I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2310-“Greetings, Lady Dream!” Greeted the two disciples at the door courteously the moment they saw Nova.

“At ease. There’s something I need to talk to David about,” Nova relayed before walking into the courtyard without waiting for their response.

She made a beeline for David’s room and pushed open the door.

Time was of the essence, and she was in no mood to knock and wait for David’s acknowledgment. She needed to see the man as soon as possible.

After entering the room and passing a few doors, Nova finally arrived at the enclosed space where David was secluded.

Once she entered, Nova was met with the sight of David sitting unmovingly. She immediately exclaimed, “I can’t believe you’re still secluded here, David! The Feather family already sent their men here, and he’s a Divine Rank master! Run before it’s too late, David! I told you to go into seclusion and start breaking through to the Divine Rank long ago but no, you had to dwell and now it’s too late!”

Her exclamation was met with silence as David remained unaffected. He did not seem to realize her arrival at all.

“David! David! David!” Nova raised her voice and shouted but to no avail.

She immediately realized that something was wrong. Even if David was in seclusion, he should still be able to hear her.

Nova approached David and placed her finger under David’s nose to see if he was still breathing. She let out an exhale of relief when she realized that he was still alive.

So why was he still unconscious?

“David! David! David!” Nova shouted again, this time even shaking his body.

Still, David remained ignorant of the outside world.

Nova was at a loss. All she could do was walk in circles around David's body and shout his name repeatedly while gently nudging him.

This was the first time Nova had met someone so deep in seclusion that not even a shout could call him back to reality.

Normally, peace was crucial for people in seclusion. No one wanted to be disturbed and their cultivation was interrupted.

David, contrastingly, seemed oblivious even when Nova shouted in his ear.

Nova did not know what to do about this weird man.

She wondered if this was the reason why David could become so powerful in such a short time.

He was truly an abnormality, but what was she to do about the situation outside, then?

They would be facing dire losses if Blue became impatient.

Nova was frantic, but there was nothing she could do.

When Blue spread out his mind power to search for David, the latter's system detected it immediately.

The Spirit Cage.

David was walking around with Pebbles and Beanie when suddenly, his system's interface popped up.

Right before his eyes were three words, colored red for importance.

“Warning! Warning! Warning!”

“The system has detected a strong burst of mind power appearing around the host's body. For the host's safety, please exit the Spirit Cage immediately and return to the real world.

“Should the host ignore this message, the system will forcefully transport the host back to reality to deal with the situation when the host is in danger.”

David looked at the message. 'A strong burst of mind power appearing around my body?'

Mediocre individuals could not possibly conjure up power enough to be classified as "strong" by the system.

This meant that there was currently someone above the Saint Realm on the Iridescent Continent at this moment.

That was bad.

David did not have time to think about who this person was as he placed Pebbles on the ground and left after relaying a short message.

"Ms. Beanie, I'll be putting Pebbles in your care for now.

Please take care of her for me. Pebbles, there's something important I need to do right now, follow Ms. Beanie and wait for me to come back, alright? Don't run off by yourself."

David rushed to a forest on the outskirts of Wier. After making sure that he was alone, David quickly pulled up the system and selected "exit".

Then, His body vanished from the Spirit Cage. 2
