

The Day I Kissed An Older Man By Cher the Cherished

Chapter 922

The Day I Kissed An Older Man By Cher the Cherished Chapter 922

Chapter 922

“I also want her to come clean to everyone about what she did to my daughter. I want her to apologize publicly!”

Hearing this, Corinne slowly raised her head and turned to look at Josephine’s mother as if she was looking at something ridiculous.

However, Jeremy pressed her face back into his chest as he did not want her to dirty her eyes by looking at these conniving people.

Jeremy glanced at Josephine, who had been crying ever since she arrived. ‘Your daughter isn’t qualified to work at my company since she doesn’t have a degree.’

Josephine’s mother frowned and said, “She would have if Corinne didn’t steal her spot! Mister Jeremy, Corinne is now your wife, and I can tell you two love each other very much. Thus, it’s only natural for you to bear the consequences of what she did in the past. I know you’re the president of your company, and that means everything you say matters! I’m sure you’ll only need to say a word to get my daughter a job in your company.”

‘You still haven’t been able to prove that my wife took your daughter’s spot in University of New Capital City. Don’t you think you’re being a little absurd to negotiate with me with such a flimsy bargaining chip?’ remarked Jeremy indifferently.

Although Josephine’s mother was a little intimidated by Jeremy’s oppressive aura, she was unwilling to back down so easily. “I’ve told you a thousand times. The proof is Corinne’s high school class attendance record!”
Enter title...

Skipping class often doesn't mean she's bad at her studies. Haven't you heard of the word 'genius' before?' Jeremy asked steadily. "If you can't show us any other proof but still insist my wife took your daughter's spot, I suggest we ask them to retake the SAT exams that year to see who can score the highest grade."

Josephine's mother's expression changed. Her gaze darted around before she finally composed herself. "That... That's not fair.

Corinne spent the last few years attending the best university in the country while my daughter did farmwork. She must've forgotten a lot of the lessons, so how can she score higher than your wife?"

Before Jeremy could say anything, Pamela scoffed and said, "You shot down every idea we have, yet you can't even show any proof. All you know how to do is make a scene. Do you really think our home is somewhere you can do whatever you want without consequences? Bowen! Show our guests out!"

'Yes, Ma'am," replied Bowen.

Josephine's mother started to panic. Her trip would be in vain if she was kicked out of the mansion! "How dare you kick US out?

You should take responsibility for what Corinne did since she married into your family! I'm not asking for much; just for her to make a public apology and to get my daughter a job in the company!"

'We can talk about your terms if you can give US some proof. Until then, you'll leave her alone," said Jeremy lightly. Bowen, do what you have to do to get them out of the house now."

"Yes, Mister Jeremy!' Bowen immediately summoned the bodyguards to drag Josephine and her mother out of the mansion.

Josephine's mother was no match for the burly bodyguards, so she resorted to screaming. "I won't give up, Corinne! You ruined my daughter's life!

'And you, Holdens! You'll all get what's coming for you for using your power to bully us. We might be poor, but we're not cowards!

You have more to lose than us! We'll see who comes out the winner in the end!"