

Chapter 724 A Real Wedding

Everyone stood frozen after Liam left.

Sergio glared at Demetrius and gnashed his teeth.

"You..."

He trailed off, and after not finding the right words, he decided not to let his anger lead him. He sighed in his heart, thinking how heartless his first son was.

"Just leave! All of you, leave!" Sergio ordered impatiently, waving the others away.

After everyone left, Theo walked out of the screen slowly and said to Sergio, "Mr. Hoffman, I have something to say."

Sergio held his head in his hand and groaned inwardly.

"Of course you do. Shoot, I'm listening."

Theo nodded and said seriously, "Mr. Hoffman, I think it might be a good idea for your grandson not to be the heir to the clan for the time being. I just received news that the Sandoval family had begun making some small moves."

Sergio frowned, his eyebrows coming together in thought. Theo might be right. As the heir to the Hoffman family, everyone's attention would be on

Everyone stood frozen after Liam left.

Sergio glared at Demetrius and gnashed his teeth.
"You..."

He trailed off, and after not finding the right words, he decided not to let his anger lead him. He sighed in his heart, thinking how heartless his first son was.

"Just leave! All of you, leave!" Sergio ordered impatiently, waving the others away.

After everyone left, Theo walked out of the screen slowly and said to Sergio, "Mr. Hoffman, I have something to say."

Sergio held his head in his hand and groaned inwardly.
"Of course you do. Shoot, I'm listening."

Theo nodded and said seriously, "Mr. Hoffman, I think it might be a good idea for your grandson not to be the heir to the clan for the time being. I just received news that the Sandoval family had begun making some small moves."

Sergio frowned, his eyebrows coming together in thought. Theo might be right. As the heir to the Hoffman family, everyone's attention would be on Liam. And right now, it would be really easy for him to get in trouble.

At Liam's residence in the Hoffman family's mansion. Liam pushed the door open and strode in angrily.

What happened in the main hall was still very fresh in his mind.

With a worried expression on her face, Julie said to Liam, "I know what you're trying to do, Liam, but you can't give up your identity as the heir just for me. Even if you don't marry me, I will always be with you."

Liam's anger paled at her words. He was moved at how considerate she was. He pulled Julie to him and hugged her tightly, saying over her shoulder, "That is not even an option, so don't let it get to you. I must marry you! We will face whatever difficulty comes our way together, okay?"

Julie nodded, the rims of her eyes red from emotion. They hugged each other tightly, each person mentally promising to stay until the end.

A week later.

Since Liam refused to compromise and stood his ground, the wedding was held as scheduled.

As they wanted, the wedding was held with no extra person invited that wasn't family and friend.

The only difference was that Liam wasn't going to marry Julie as the heir like he was supposed to.

There was red silk covering the whole mansion. The wedding was not particularly grand. It was simple and elegant, but the arrangements were quite exquisite.

Colourful lights hung on every treetop of the mansion, and the environment was beautified with flowers.

Julie was in a white wedding dress, and even with the scars on her face, one could still see the beauty that she once had.

They had invited Jaxtyn, Fiona and other friends and subordinates of the couple. The female guests were around Julie, talking and laughing, while the male guests were vying with each other in drinking. Everyone was clearly very happy. The joy was evident on their faces.

The wedding wasn't as grand as it should have been, but Liam and Julie didn't care. They were satisfied as long as their family and friends were present to witness the wedding.

A lot of Hoffman family members showed up too.

"Congratulations, Liam. I've watched you grow up and now you're getting married."

"Liam, I wish you a happy marriage."

"Julie, watch where you throw the bouquet, okay? You should throw it to me."

Everyone happily congratulated Liam and Julie, the new couple. They took their seats and waited for Sergio to come out to preside over the wedding.

They drank to kill the time. But as time went, they

Chapter 724 A Real Wedding

 +90 Points at most drank many glasses of drinks and Sergio still hadn't shown up.

 I want no ads >