

Read I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2645

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2645-Clang, clang, clang!!!

The bright force and the arrows clashed.

A thunderous sound emanated from it.

It managed to stop the enemy's attack temporarily.

The others began to do the same.

However, the force from their blades and swords was much smaller than Captain Himmel's.

Dozens of forces from their blades and swords kept clashing with the arrows that kept coming at them.

Ordinary arrows were no match for these forces.

However, it was a different situation when it came to the Soul Fracturing Arrows.

All of a sudden, a Soul Fracturing Arrow pierced through a guard's sword force and punctured his chest.

Squelch!!!

It was the sound of the arrow penetrating his flesh.

"Ah!!!"

The immense force of the Soul Fracturing Arrow hitting the man pushed him downwards as he fell.

Boom!!!

The man hit the ground, creating a huge crater.

Not only was the guard hit by the arrow, but his body was torn apart as well.

This was the power of the Soul Fracturing Arrow.

Compared to an ordinary arrow, its power was dozens of times stronger.

One guard's death did not seem to affect the others.

Everyone was putting up a solid defense in their respective areas. They did not allow even one arrow to break through their defense.

Two more Soul Fracturing Arrows mixed among the ordinary arrows shot toward them once more.

Another guard was shot to the ground. This time, no trace of his body was left.

One guard was lucky enough to avoid the Soul Fracturing Arrow that hit the guard beside him. However, he was spooked by the close call and his forehead was covered in cold sweat.

He had almost died.

It was so close.

That was when a Soul Fracturing Arrow appeared in front of Captain Himmel. It was about to hit him.

However, he was the captain of these guards and had a lot of experience in battle.

He was not one to be trifled with.

Captain Himmel was prepared for the Soul Fracturing Arrow.

He swung his sword at it.

Ding!!!

A sharp sound rang out as his blade collided with the arrow.

Captain Himmel felt the tremendous force from his blade, causing his arms to numb, and he struggled to maintain his grip on his weapon.

It was lucky that he was able to stop any further damage from the Soul Fracturing Arrow despite almost dropping his blade.

That swing of his blade was almost unable to stop the Soul Fracturing Arrow's attack.

The battle continued.

It was not long before five of the guards died.

All were hit by the Soul Fracturing Arrow and did not stand a chance at surviving.

A guard was shot in the left arm.

His entire arm was rendered useless, but at least he managed to keep his life, which was considered a blessing.

Time passed, and the arrows grew scarcer.

It was clear that the guards who had charged toward the enemy had reached the source of the arrows, disrupting the enemy's ability to continue the attack.

However, everyone remained on high alert, anticipating any further threats.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2646-No one dared to let down their guard because there were still more Soul Fracturing Arrows.

However, because there were fewer arrows now, everyone was able to spot the Soul Fracturing Arrows easily, giving them time to prepare for it.

This helped lower the threat of the Soul Fracturing Arrows.

It was then that they heard the sounds of killing and screams coming from the forest around them.

"Focus, everyone, and try to stall for time. We've located where the enemy is. Just hang on for a little longer and we'll be able to garner victory in this battle. A life of riches is waiting for us. Freedom, money, women, mansions. We'll have it all." Captain Himmel encouraged everyone in a loud voice.

They had just been through a battle.

Everyone had exhausted quite a lot of energy.

He had to motivate his people.

They could not let down their guard when victory was near.

There were three luxury carriages to protect in the middle. The first and last carriages were occupied by maids in charge of their employer's daily life.

The carriage in the middle contained the people Captain

Himmel had to protect.

Inside the carriage.

A beautiful middle-aged woman was hugging a young boy of about ten tightly in her arms.

She was the madam Captain Himmel had been referring to.

"Are we going to die, Aunt Leticia?" The young boy asked.

"What nonsense is this?! You're not going to die, Zion! You're meant to do great things. The place we're heading to is where you'll be destined to do good. We will be safe once we're there. No one will dare ambush us like this again," Aunt Leticia smiled as she consoled him.

However, there was bitterness in her smile.

They were considered safe for now.

However, she had no idea if they were able to reach their destination safely.

When they had started their journey, there were hundreds of people in their convoy, but now, only dozens were left.

There was still some distance to go before they reached the location.

Fate would decide if they would arrive in one piece.

Aunt Leticia looked at the little boy in her arms and got determined.

This was Zion's destiny.

All of these were just heaven's little test for them.

Zion would be able to pass the test and later make a big name for himself.

“Why do so many people want us dead, Aunt Leticia?” The little boy asked again.

‘That’s because you’re meant for big things. Anyone destined for great things will be tested by heaven. If you pass the test, you’ll end up at the top and do great things. These people were sent here by heaven to test you,” Aunt Leticia explained.

“Are they bad people?”

“Not exactly. They’re just serving another master. There is no such thing as good or bad. History is written by the victor. If we die here today, history may record you as a dictator and a rich bully who tormented men and women, and you’ll be hated by the world.”

“I’m not that kind of person! I’m a good person! I will never do something like that,” the little boy immediately objected.

“I know you’re not like that, which is why we must hang on, no matter what. Once we reach our destination, the future will be decided by us.”

“Alright! Don’t worry, Aunt Leticia. I’ll pass this test. I will be the master of the future,” the little boy said with determination in his eyes.

David would have been surprised to hear those words.

This boy was only about ten but his words contained the power to convince others and harmonize with the Heavens of this planet.

Of course, this kind of power was nothing to David.

Every living planet had its own Heaven’s Consciousness, and so did Planet Brechen.

However, a borderline level 4 civilization living planet could easily be destroyed by someone like David, who was almost a Heavenly Overlord.

He could even destroy a planet’s Heaven’s Consciousness.

‘This is the right attitude, Zion. If we get to our destination in one piece, those guards out there will be considered our saviors. It doesn’t matter what reason they have to protect you, you still have to remember what they did and never forget it. I’ve already let everyone know that fortune will be given to three generations of their family. You will need to be the one to execute that promise,” Aunt Leticia said seriously.

“Don’t worry, Aunt Leticia! I will do what you say and I’ll never go against anyone who has helped us,” the little boy replied sincerely.

However, he also made himself another silent promise.

He would never allow anyone who wanted to hurt them to get away with it.