Chapter 151

A handsome man in a black suit walked down from the second floor. "Haze!"

Renee's eyes widened in surprise.

He had disappeared after letting her go when he didn't reveal her identity as Phoenix in front of Stefan the last time. She thought he'd returned to Aplen.

This left her to assume he must harbor a hidden motive for suddenly appearing in her house and helping her clean.

"Judging from the disappointed look on your face, I guess I'm unwelcome?"

He walked to the middle of the stairs and looked down at Renee. His smile had a sense of wickedness to it. "I've been busy since the afternoon. I'm so tired that I feel like my back is going to break. If anything happens to me, you're the one responsible."

"Ahem!"

Renee shuddered from embarrassment.

She never thought that the intelligent hacker would be this flirtatious. "Stop your gloating and get down here!"

Liam glared at Haze and stated sternly. "There's no way you'll do all these without a price. If it weren't for my sister's wish, I wouldn't have allowed you wouldn't allow you to come anywhere near the Everheart house!"

Haze lifted his eyebrows slightly and mocked Liam. "Seeing as to how you've sacrificed so much for Renee in the past few years, I wonder what's your motive?"

"We're not the same. I'm Boss's underling. She saved my life before!" "Well, I'm a level above you."

Haze lifted his head in pride, revealing his perfect sharp jawline. "Phoenix and I are the Bonnie and Clyde of the hacker world. We are soulmates. Do you understand?"

"Hahaha!"

Liam lost his calm and made a childish throwing-up expression. "Soulmates? What a joke! Do you even have a soul? You're not worthy enough to be Boss' soulmate."

"You don't get to determine if I'm worthy. Phoenix is now single, so all of us get a shot. If you're worthy of her, then so am I." The two men were like dogs and cats who couldn't stand each other, and they began to argue again.

"You're arguing again." Leia rolled her eyes helplessly.

They had been at it since the moment they met this morning, and whenever it got too heated, they would start fighting.

Leia was tired, and she regretted putting them two together.

After all, both men were actually fighting for a woman.

"It doesn't matter if you're the underling or soulmate. To Renee, you're just backup." Leia's words made the two men instantly quieten down.

Haze stuffed his hands into his pocket. He put on the mysterious and wicked look that he always exerted as he said arrogantly, "I admit that I admire Phoenix, but I'm not going to be anyone's backup."

At this time, Liam said indifferently, "It's not called backup, but profound love. People these days do not wish to be so dedicated to love."

His love for Renee has always been passionate and unrestrained.

He was proud of the love he had for her, but if his unconditional love was seen as backup, then so be it. "You're good at manipulating yourself."

Haze grew up in a tough environment. He had never known or believed in love. Yet Liam's bravery and presumptuousness changed his impression.

"You're more manly than the ones who don't dare to confess their love."

Hearing this, Renee frowned. "Who are you talking about? Who doesn't dare to confess their love?"

She wasn't shocked that someone had feelings for her, but since Haze mentioned the person, she knew they weren't ordinary people.

Haze just smiled but did not respond right away. He held his phone in his hands and muttered mysteriously, "I'm reminding all of you to check out the trending section on Twitter. You'll be interested!"

Chapter 152

The three of them looked confused as they opened their phones. Then, Leia began to scream.

"Oh my god! I can't believe this. Are Ren and Stefan trending on Twitter now?"

At the same time, both Renee and Liam stared at their phones as they were shocked by the news. Most of the topics trending were about Stefan and Renee.

"Oh my! It's a video of Mr. Hunt begging his ex-wife, trying to win her back!" "How did he become a simp!"

"If a CEO can become a simp, why can't ordinary guys become one?" "This is Mr. Hunt's first step in his attempt to win back his wife."

Every item she clicked on had a video of Stefan tightly clutching Renee and refusing to let her go. It was sweet but humorous, and it was really an interesting video!

Netizens began a heated discussion and even made funny edits to the video. As a result, the video remained at the top of the trending searches.

