"What do you mean by trespassing? I can't pretend I didn't hear what you said," a cold voice suddenly interjected.

Trevor turned his head and saw Evie pushing the door of the backyard open. Then she walked in.

"Evie, what are you doing here? I told you I can handle this, right?" Trevor asked, scratching his head.

Evie rolled her eyes. She didn't support the idea of Trevor fighting against others personally.

Even if he could defeat a large group of people effortlessly, she didn't want him to do it.

When Adkins saw Evie, who had a pretty face and a perfect figure, he was attracted to her and felt his sexual arousal.

He didn't even care about the beer flowing on his face anymore. He was already stunned.

Karan saw his reaction, and she felt resentful

"What do you mean by trespassing? I can't pretend I didn't hear what you said," a cold voice suddenly interjected.

Trevor turned his head and saw Evie pushing the door of the backyard open. Then she walked in.

"Evie, what are you doing here? I told you I can handle this, right?" Trevor asked, scratching his head.

Evie rolled her eyes. She didn't support the idea of Trevor fighting against others personally.

Even if he could defeat a large group of people effortlessly, she didn't want him to do it.

When Adkins saw Evie, who had a pretty face and a perfect figure, he was attracted to her and felt his sexual arousal.

He didn't even care about the beer flowing on his face anymore. He was already stunned.

Karan saw his reaction, and she felt resentful and jealous at once. She hurriedly held his arm tightly and shouted, "Adkins, I'm still here. And I'm your girlfriend."

It was only then that Adkins came back to his senses. But he didn't even look at Karan. Instead, he ran towards Evie and said enthusiastically, "Hello, beauty. My name is Adkins Freeman."

"Shut up and get out of my sight!"

Evie despised Adkins so much that she kicked him in the shin with her high heel.

Adkins jumped and howled in pain, holding his calf.

Evie snorted. "You are the ones who broke into my house. I have already bought this house. Turn off the annoying music and get out of here with your friends!"

Adkins didn't expect Evie to have such a hot temper. He got so angry that he also shouted, "That's impossible! You're talking nonsense. I've already talked with the owner of this house and even paid the deposit. I am the new owner."

He stared at Evie fiercely and added, "I think you're just trying to scare me. You just want your brother to get rid of the trouble, right? Dream on! There's no way I can let him go."

Evie smiled faintly. Although she was shorter than Adkins, she emitted a strong and imposing aura.

"What if the owner of this house is willing to pay you the liquidated damages and sell this house to me instead?"

The corners of Trevor's mouth raised.

Of course, he knew his sister's character too well.

Perhaps she had really bought this house.

Trevor smiled and said, "Hurry! Pack your things up and get out of here immediately. Otherwise, I may not control myself and hurt you again."

He clenched his fists so tightly that his knuckles made a crisp sound. "You don't want to be beaten again, right?"

Adkins hurriedly took three steps back and looked at his friends groaning on the ground. His heart was full of fear.

But he was not willing to leave in such an embarrassing manner, so he muttered, "I don't believe you."

But at this moment, his phone rang. It was the owner of the house.

Looking at the screen of his phone, the expression on Adkins's face changed. He wondered if Evie was telling the truth.

But he was still unconvinced, so he answered his phone while trembling.

"Hello? No way! That's ridiculous! I've already given you the deposit. How can you sell the house to someone else? Liquidated damages? What's the use of getting liquidated damages? What nonsense are you talking about? Is there anyone I can't afford to offend in Dreles? Uh..."

After talking to the owner for a while, Adkins seemed to finally know some important information.

His mind went blank, and his face turned deathly pale. His lips trembled as he asked carefully, "Are you..."

Before Adkins could finish his words, Trevor nodded expressionlessly.

Adkins instantly slumped to the ground and screamed, "Let's go! Karan, pack our things. Run!"

Run away from here!"

Adkins seemed crazy. He staggered away first, leaving everyone else behind him.

He found out that Trevor and Evie were from the Sanderson family. He couldn't afford to offend them.
