matter what, Nelly is my flesh and blood, my closest child. She should welcome me.” Clair showed a sad expression, “Even though I wasn’t in Rosenberg these years, I’ve been keeping tabs on her and her grandma’s situation.”

Roy scoffed, “If you really cared about her and her grandma’s situation, then why didn’t you come back when Nelly was bullied and driven out of Rosenberg at the age of twenty?”

Chapter 942

Clair felt a little helpless under this blunt attack, “You’re an adult, you should know the world ain’t always sunshine and rainbows”

Even though it wasn’t his business, Roy always treated Cornelia like his own daughter, so he naturally felt the need to step in, “You’re just not taking it seriously. You abandoned her back then, and now you’re back. Who knows what your real intentions are

Clair, “What did I do to piss you off?”

Roy, “Nothing in particular.”

Clair, “Then why do you dislike me?”

Roy. “I don’t dislike you I’m just worried you have bad intentions for Nelly and will hurt her again. She can’t handle any more blows right now?”

No matter what she did, it seemed to draw his criticism. Clair’s inner frustration had reached its peak, but on the surface, she still politely said, “Let’s hear what Nelly has to say”

Tanisha

came to Cornelia’s room just as she was about to head out, pulling her back in to the room, “Nelly...”

Seeing Tanisha's hesitation, Cornelia felt a bit uneasy, "What's up?"

After a pause, Tanisha asked, "If your mom came to mourn your grandma, would you let her in?"

*Hearing this, Cornelia's heart started racing, beating so fast it felt like it was going to jump out of her throat, "She's here to mourn my grandma?

Tanisha nodded, "She's at the door, but we didn't let her in, in case you didn't want to see her."

Swallowing hard, Cornelia tried to keep her cool, "If she's here to mourn my grandma, I have no reason to turn her away!"

Tanisha, "So, you want to see her?"

Cornelia, "Of course."

Her dad and grandma never spoke ill of her mom. Whenever little Cornelia asked about her , they told her that her mom was a good person. So, she'd always had a good impression of her mother.

Tanisha, "There are a lot of people here, you wait in your room, I'll bring her to you."

Cornelia, "Alright."

"I'll go get her now" Tanisha made her way to the door, then turned back, "Nelly, you seem pretty calm, did you know your mom was coming?"

Cornelia just smiled and didn't say a word. She might look calm on the outside , but inside, she was a mess. She was almost 25 now, finally about to meet her biological mother and fill that gap in her heart. How could she not be excited ?

Cornelia went back to her vanity, quickly tidying her hair and clothes. She wanted to make a good impression on her mom.

Chapter 943

Two minutes later, the door was pushed open again. Tanisha was the first to enter, followed by a tall middle-aged woman.

Cornelia looked up and her heart turned ice-cold the moment she saw the newcomer's face. She trembled, asking, "Why are you here?"

Clair ran towards Cornelia with tears in her eyes. "You, you're my Nelly, aren't you? Nelly, I'm your mother. After all these years, I've finally found you"

Tanisha said, "Do you two know each other? Well, you guys chat. I have other things to take care of."

Cornelia replied coldly. "Could you please ask her to leave? I don't want her in my house."

Clair said, "Nelly, I know you hate me because I abandoned you in the past. Please, give me a few minutes to explain."

When Clair found out that Cornelia's husband was Marcus, she immediately bought the quickest plane ticket to Rosenberg. Whether or not Cornelia accepted her as a mother, she was determined to claim Cornelia as her daughter and make sure Marcus became her son-in-law. Once Marcus became her son-in-law, who would dare to look down on her from the Reese family? She never thought that the daughter of the Stewart family could be so capable, quietly marrying Marcus and becoming the esteemed Mrs. Hartley

If she had known the girl held such a position, she would have respected her like a deity, never daring to bully her.

"Get out! Don't claim to be my mother. I could never have a mother like you" Cornelia had imagined her mother countless times growing up. She pictured her as beautiful, gentle, and generous. She nev er thought her mother could be Clair, a woman who made her feel disgusted at first sight!

