

The Ex-Husband's Revenge By Dragonsky

Chapter 2005

Chapter 2005

"No! Fletcher the plot hole for this plan is too big and you might just give the Poisonwielder the chance he's been looking for! If he takes the opportunity to harm someone in the Tiddertons, we will leave in a passive position," Leon said thoughtfully.

Though it sounded like a brilliant plan to lure the Poisonwielder out, the Poisonwielder might risk everything to kidnap members of the Tiddertons instead and use them as hostages to threaten the Tiddertons into handing the motherwort over.

Should that happen, the Dragon Corps and the Tiddertons would be left at a great disadvantage.

"Impossible! Mister Wolf, the Poisonwielder wouldn't dare to attack the Tiddertons with all of us here to protect them!" A mid-aged man sneered and mocked Leon for overthinking.

"That's right!"

"The Poisonwielder hasn't shown his face for the past two days. If he has the guts to face the Dragon Corps directly, he would hide himself!"

The other members of the western region Dragon Corps disagreed with Leon as well, but what happened next shook them to their core.

Just then, they heard footsteps approaching and a Tidderton hurried inside.

"E- Elders! Bad news! the Poisonwielder barged into our inner courtyard and killed dozens of guards, before taking Mister Carl with him," He said hysterically.

"What?!"

Everyone stood from their seats as though they were struck by lightning.

They all thought of luring the Poisonwielder out and Leon's concern that the Poisonwielder would risk everything was brushed off. To their bewilderment, what Leon said came true.

Before they all had the chance to carry out their plan, the Poisonwielder took the initiative to strike and captured the eldest son of the Tiddertons, which caught them by surprise.

The mid-aged man from earlier and the other members of the western region Dragon Corps all thought that the Poisonwielder would not dare to cross the Dragon Corps directly, only to be proven completely wrong by reality.

It was until this moment that they finally realized Leon's concern was valid.

"How vicious!" Leon gasped.

Though he expected the Poisonwielder to gamble with everything, he was still surprised by the Poisonwielder's ruthlessness and boldness.

Before Fletcher and the others could respond, the Poisonwielder already took the initiative to sneak into the Tiddertons Mansion and put the Dragon Corps at a disadvantage.

'What a daredevil!' He thought. 'This act will be considered a blatant disrespect to the Dragon Corps!'

'Hurry! Let's go to the inner courtyard,' Elder Tidderton and the other elders snapped out of it and paled, before darting outside along with other members of the family.

Leon, Fletcher, and the others hurried after them to the inner courtyard as well.