

The Day I Kissed An Older Man by Cher the Cherished

Chapter 994

Anya's pupils dilated. 'Why would Lucas risk his life to protect Corinne? Something's not right!'

Anya's prolonged silence prompted Rosie to say, "Why aren't you saying anything, Anya? You need to help me! If Jeremy takes it up with me, my family will be done for!"

Anya snapped back to her senses. "It's not that I don't want to help you, Rosie. I just can't help you right now."

Rosie was puzzled. "What do you mean, you can't help me? Aren't you supposed to be Jeremy's savior? Jeremy will always listen to you if you say something to him!"

Anya sighed and sobbed aggrievedly. "A lot of things have happened recently that you don't know about. Jeremy doesn't think that I'm his savior anymore, and he won't ever listen to me anymore."

"What?" Rosie exclaimed in shock. "How did that happen? We all know that you risked your life to save Jeremy and became infertile because of that. Is Jeremy going to just abandon you like that? He's not supposed to be that kind of person!"

Anya sobbed. "It's all Corinne's fault. She tricked Jeremy into believing she saved him and that I was lying to him all this while. Jeremy ate it all up and ignored me since then. Now, my mother and I have been kicked out of the house by my grandfather. We were sent to live in the countryside! I've lost everything thanks to Corinne! As much as I want to help you, Rosie, there's nothing much I can do. I'm sorry..." She continued sobbing at the end of her sentence.

Rosie was shocked and angry. "Corinne made Jeremy believe she was his savior?! Where did Corinne learn all these tricks? How was she even able to convince your family to kick you out when everyone doted on you since you were young?"

Anya replied in a helpless, sarcastic tone, "She's capable of anything if she can make Lucas risk his life for her." She manipulated Rosie with the latter's affection for Lucas.

Rosie clutched her chest angrily on the other end of the line. "Corinne is a menace!"

Anya had an idea and said, "I can't help you now, Rosie. But what I do know is that our life would be so much more difficult if Corinne continues to be with Jeremy..."

Rosie frowned worriedly. "What will it take for Corinne to leave him?"

"Rosie," Anya began, "it's only a matter of time for Jeremy to settle scores with your family after finding out you hired that man to kill Corinne. If Corinne's dead, Jeremy's feelings for me might return, and I might be able to persuade Jeremy to let you off..."

Rosie went blank for a moment. After understanding what Anya was trying to say, she seemed to have made a firm decision and said, "I understand, Anya. You'll hear from me soon!" The call ended at that.

Anya grinned wickedly. She was hoping the bumbling Rosie would handle things better so there were no loose ends to worry about.

Phoebe walked into Anya's room and saw Anya spacing out by the window. She stepped forward and asked, "What's on your mind, Anya? I ordered some takeout. You should eat some, too."

Anya snapped back to her senses and asked melancholically, "Did you know that Lucas had a car accident yesterday?"