Tanisha didn't know what the conflict was between the mother and daughter, but seeing Cornelia's attitude, she knew Clair must have done something wrong, "Clair, Cornelia doesn't want to see you, come out with me."

Clair pleaded, "Tanisha, we've known each other for so many years, you should know what kind of person I am. I won't hurt Nelly, I just want a chance to explain. You're a mother too, you should understand how I feel."

Clair used to be a good person, and when Tanisha heard about their divorce, she could hardly believe it, believing maybe there was some misunderstanding between them. She was worried about Cornelia getting hurt again, but also hoped that the misunderstanding could be cleared up and the mother and daughter could recognize each other.

After hesitating for a while, Tanisha decided to give Clair a chance, "Nelly, it's better to clear things up. You guys talk, I'll go out."

This wasn't something she could help with, she only hoped that Cornelia's husband, Jeremy, could. Unfortunately, the three members of the Artis family had left half an hour ago to buy items needed for the grandmother's funeral and hadn't returned yet.

Zack, busy entertaining guests, noticed his mother's pale face and immediately came over, "Mom, why do you look so pale? Did you not get enough sleep last night?"

Chapter 944

"Guess so." Tanisha threw a glance over her shoulder, unsure whether leaving Clair in Cornelia's room was good.

"Why don't you take a break?" Zack suggested, his eyes scanning the room. The house was bustling with two card games in progress and the kitchen busy, but there was no sign of Cornelia. "Where's Nelly?" He asked.

"Nelly's caught up in something." Tanisha thought it best to keep things under wraps, hence didn't disclose the whole truth to Zack, "Just carry on with your stuff, I'll go check on her"

Still feeling uneasy, Tanisha returned to the door to stand guard, just in case anything went south.

In the room.

Clair attempted to reach out for Cornelia's hand but was met with avoidance before she could even touch her. Tears welled up in Clair's eyes and some dropped, "Cornelia, can you spare a few minutes for me to say something?"

Despite Clair's tears, Cornelia remained unmoved, "Go ahead."

Given the chance to speak, Clair was confident she could sway Cornelia

Clair sobbed. "Cornelia, as soon as I heard about your grandma's passing, I rushed back to bid her farewell. I intended to recognize you and take you to Rivoton with me. I admit I made some mistakes before, not knowing you were my daughter. If I had known, I wouldn't have hurt you even if a gun was pointed at my head.

"You might blame me for leaving you and your father. Truth is, I didn't want to. I had severe postpartum depression back then. You know how serious depression can be. There were times I thought of ending both our lives, but thankfully, I didn't.

"I could control myself once or twice, but not every time. I was afraid I'd lose control and do something stupid, so I asked your father for divorce and left Rosenberg alone. I planned to end my life somewhere quiet, not to bother you or your father. But then I met a kind soul who helped me overcome depression. After I got better, I went back to Rosenberg. I wanted to come home. But I saw your father ready to start a new life with another woman. I didn't want to disrupt your lives, so I left quietly, vowing never to return. Your grandma must have told you that my parents died early and I had no siblings. Your father was my only y support. After leaving him, I had to find a job, make a living. Later, I met Grainger and became his wife.”

Clair let out a lot. But Cornelia was still stone-faced, “Are you done?”

Clair said, “Nelly, I had my reasons for leaving you and your dad. Can you believe me?”

Cornelia said, “If you’re done, then please leave! Stay as far away from me as possible! Don’t ever show up in front of me again, and never tell anyone that you’re my mom. I won’t acknowledge it.”

Clair said, “Nelly, you’re my flesh and blood. No matter how you deny our relationship, you can’t change the fact that my blood is running in your veins.”

“So what? Just because I have your blood in my veins, I should acknowledge you as my mom and forgive all your wrongdoings?” Cornelia sneered, “I might be too kind-hearted sometimes, unable to bear seeing others suffer. But for someone like you, I don’t have a shred of sympathy.”

