

Chapter 634 Ms. Red

Upon hearing this, Mr. Saber, who had just regained his footing, was overcome with dread.

He realized he'd crossed a line with some dangerous people.

In the delta region, it was common knowledge that the Dark Night Organization held a reputation akin to that of the Black Spider. Even though their influence was somewhat diminished in the delta region, they were not a group Mr. Saber could afford to antagonize.

Swallowing hard, Mr. Saber said nervously, "So you're from Dark Night Organization. This has been a misunderstanding. I was completely oblivious to who you were. It's all my fault. Tonight's on the house, and I'll even bring in more ladies for you. Please let this slide."

Liam wasn't here to fool around with women, so he was unmoved by Mr. Saber's apology.

Liam wasn't here to fool around with women, so he was unmoved by Mr. Saber's apology.

His true purpose for causing a commotion was to locate the Black Spider. Mr. Saber was merely a minor player in this game, much like the female manager of the establishment.

Liam retorted icily, "Let this slide? Do you have any idea what the Dark Night Organization represents? Are you the one in charge here?"

Caught off guard by Liam's questioning, Mr. Saber hesitated before responding, "How could I possibly make that call? Ms. Red manages the club. She owns the place. I'm just on the security team."

"Then bring your boss out," Liam commanded.

At that, Mr. Saber felt a sense of impending doom wash over him.

It was an open secret in the delta region that the Flower Club had the backing of the Black Spider, which made guests generally behave. This was the first time he'd encountered such a challenging individual.

Realizing he was out of his depth, Mr. Saber was about to call for backup when the door suddenly swung open.

A red gown caught everyone's attention. Club staff quickly paid their respects, declaring, "Ms. Red!"

Had Aaron been present, he'd have realized she was the same woman who always accompanied Black Fiend. Sadly, he had already passed away.

Ms. Red hadn't arrived due to a tip-off. She had merely been picking someone up downstairs and had overheard the commotion in the private room. Intrigued, she decided to investigate.

Upon seeing her, Mr. Saber visibly relaxed.

Just like he mentioned, Ms. Red ran the Flower Club. Her fame extended throughout the delta region. While her actual name was a secret to most, her constant choice of red attire led people to call her Ms. Red.

Nervously, Mr. Saber moved to stand behind her, announcing, "Ms. Red, these gentlemen belong to the Dark Night Organization."

Ms. Red's brow furrowed as her gaze settled on Liam and Yusuf.

Instead of expressing anger, she offered a gracious smile. "Let me cover tonight's tab, and we can consider the matter settled. We could even offer you a standing 50% discount for future visits. How does that sound?"

Though apologetic, Ms. Red maintained her composure, extending her hand in a gesture of truce toward Liam and Yusuf.

Liam's lips twisted into a subtle smirk as he brushed aside her outstretched palm.

"You're not worthy of our friendship. But since you're here, let's discuss a potential partnership somewhere more private."

Ms. Red was taken aback. It was the first time someone had so openly disrespected her, not just within the walls of the Flower Club, but in the whole delta region.

Coldly, Ms. Red responded, "Very well, follow me."
