Chapter 102 Showing Passion To Cold Person

Isaac fixed the courier with a cold glance and glanced at the large bouquet of roses in his arms

Who was that for?

Camila?

Seeing the look on Isaac's face, Camila stretched out her head to see who it was. "Who is it?"

Despite the cold look he got from Isaac, the courier stepped forward for Camila to see him. "I'm looking for Miss Haynes. Please sign here for this bouquet of flowers."

"Who are they from?" Camila asked curiously

"A Mr. Williams?" the courier replied

Camila glanced at Isaac. She could only see one side of his face, but she could tell that he wasn't happy

He must have guessed that it was a gift from Jaylen

She knew that Isaac would only get angrier, but she still asked the courier to bring it in

The man squeezed in from Isaac's side to give the bouquet of ninety- nine red roses to Camila. "Sign here please."

Camila nodded and took the pen and paper to sign

As soon as she gave it back to him, the courier fled out of the room like a lightning bolt. This had to be his most unpleasant delivery yet

After a small moment of silence, Isaac tilted his head slightly and asked,

"Do you like it?"

Camila opened the card, read it and then looked up at him indifferently

"Any woman would like it." Isaac hissed and grabbed the card from her hand roughly

He read the content of the card out loud with a sneer, "I want your heart

My heart is not that big for two people. It only wants you.

Mila, divorce

Isaac as soon as possible and marry me. Miss you, love you. Yours, Jaylen." His words were rather clear. There was no misunderstanding

there

The veins at Isaac's temple began to throb. His eyes were very red at this point. He clenched and unclenched his fists in an effort to suppress his anger and asked, "So, you're ready to divorce me to wed Jaylen?" Actually, Camila hadn't read the card

But Isaac's reaction was enough for her to understand that it was nothing good

When she agreed to Jaylen's suggestion earlier, she knew that it would provoke Isaac

That was what she wanted after all, to irritate him and make him tire of her

"Yes," she answered simply Jaw clenched, Isaac tore the card into pieces. When he looked at Camila and her injured leg though, his murderous look softened. "You can keep dreaming if you want a divorce. It's never going to happen. I've already said I'm going to kill whoever wants to be with you," he spat out and slammed the door behind him as he walked out. 4 He slammed it so hard that the door and windows shook violently

Camila was beginning to regret her decision. He was really mad this time

She couldn't get his angry face out of her mind. Her heart clenched painfully, and she couldn't help but feel a little sorry and pity for him

Did she go too far?

The phone under her pillow suddenly vibrated

She slipped her hand under the pillow and got the phone As soon as she opened it, she saw the video from Rowena

Joe was awake in the video. His eyes seemed to be looking everywhere at the same time. When he was born, his skin was very red. Now, it was normal, and his little face was chubby and tender

He was so small!

So cute!

She brought her hand to her mouth to stop herself from sobbing

She felt a huge lump in her throat

She just gave birth to her baby and she didn't even get the chance to bond with him before she was separated from him. 2

She missed him so much!

All she wanted to do, was hug him and shower him with kisses

Just like that, whatever pity she felt for Isaac disappeared

How could she feel any sympathy towards him when her child needed her?

No-- she had to do everything to go back to her child as soon as possible, even if it meant hurting Isaac

If she wanted him off her back for good, she had to get him to agree to a divorce. She desperately needed to be with her child. «

Suddenly, the door of the ward was pushed open

Camila quickly shut off the phone in panic and slipped it under the quilt

Willie came in and found her looking at the door with an emotion he couldn't quite describe. He was very polite to Camila. He knew that

Isaac cared very much about her

"Mrs. Johnston, the doctor said you can leave now, and Mr. Johnston asked me to take you to the villa."

Willie still remembered how Isaac looked angry when he gave the order just now

"I see," Camila said slowly and looked down

"Glenda, pack up her things," Willie said to Glenda

Glenda nodded and went to pack Camila's things

Soon enough, they were well packed and ready to leave.

Willie pushed a wheelchair over for Camila

With the help of Glenda, she sat on it without too much trouble

Not surprisingly, Willie had come with his men because he was scared that Camila would run away. 3

Seeing them, Glenda realized that something had gone wrong again. She looked at Camila and asked in a low voice, "Mrs. Johnston, did you make your husband angry again?" 2

Camila didn't say anything, but her silence was an answer in itself

"Why?" Glenda sighed. She couldn't understand why Camila wasn't getting along with Isaac right now

As long as she wanted, she would be Mrs. Johnston

The enviable wife of the young master of the Johnston family

So why did she keep challenging Isaac?

No matter how much Glenda thought it through, she just couldn't understand. 3

She really hated to see Camila acting this way

"Well... Because..."

Camila trailed off as Willie threw the bouquet of red roses to the floor and stepped on it until it was ruined. He looked at Camila and said awkwardly, "I was just following orders."

Camila's face remained indifferent

It wasn't as though she really liked roses. So it was fine

"Fine." She nodded at him

Glenda raised an eyebrow and asked, "Was it from the man who came to see you earlier?"

"Yes," replied Camila

Glenda shook her head in disappointment. "You more than anyone else know Mr. Johnston's temper. Why would you accept flowers from another man?"

"I want a divorce." Her answer was so plain and straightforward

Glenda was speechless

Willie too was taken by surprise

"Ungrateful!" He almost snapped out loud. Yes, he found Camila's attitude to be ungrateful. 5

Camila knew how they felt, but she brushed it off with a smile and stayed quiet

As Willie pushed her out of the hospital, they met with Trudy and Marvin who were walking into the hospital arm in arm

Marvin didn't look too well

When Marvin's eyes fell on Camila, he rushed over as though he had been dying to see her. "Mila? Where have you been for the past months? Where is your mother?"

Camila glanced at Trudy who was next to him and said, "Look at the beauty you have at your side. I don't understand why you want to see my mother."

Marvin frowned and snapped, "I know that you and your mother are hiding from me, but hear me well, I won't divorce your mother. If she prefers to hide, she can just keep on... Ahem... "

Marvin began to cough violently before he could finish talking

His lips turned pale

Camila was an experienced doctor. She could tell that he was ill

Despite her desire not to, she felt herself softening towards him. "Did you come to see a doctor? Then you should go in."

Marvin held his chest and fell into another violent fit of coughing. After a long time, he finally asked, "What's wrong with your leg?"

"I fell down," she replied indifferently

"Is it serious?" Marvin asked

"Nope." Camila pursed her lips as though she was bored

"You know you've not been well for some time. We should go and see the doctor instead of wasting time here," Trudy said and tugged on Marvin's arm. "I'm the only one who cares about you in your time of sickness. How can you still care about them?"

"Shut up!" said Marvin, glaring at Trudy

However, Trudy wasn't having it. "Let's be honest here.

The mother and daughter have been hiding from you for months. They obviously don't care about you. Why are you still clinging to them this way? Don't you see their cruel faces? Look at this one who has forgotten about you now that she is the wife of the young master of the Johnston family."

"Let's go, Willie," Camila said. She wasn't in the mood to hear Trudy's insinuating remarks

Marvin wanted to say something more, but Camile got in the car

He sighed and watched as the car went away

Long after the car had gone, he still couldn't pull his gaze away. Trudy pulled him and said, "Let's go! Stop looking at her. They have gone far."

Marvin sighed again and went into the hospital. After consultation, he did a series of tests

Once all the results were out, Trudy gave the results to the doctor

After going through the results, the doctor's face looked rather serious

"Doctor, what's wrong with me?" Marvin asked, not able to wait anymore