Chapter 945

This was Clair’s recent contact with Marcus, and her best shot at becoming Marcus’s mother-in-law. She certainly wouldn’t let this opportunity slip through her fingers, and she said, “Nelly, if you forgive me, I’ll give you a well-decorated house in Riverton. You won’t have to squeeze in that tiny rental with your two friends anymore”

“What gives you the right to call me Nelly? Don’t ever say my name again. It makes me sick just to hear you say it. And for the record, I’m happy living with my friends, even if we’re in a basement. My grandma doesn’t need you to pay respects either, I’m afraid it will tarnish her gravestone Cornelia stormed to the door, yanking it open, “Get out!”

Unexpectedly, Marcus was standing at the door.

Cornelia froze, her voice dwindled to a whisper, so low that Marcus could barely hear her if he didn't pay close attention, a far cry from her earlier bravado, "When did you get back?"

"Just now." Marcus confirmed that Cornelia was okay, then turned his icy, cold gaze towards Clair.

Clair feigned surprise, "Marc, what are you doing here?"

"Ayden, see the guest out!" Marcus didn't want to exchange an extra word with Clair.

Ayden immediately stepped forward, "Please leave!"

"Cornelia, are you and Marc... Clair tried to say something, but Ayden pulled her out before she could finish

Marcus closed the door and turned around to see Cornelia collapsed on the floor. Luckily, his quick reflexes allowed him to catch her, "Cornelia" Cornelia weakly leaned into his arms. Once the dizziness subsided, she looked up at him, "Do you know why Clair was here?"

Marcus brushed the stray hair away from her forehead, "I know."

Cornelia asked. "She said she's my mother. Do you believe her?"

Marcus answered, "I had it investigated, and she is likely your mother."

Cornelia suddenly became agitated, "She's not! She's not! How could my mother be like her?! A woman who always despises me, accused me of theft, destroyed our studio, and wished I would disappear. How could a person who has done so many bad things to me be my mother!"

Marcus rubbed her back, soothing her, "Okay, if you say she's not, then she's not."

Cornelia continued, "My grandma once told me that my dad loved my mom very much, and my mom was a very kind person. She must've had her reasons for leaving my dad and me. Even after she left, my grandma couldn't bear to say anything bad about her. How could she turn into Clair who only cares about money and not feelings."

Cornelia firmly believed her mother was a kind person, but Marcus knew her grandma probably just wanted to protect the image of her mother in her heart.

But Marcus couldn't say these things out loud, he also wanted to protect the goodness in Cornelia's heart. However, even if Marcus didn't say it, Cornelia knew it deep down. She just didn't want to admit that such a woman was her mother. She chuckled and said, "But that's the reality. Even though I don't want to admit it, that disgusting woman is the one who gave me life."

Marcus, more than Cornelia, understood the pain of having parents he despise, "We can't choose where we come from, we can't sever the blood ties with them. But when we grow up, we can choose the life we want."

Marcus had prepared to console Cornelia, but Cornelia suddenly asked him, "When did you find out she was my mother?"

Chapter 946

Marcus said, "Recently, I noticed that granny acts weird whenever she hears the name Clair. She told me she knew someone by that name. So, she asked for a picture of Clair to see if it was the same person. I got the picture and had someone look into Clair's background. Turns out, she's from Rosenberg, was married once, and has a daughter there"

Cornelia asked, "You knew all this and didn't tell me?"

Marcus replied, "I didn't want you to know you have a mother like that. I hoped you wouldn't ever have to know who your mother is, that you wouldn't have to suffer like I did"

Cornelia gave a bitter smile, "Now we're in the same boat, nobody's looking down on anyone anymore."

Marcus said, "If you want, I can keep Clair away from you, so she won't bother you."

Cornelia responded, "No worries, I actually want to see how shameless she can be"

Marcus asked, "She knew you were her daughter but denied it. I don't understand and why she suddenly came to Rosenberg to recognize you?"

Cornelia replied, "Seems like you, the big boss of the Hartley Group, only care about making money and don't understand the ugly people's mind"

Cornelia continued, "She didn't want to recognize me before because she didn't know my husband was you. To her, I was of no use, and could even be a hindrance to her success, so she wanted to get rid of me. This morning her daughter Natalia video called me. You were in the video, and then Clair came running to Rosenberg. Clearly, she came for you. She wants to recognize you as her son-in-law, not me as her daughter."