"Hahahahahaha!"

After a long time of silence, Liam and Leia eventually burst out laughing. "Boss, is this video real or edited? It's too funny!"

"I can't imagine the cold and noble Stefan would be this desperate. It's a lot of fun to watch this!"

"As amazing as he is, the whole world now knows that he's your biggest simp. I can't compete."

Renee was embarrassed, and she felt that she was being publicly punished. Instantly, she snatched their phones. "Stop watching it. He'll hold on to anyone he sees when he's drunk!"

"But he was calling your name. Could he be regretting letting you go?"

Leia's eyes sparkled with excitement as she realized the tragic couple's chances of rekindling.

"Impossible!"

Renee was firm, explaining sensibly, "He's just trying to exact vengeance since he lost the finger game."

"I would like to urge everyone to pretend you didn't see anything. He's a vindictive guy who would murder you without a blink of an eye!"

Liam wasn't afraid of Stefan at all. He laughed, "How can I pretend I didn't see it when it's trending all over Twitter? Boss, why are you scared? He's the shameless one here, and he should be ashamed. You, on the other hand, look so cool when you walk away!"

At the mention of this, Liam wanted to watch the video again, but he realized that the app wasn't working anymore as he couldn't click on it.

Not only that, but any mention of the video had also been removed from the internet.

"It's no surprise he's the CEO of H Group. He managed to take the video down so quickly!"

Haze looked arrogant, saying, "But I don't mind posting the video and letting the whole world laugh at him again whenever I feel like it."

Hearing this, Renee turned and gazed sharply at him. "Where did you get the video?"

"I stole it from their company's website."

"Although the video was only released for 0.03 seconds, and regular people can't download it so quickly, I could," he stated arrogantly. "It's his misfortune that a genius like me can download it."

"Damn! No wonder you're a genius!"

Leia was in awe of Haze and expressed his adoration. "Before this, you approached me and said you wanted to be friends with us with the condition that you pull a prank on Stefan. I wasn't expecting you to really accomplish it... Congratulations, you are now a member of our Anti-Stefan Club!"

Although Liam didn't like Haze that much, he welcomed anyone who disliked Stefan. "You're quite the capable one. Welcome to the Anti-Stefan Club."

He reached out his hand towards Haze.

They all fist-bumped each other and looked to set to fight Stefan.. This dumbfounded Renee. "What's an Anti-Stefan Club?"

"Fight Stefan and protect Renee. We will fight till our last breath!"

Leia shouted the slogan with enthusiasm while Liam and Haze joined her. "Fight till our last breath!"

"Fight till our last breath!"

They seemed to be goofing around, but Renee felt a sense of warmth in her heart.

Although her family had left her, she wasn't alone at all. They were now her family.

Renee vowed that she would restore the Everheart family to its former glory!

Chapter 153

That night, Liam and the rest left the Everheart residence reluctantly under Renee's request.

Before leaving, Leia held on to Renee's hand and asked worriedly, "Are you sure you're okay living alone in the huge mansion? I heard that there are ghosts at night. Aren't you scared?"

"Of course, I'm not. This is my house. Even if there are ghosts around, they're my family, so they won't hurt me," Renee said with a smile.

They only left after getting her affirmation.

After all, ghosts were not as terrifying as the terrible people Renee had previously encountered!

After the three of them left, the temporarily vibrant home became silent, with the property's moist odor permeating the surroundings as though confirming nobody had been here for years.

However, Renee was unbothered by it.

She started cleaning the dishes while humming a tune to herself. She then filled the vase with water and placed the sunflowers inside before setting them next to her bed.

Although the mansion looked decayed from the outside, everything was still the same as it was on the inside four years ago. She hoped she was dreaming, and when she awoke, her grandpa, father, and mother still existed.

They would be sitting by her bed and gently woke her up by saying, "Princess Ren, time to wake up." It was getting real late.

Renee lay on her little bed, once her favorite, reminiscing about the past as her mind drifted off.

