

Chapter 728 Bomb

As Liam and his group walked towards the exit, Rennes looked at Liam with an evil smile and said, "Don't be in such a hurry to leave. I have a gift for you."

Then, he took out a remote control and pressed the lone button on it.

Boom!

Annie exploded, and Jaxtyn who was the closest to her was thrown far away by the explosion, falling hard on the floor a few meters away and passing out instantly.

All Liam could hear was a buzzing sound in his ears as he tried his best to protect Julie.

Due to the explosion, some dangerous pieces of steel pierced into Liam's legs, blood instantly gushing out from them.

When the loud buzzing sound in his ears finally stopped, Liam looked at the puddle that was once Annie. All that was left in her place was a pile of blood mist, iron pieces and some flesh.

It turned out that Rennes hadn't been bluffing on the Sea God Island.

He had indeed placed a bomb in Annie's body. The toy Liam had removed had only been a distraction.

Once the Duncan family took away Annie, she was doomed to die.

Liam's mind went completely blank. He couldn't think anymore. He seemed to be watching what was happening from out of his body. He couldn't believe it. That couldn't be the lively Annie he once knew.

Everything seemed like it was getting better these days, but they had just been living in a lie.

Julie struggled to crawl over, her eyes filled with tears. She suddenly burst out crying without holding back.

In that instant, Liam's anger blinded him. When he looked up at Rennes again, he had only one objective in mind, and it was to kill him.

"Ah!!" With a horrifying roar, Liam stood up and lunged towards Rennes.

However, Rennes just looked at him without batting an eye.

Blowing Annie up had always been his plan since they were in Sea God Island. If he wanted to hide the bomb in her body, the volume of the bomb had to be really small, but the power of such a small bomb would be limited.

Originally, Rennes' plan was to kill Liam. Liam was supposed to be beside Annie when the bomb exploded, but she was following Jaxtyn instead, and now, Liam was still here.

Rennes detonated the bomb now because he wanted Liam to lose control and make a stupid move.

Rennes now had all the cards in his hand. He just wanted Liam to make a move so he could finish him off and wipe out this group of loyal people on the spot. If he could do that, that would be one less problem off his plate.

However, Fiona and Aikin who were standing beside Liam held him back before he could get very far and do something he would regret.

Fiona's eyes were bloodshot. "Calm down, Liam. This is exactly what this bastard wants. To get you angry. You can't fall into his trap!"

Aikin added, "If we do this now, we would never be able to avenge Annie and all the people who have been sacrificed."

Of course, they all wished they could kill Rennes right now, but it wasn't possible. They were at a great disadvantage. They just needed to get out of here safely first.

Riel also stepped forward and grabbed Liam's arm. "Jaxtyn needs immediate treatment if we don't want to lose him. And if we continue fighting, something might also happen to Julie. Let's go back. We will have ample time to prepare before coming back and killing this beast."

Finally, Liam slowly came back to himself and listened to them.

After a long time, Liam nodded stiffly. He didn't think his hatred for anyone had ever run this deep. He would never let it go until he quenched the fury blazing inside of him.

Even if it meant death, he would avenge Annie.

Slowly, his people pulled Liam back and all left the mansion.

The once joyful wedding hall now stung with the scent of blood and became a venue for the Duncan family and traitors of the Hoffman family to discuss.