Mentioning Natalia, Marcus thought of something, "Cornelia, you might have a sister out there."

The news left Cornelia blank, and it took her a while to recover, "What did you say? Can you repeat that?"

Marcus said, "Ayden overheard Clair talking to someone, she said your father never knew he had another daughter."

Cornelia grabbed Marcus's hand anxiously. "Tell me, where's my sister?"

Marcus said. "I've sent people to look, but the timeline doesn't add up."

Cornelia asked, "Explain."

Marcus said, "Clair left Rosenberg in September 2000. She was pregnant when she left, and your father didn't know. She wouldn't have given birth until seven or eight months later. Natalia was born in January 2002. There's only a year and three months in between, and it's impossible for her to get pregnant twice in that time."

Cornelia asked, "You mean she might have left Rosenberg pregnant with my dad's child, and possibly aborted the baby to marry a rich man?"

Marcus replied, "That's one possibility"

Cornelia asked, "Any other possibilities?"

Marcus said, "We can't rule out the Reese family faking Natalia's birth date."

Cornelia said, "So Natalia could be my dad's daughter, my real sister?"

Chapter 947

Marcus said, I've got someone looking into Natalia's birthday. If the Reese family really is pulling a fast one, we should have proof soon enough."

Cornelia bit her lip excitedly and immediately whipped out her phone to video call Natalia. The call was picked up quickly. She wanted to ask how Natalia was doing, but before she could say a word, a face she didn't like appeared on the screen. Cornelia asked, "Did you guys take Natalia's phone?"

Clair responded with a smile, "Natalia hasn't been in a great mood lately, crying with her phone in her hand I suspected someone might be fooling her, so I took her phone to see who she's been talking to. She's your sister, and you should care about her."

Hearing Clair's voice, Cornelia immediately ended the call. She turned to Marcus, "I suspect Natalia isn't doing well with the Reese family. They might be restricting her freedom Can you help me out?"

Marcus asked, "Hmm, what do you want me to do?"

Cornelia anxiously replied. The Reese family has been wanting to marry Natalia off to you forever, just agree..."

Before she could finish, Marcus cut her off, "Cornelia, you're my wife, I love only you in this lifetime. Stop overthinking things"

Cornelia immediately hugged Marcus, "I don't mean for you to really marry Natalia, I just hope you can use it as an excuse to have your guys pick her up from the Reese family. Say you want her to stay with you for a few days to get to know each other, they probably won't decline, right?"

She felt that as long as they could get Natalia out of the Reese family, all problems would be solved.

"I'll arrange for someone to pick her up right away." Marcus said, looking a bit grim. He felt that in Cornelia's world, her friends and family seemed more important than him, her husband.

Cornelia gratefully said, "Thank you!"

Marcus asked, "What if she's not your full sister?"

Cornelia replied, "Even if she's my half sister, I still hope she can live well."

Marcus comforted her, "I'll have someone take good care of her. Once we've sorted things out here and return to Riverton, you'll be able to see her."

Cornelia didn't say much else, just quietly keeping Marcus' care for her in her heart.

However, not long after, Cornelia received some disturbing news. Before Marcus could call the Reese family to retrieve Natalia, she had already been picked up by Courtney's people and was on a plane to Switzerland. Courtney hadn't been heard from in a while, and her sudden reappearance at this sensitive time to take Natalia away was suspicious.

At that moment, an international call from Switzerland came into Marcus' phone. He glanced at Cornelia then picked up the call, "What's up?"

Courtney's voice was as gentle as ever, "Marcus, I'm your mother. Can't you be a little polite?"

Marcus, "Mhm..."

Courtney said. "You know I'm planning to take Natalia to Switzerland, right?"

Marcus said, "What does it matter to me whether you do or not?"

Courtney said. "I just found out that Clair is your wife's biological mother, which means Natalia could be your wife's real sister. I've been taking care of Natalia like my own daughter, but now she's family. I'm planning to take her to Switzerland. She's already on the plane, thought I should give you guys a heads up."