In a daze, she heard weird noises coming from the master bedroom that once belonged to her parents.

It sounded like a woman's voice. She seemed to be crying and laughing. Her voice sounded scary in the quiet night. At first, she didn't really care as she thought she was either dreaming or hallucinating because of the tiredness.

But slowly, the voice got louder, and she heard it through the closed door.

"Boohoo. I died so tragically. Who can save me? I'm in so much pain..."

"Hahahaha. I'm so bored. Does anyone want to play? It's cold down here." The voice didn't belong to her mother.

Renee was a realist, yet the hair on her neck stood up. Beads of cold sweat sprouted on her forehead. She instantly covered herself with the blanket and trembled in fear.

"Dear God, I never did anything bad in life. Don't let anything come at me!"

After a while, the voice stopped.

Renee breathed out a sigh of relief. She was sweating so profusely that her shirt was almost drenched.

The babies in her tummy seemed to be affected as well as she felt a slight pain in her stomach.

She quickly touched her belly and comforted them. "My baby, don't be scared. No matter what happens, I'll be here to protect you. I'm tough, and I won't let anything hurt you."

Only then did the pain subside.

"What a coward I am!" she couldn't help but scold herself for being scared.

She still believed that humans were scarier than ghosts.

With the thought in mind, she boldly came out from the quilt. Immediately, she let out a loud scream and almost peed her pants! "Ghost!"

Under the moonlight, she saw a white shadow hovering in front of her window. The sight in front of her was more terrifying than a horror film.

"God help me..."

She instantly shut her eyes, and with trembling teeth, she began to pray. The rumors were true! There were indeed ghosts in the house!

Although it was her house, she couldn't live in an environment like this!

Renee jumped down from the bed and was about to leave when a white shadow emerged in front of her. It inspected Renee with a pair of eyes before it spoke....

Chapter 154

“Miss Ren, is that you?”

As it got closer to Renee, the gruff voice became a little more excited.

Renee was scared to death. She waved her hands around and shouted, “Go away! Don’t make me summon a priest to exorcise you!”

“Don’t be scared. Miss Ren, it’s me. Your favorite, Margaret.”

The skinny ‘ghost’ pulled Renee’s wrist with one hand and pushed away the hair with the other to reveal her pale face.

“Margaret?”

Renee instantly quieted down and carefully opened her eyes.

After taking a good look at the ‘ghost’, she couldn’t believe her own eyes.

“Margaret, how? Didn’t you

Margaret was the Everheart residence’s housekeeper and Renee’s nanny.

Renee was closer to Margaret than she was to her mother on some levels.

Ever since the Everheart family went bankrupt, and Renee’s parents ended their life, Margaret had been guarding the house. In the end, Margaret was rumored to be beaten to death and buried.

That was what Renee heard after marrying into the Hunt family.

By the time she got back to the Everheart residence, it was too late. She went to the graveyard but couldn’t find Margaret’s body.

After she went home, she got sick and was in a coma for more than half a month. She seemed to be possessed, blurting out random things from time to time.

It was then that Francine decided that she was bad luck.

Renee had vowed that one day she would seek revenge for Margaret.

Coincidentally she was looking for the few men who murdered her!

“Could it be that Margaret knew about it and came to see me?’ she thought to herself. “Miss Ren, don’t be afraid. I’m not a ghost. Touch me. I’m warm.”

Margaret was worried that she might have scared Renee, so she instantly put Renee’s hand over her forehead. Her grin remained as warm as before.

Renee touched her forehead carefully and found that Margaret was indeed warm!

“You’re alive! This is amazing!”

Renee was so happy and excited that she cried tears of joy.

The joy of suddenly having a family again was overwhelming.

“Miss Ren, you still like to cry like when you were small. Are you hungry? I’ll make you some food.”

Margaret’s sole responsibility was to look after the Everheart residence and Renee, and it gave her meaning and a sense of purpose.

She had been waiting for this day for four years!

