

Chapter 965 Bump Into Sally

Closing the door to the secret room, Trevor returned to the living room as if nothing had happened.

The others seemed too preoccupied with their own things that none of them noticed his brief disappearance. Even the party host, Zakai, was busy making out with a woman in the bathroom.

Moreover, Trevor was only a bodyguard, so nobody would find it odd if he vanished at any time.

With most of the guests sneaking into the remote corners of the villa, the living room became less crowded.

Trevor picked up a slice of cold pizza, took two bites, and casually ate.

He didn't want to stay at such a ridiculously obscene party. Taking out a cigarette, he pretended to go out to smoke and walked out of the villa.

Once he was outside, he immediately threw the cigarette away.

Just then, a beautiful woman with undisguised disgust all over her face passed by.

Trevor raised an eyebrow.

It was Sally again. He didn't expect to see her here, of all places.

"We meet again," Trevor said as he walked over.

When Sally saw him, she covered her mouth with her hand in surprise.

"It's you!"

She was surprised and amazed at the same time. Trevor had left a great impression on her. It was impossible to forget that he saved her on the train and in Hantinn Restaurant.

"Were you also messing around at the party inside?" Sally poked Trevor a suspicious look.

She had just seen some disgustingly lewd things happen in the villa's garden.

But as soon as she finished asking, Sally regretted it.

She and Trevor weren't close, so she shouldn't care about Trevor's business.

Trevor smiled. He could roughly guess why Sally looked disgusted.

"Like you, I don't like seeing those obscene things either. Anyway, what brings you here?"

Sally breathed a sigh of relief upon hearing his words. "I just happened to pass by. I have an appointment with a patient living around here."

She couldn't help casting an amused look at him.

Trevor drugged Zakai last time. Didn't he get fired for it?

Sally would be surprised if she knew that Zakai attached importance to him after what had happened and that Zakai thought she had poisoned him.

Looking at Trevor, she said shyly, "Thank you for saving me in the restaurant last time. Please wait for me here. I'll be done with work soon. I want to invite you over to dinner to express my gratitude."

Since Trevor wanted to know why Sally's mother acted strangely on his last visit as well as her relationship with the mysterious master in the letter of recommendation, he accepted the invitation.

"Alright. I don't have anything else to do now. How about I come with you to see your patient and have dinner after?"

After giving it some thought, Sally agreed.

The two of them headed to another big villa together. Sally's patient was an amiable grey-haired old lady.

"Sally, you're here." With a smile, the old lady rose from her seat to greet Sally. "My knees hurt again these days. Please help yourself in."

However, the old lady suddenly felt pain in her knees. She couldn't stand up straight and was about to fall over.

"Careful!"

Trevor rushed forward and grabbed hold of the old lady.

"Oh, thank you, young man. Thank you!" Flustered, the old lady repeatedly thanked Trevor.

Fright covered Sally's face. The bones of older people were relatively fragile. If the old lady fell over, the consequences would be dire.

Fortunately, Trevor acted quickly and kept her patient from being hurt.

Following the episode, Sally began to examine the old lady.

After a while, she decided on the appropriate medication.

"I see. Acupuncture would be the most suitable treatment for this kind of condition."

"Acupuncture?" Trevor arched his brows in surprise.

He had heard of the medical technique before. It was said to be ancient and could miraculously treat most illnesses.

However, he had never seen anyone use it.

Sally nodded. "Yes, it's acupuncture. But I'm afraid you will have to wait outside for a while. It's my family's secret technique, and I can't let you watch me perform it on the patient. Don't worry. It won't take that long."

Trevor felt a little regretful, but he understood. Touching his nose, he said, "Okay. I'll wait outside."

The old lady smiled at him. "That's great. My grandson will arrive soon. He'll be there to entertain you, so you won't be bored while waiting."

Trevor politely smiled back and didn't take the elderly lady's words to heart.

It would only take a short while, so waiting wouldn't be so bad.

A BMW parked at the gate's villa after a few minutes. Trevor couldn't help but widen his eyes when the car door opened.

He recognized the man who got out of the vehicle.

It was none other than Cyril.