Marcus didn't respond. He knew this woman would reveal her true intentions sooner or later. Courtney continued, "But, if your wife wants to spend some quality time with her sister, I won't stand in the way"

Marcus chuckled coldly. "Those who have threatened me in the past haven't had the best of fortunes."

After hanging up the phone, he turned to Cornelia, "Courtney's people took Natalia. She's now on a plane to Switzerland. I'll do my best to find her at the airport there."

Cornelia apologized, "I'm sorry! I've caused you trouble again."

Marcus gently ruffled her hair, "Don't be silly, I'm your husband!"

Cornelia nodded, "I know."

*Then, Marcus received a message from Courtney:
[Marc, Switzerland ain't your turf. It won't be easy for you to intercept my people there. We're family after all, so just pay up a cool ten billion, and I'll send her back the way she came.]*

Looking at the ten billion figure, a chill flashed in Marcus's eyes behind his glasses. He replied: [We'll see about that.]

The next day.

Granny Rebecca's funeral went as planned. A lot of people came to pay their respects. After the ceremony, the house quickly emptied out. Cornelia had planned to stay in Rosenberg for a few days to sort through her grandmother's belongings, but she had to return to Riverton early because of Natalia.

Abigail decided to stay in Rosenberg for a few days to wait for her boyfriend to meet her parents, so she couldn't go back to Riverton with them. Zack had no thing pressing to do, and he went back to Riverton with Cornelia and the others to take care of the studio.

After the plane landed smoothly at the airport, the main group went home first, leaving Marcus with Cornelia waiting at the airport for the plane from Switzerland.

Late in the wee hours, after more than ten hours of flight, Natalia arrived at Zurich International Airport in Switzerland, Marcus used a lot of resources to intercept her at the airport and arranged for someone to take her on the earliest flight back to Rosenberg. The flight from Switzerland to Riverton was about thirteen hours, and the plane should be arriving soon.

Seeing Cornelia anxiously fidgeting, Marcus pulled her into his arms and softly comforted, "Their plane should be landing anytime now, don't worry. everything will be fine."

Cornelia knew, but she still couldn't help but worry.

About half an hour later, the plane Natalia was on arrived safely. Cornelia rushed to pick her up. However, she was not prepared to see Natalia in such bad shape, her face was so pale and she had lost a lot of weight.

"Natalia." Cornelia called her name, her nose was stinging as she was holding back tears.

Perhaps hearing Cornelia's voice, Natalia, who was half asleep, managed to reach out and grasp Cornelia's hand, whispering, "Cornelia..."

The murmur of "Cornelia" had Cornelia's heart pounding madly, "Natalia, it's me, don't be scared. You're safe now, and no one can harm you anymore?"

Natalia didn't reply to Cornelia, but subconsciously held onto Cornelia's hand tightly, as if it was her lifeline. Cornelia held Natalia's hand back, and kept calling her name in her ear, hoping to make her feel safe.

Marcus was quietly watching from the side, not interrupting them, even telling the driver to start the car in a hushed voice.

After the car left the airport parking lot, Marcus spoke to Cornelia, "Cornelia, we'll take her home first. Have Dr. Lester check her out."

Cornelia nodded, "I want to do a DNA test for Natalia and my grandmother. If she's part of the Stewart family, her DNA should match my grandmother's."

Marcus said, "Alright, I'll arrange it."

Cornelia paused, then said. "There are many items my grandmother used in the Hartley Mansion, I think we should be able to extract some useful DNA samples."

"Hmm." Marcus gently ruffled Cornelia's hair, "Cornelia, do you have any idea how much I admire you?"

He, the CEO of the Hartley Group, actually admiring her! Cornelia was clearly ecstatic, her eyes shining brightly like two top-grade gems, "What do you admire about me?"

Marcus looked at Cornelia, his eyes full of affection and admiration, "You're smart and calm, always able to pinpoint the key issues no matter the situation."

Cornelia had climbed her way to the position of the CEO's special assistant of the Hartley Group with her own abilities. Her capabilities were indeed not to be overlooked. But having lost her parents at a young age and often being subject to criticism, she wasn't very confident inside. Now that Marcus was praising her, she was happy, but also a bit unsure, "Am I really as good as you say?"