“No, I’m not hungry. I’m not in the mood to eat. I have so many questions. I need your explanation. Otherwise, I won’t sleep!”

Renee switched on the light and pulled Margaret to sit down on the sofa. She wanted to know what happened after she left the Everheart residence.

“Okay, I’ll tell you all about it.”

Margaret gently held Renee’s hand and wiped her tears as she began to speak.

“After Mr. and Mrs. Everheart passed away, Old Mr. Everheart left too. Meanwhile, you married into the Hunt family. The Everheart residence became empty, and many people had their eyes on it. They made away with everything they could. They’d even move the floor if they could.”

“I fought and guarded this place for you, but I got hurt. Oftentimes, before my wound could be cured, new ones would appear. The last time I met a couple of vicious ones who beat me till I passed out. They dragged me to the graveyard and buried me.”

Margaret’s words shocked Renee. She clenched her fists lightly in anger. “Margaret, you’ve suffered so much. Don’t worry. I will avenge you. I will find every single person who hurt you!”

“Miss Ren, don’t be angry. All my suffering is worth it, now that I see you.”

The two women couldn’t help but hug each other and cry. Through the shower of tears, they released all the suffering they had endured over the past four years.

“How did you escape?” Renee wiped her tears away and asked curiously.

“I was fortunate enough to meet a kind–hearted person. He dug me out from the ground, and I survived.”

As Margaret thought about the last, her eyes were filled with fear and thankfulness.

“The identity of the person who saved me is very mysterious. He said that a mysterious big shot instructed him, and he requested that I disappear from Beach City.”

“Mysterious big shot?”

Renee frowned.

After all in such a critical situation, the whole world would be eager to destroy them. She wondered who would be kind enough to help them at such a time.

“I’m not sure either, but I want to repay them for saving my life!”

Margaret added, “Could it be Mr. Hunt? Only the Hunts would dare to help the Everhearts at that point. You’re his wife, and he knows that I’m your nanny. He didn’t want you to be sad, so he helped me.”

“Impossible!”

Renee said confidently. “He doesn’t have any feelings for me. He went abroad after our wedding. When I was in a coma for half a month, not once did he ask or care about me. He wouldn’t save you.”

Before this, she loved him with all her heart and didn’t feel his indifference hard to accept.

But now, as she recalled about it, she felt that she’d been too petty and that it wasn’t worth it after all.

Margaret looked at Renee and felt sorry for the girl. “Miss Ren, I didn’t know that you had such a terrible experience in the Hunt family. Mr. Hunt treated you with malice. There’s no point in a marriage if there’s no love. It’s good that you divorced him.”

When Margaret heard about the divorce between Renee and Stefan, she was worried, but now it seemed that the divorce was a freedom for Renee.

“Yes. I think it’s good that we divorce. I want to thank him for making me realize that and regain my freedom!”

Renee didn’t want to talk about Stefan anymore, so she continued asking Margaret. “Margaret, how did you live alone these few years? Why didn’t you contact me?”

"After I was saved, I did as my savior said and went away. I didn't want to put you in trouble, so I didn't contact you. But I really couldn't leave the Everheart residence behind, so I sneaked back and hid in the basement, pretending to be a ghost to scare the ill-intended.

"This trick turned out well, because, in the last few years, nobody dared to come near the Everheart residence. Even the neighbors moved out."

At the mention of his, Margaret kneeled down on the floor. "Mr. and Mrs. Hunt and Old Mr. Hunt, do you see this? I did it. I managed to guard the Everheart residence until the return of its rightful owner!"

Margaret's loyalty to their family touched Renee's heart. Tears pooled around her eyes as she said, "Margaret, thank you. If it weren't for you, the Everheart family would be no more."

"No. I'm useless. I couldn't stop Mr. and Mrs. Hunt from..."

Guilt was written all over her face, and she didn't dare to think of the past.

She was there to witness it happen, and it was brutal.

Suddenly, she thought of something and looked at Renee. "Oh, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt left a legacy document and asked me to give it to you."
