

Chapter 906 Rudolph And His Son

Trevor had no idea that Flint, Zeke, and Annot had gone through an embarrassing experience for talking badly about him.

But even if Trevor knew, he wouldn't care.

After the helicopter landed at a private airport, Trevor took a plane to Zayden.

The whole transition went smoothly, and he was well protected the entire time.

Trevor couldn't help but sigh.

"Dad is really cautious, but there is a reason for that."

It didn't hurt to be too careful when they had a cunning and vicious enemy like Rudolph.

Fortunately, Trevor did not get into any trouble this time.

Trevor arrived in Zayden with no incident.

Zayden was the political center, the cultural shrine, and the financial center of the country. To be frank, Zayden was one of the most important and greatest cities in the world.

was well protected the entire time.

Trevor couldn't help but sigh.

"Dad is really cautious, but there is a reason for that."

It didn't hurt to be too careful when they had a cunning and vicious enemy like Rudolph.

Fortunately, Trevor did not get into any trouble this time.

Trevor arrived in Zayden with no incident.

Zayden was the political center, the cultural shrine, and the financial center of the country. To be frank, Zayden was one of the most important and greatest cities in the world.

All the families living in this city were undoubtedly wealthy.

And the Sanderson family's headquarters were here.

However, before Trevor could enjoy the magnificent city, he got picked up in a bulletproof car and was brought to the Sanderson family's castle.

Yes, a castle.

It was a huge castle made of gray rocks, and it was surrounded by a wide moat. Behind the castle was a vast field of grass and a forest.

The entire structure looked noble and solemn like a legendary giant sitting on its throne.

It was Trevor's first time to come to the castle and he was amazed at its grandeur.

That the Sanderson family occupied such a large property in Zayden, which was worth a lot of money, proved just how well established they are. The castle was more like a symbol of the family's identity.

"Spectacular!" Trevor uttered in amazement as he stood by the gate to the castle.

"Isn't it? When I first came here, I was also shocked," someone remarked from behind.

Trevor turned around and was stunned.

Rudolph!

Trevor's pupils dilated. He knew what Rudolph looked like thanks to the photo he saw at Yvonne's house.

Trevor just hadn't expected that the first person he would meet upon his arrival at the castle would be Rudolph.

Rudolph looked dignified. And when he smiled, he made people feel at ease. If Trevor hadn't experienced many assassination attempts, he would have been deceived by Rudolph's expression.

"Who are you?" Trevor quickly suppressed his true feelings and pretended to be confused.

"My name is Rudolph. I'm a member of the Sanderson family—just like you." Rudolph introduced himself with a smile. He spread his arms out in a welcoming manner. "Your father, Ronald, is my cousin."

Rudolph seemed like a kind elder.

But Trevor only felt disgust after hearing what Rudolph said so he changed the topic and asked, "You know who I am?"

Rudolph replied, "Of course. You are my father's current favorite successor, Trevor. I think everyone in the Sanderson family knows you."

Trevor observed Rudolph's smiling expression carefully. However, he couldn't find any flaws because Rudolph showed no hostility at all.

But Rudolph was like a poisonous snake—he was capable of hiding his evil intentions before launching a fatal attack.

In Trevor's eyes, Rudolph was a sinister man.

The young man standing next to Rudolph was not as good at controlling his emotions. He was about the same age as Trevor, and he looked at Trevor with arrogance.

Noticing the direction of Trevor's gaze, Rudolph said, "This is my son, Isaias. He is two years older than you. You should have a lot to talk about."

Trevor merely nodded and looked away.

After saying a few more pleasantries, Rudolph bid Trevor goodbye and entered the castle.

"I've heard that you passed the family trial."

This was the first thing Isaias Sanderson said to Trevor after his father left, but it was said in a snide manner.

Trevor turned to face him and nodded slightly.

Isaias sneered in contempt. "I don't know but maybe you passed the test easily thanks to the relationship between the Byrd family and the Sanderson family."

Trevor raised an eyebrow, knowing that Isaias had something else to say.

Sure enough, Isaias continued to try and provoke him. "I just acquired a batch of antiques recently, but it's a mix of fake and genuine items. If you're really capable, why don't you come with me and take a look at them?"

Trevor's heart skipped a beat.

Chapter 906 Rudolph And His

 +90 Points at most

Could it be the radioactive bronze statues?

It could be a rare opportunity. He wondered if he should come with Isaias.

 I want no ads >