"You're even better than what I said Marcus gently caressed her face, "You're the best person in my eyes."

He had praised her more than once as the best person in his eyes. Having been praised so many times, Cornelia's confidence increased a bit, "So are you"

Marcus asked, "What do you mean by 'so are you?'"

Cornelia said, "In my eyes, you're also the best person, and no one can compare to you."

Marcus chuckled, "Do you really think so? Or are you just trying to flatter me?"

Cornelia said, "Both!"

"You little sneak!" Marcus gently flicked her forehead and continued, "I have a villa that's empty at the moment. I wasn't planning on living there. We can let her stay there."

Cornelia said, "Given Natalia's current situation, it's not advisable for her to be alone. I don't want to bother you anymore. I'll take her to my new house."

Marcus couldn't accept Cornelia distancing herself from him. He emphasized again in a deep voice, "Cornelia, I'm your husband. I should be doing anything for you."

Cornelia responded, "In this world, no one is obliged to do anything for anyone else. You're willing to help me, to be with me, and that's you being kind to me. I can't take your kindness for granted"

Marcus now understood that this girl's stubbornness was not ordinary.

Talking about the new house, Cornelia suddenly thought of something, "How much did you secretly contribute to the decoration of that house of mine?"

Trent was a designer recommended to Cornelia by Marcus under Jeremy's identity. Initially, Cornelia didn't know Jeremy was Marcus, she thought Trent was just an ordinary designer. But a few days ago, she accidentally read an inte review and found out Trent was a well-known interior designer who had won numerous global design awards.

Famous international designers didn't come cheap, but Trent's fees were surprisingly affordable. Cornelia was certain Marcus must have secretly covered some of the costs, which was why her home renovation ended up so satisfactory.

"I didn't put in much Marcus said.

"How much is not much?" Cornelia asked

"Just a few hundred grand" Marcus replied.

"Just a few hundred grand, my foot Cornelia fumed. Well, then you've invested in this house too. Feel free to crash here anytime."

You mean I wasn't part of your plan before?" Marcus asked.

"Not at first Cornelia admitted, "But you were, from the moment I decided to seriously date Jeremy."

This answer seemed to satisfy Marcus, "So, can I live there with you?"

"Sure, if you don't mind the space" She said, remembering he'd also bought a large flat in the same complex.

He'd said he bought the place because his wife liked the area. Turned out, he'd been preparing everything for her from that point. She just didn't know back then that she was the wife he mentioned.

Half an hour later, they arrived at Lakeview Estates.

Marcus had arranged for Natalia to be taken to Cornelia's new home. The second bedroom was decorated for Cornelia's grandma. Cornelia was reluctant to have Natalia stay in her master bedroom but Marcus was also there. If she gave up her room, Marcus would have to share the second room with her, which seemed inappropriate.

After some thought, Cornelia decided to put Natalia in the second room.

Dr. Lester was already there waiting. Upon their arrival, he gave Natalia a full check-up. Afterward, he said, "Ms. Reese is in good health, just drugged with sleeping pills. Once the effects wear off, she should be fine."

"Thank you, Dr. Lester!" Cornelia said.

"I'm just doing what Marc paid me for, no need to thank me." He replied.

"Safe travels then, I need to stay with Natalia." Cornelia said.

"No need to see me out, you're busy." Dr. Lester said as he left the bedroom. He glanced at Marcus in the living room, "Marc, you don't look so great. Do you need me to check you out too?"

"No need." Marcus replied, attributing his rough appearance to two nights without sleep, thinking he just needed to catch some sleep later.

Marcus had pulled all-nighters before, but never looked this worn out. Dr. Lester tried to convince him, "Marc, apart from your sister and grandma, you have Cornelia to take care of Cornelia's grandma just passed away. If something happens to you, what would she do? If not for yourself, consider Cornelia,"

As Dr. Lester was speaking, Cornelia, who had been with Natalia in the room, suddenly rushed out, "Dr. Lester, don't leave just yet, I need another favor."

Her eyes were red-rimmed, as if she was about to burst into tears.
