

Arabella 541

Chapter 541

"Seems like you didn't quite catch what my fiancée said." Romeo said icily to the crowd behind him, "Go assist your young mistress."

He owned this hotel, and upon hearing his words, all the staff moved immediately.

Arabella said coolly, "Make them kneel down and apologize properly."

Two staff grabbed Attlee, two seized Yolanda, and two more restrained Olga, forcing them to kneel and kowtow to the portrait of the deceased.

"Let me go, let me out!" Olga struggled, only to be pushed down again.

She had already hurt her forehead. And they still wanted her to kowtow?

"Arabella, I only found out about this after watching the video." Attlee was being forced to kowtow non-stop. He stuttered out an explanation, "It was Olga who was in the wrong, but right now, we should focus on letting your grandmother rest in peace. We can talk about the rest later, okay?"

remained silent, and the staff didn't dare to stop. They

Though she didn't fancy it, Olga knew Arabella could do anything. So, she gritted her teeth and said, "My bad. I didn't mean to hurt her. Who knew she was so fragile?"

That wasn't what Arabella wanted to hear.

Olga was on her knees begging for mercy, sounding miserable, "I really didn't mean to hurt her. What good does it do me if she's dead? My plan was for her to sell her shares. They're worth 30 million bucks. She could've kept 10 million for herself and used the rest to bail us out!"

As she talked, she was forced to bow down, her head thudding against the floor.

"I'd pay her back! In five years, we'd return the money. By then, the Murphy family's stock would've risen, and she could buy more shares. It's a win-win! But she just wouldn't agree."

The more Olga spoke, the more she felt wronged. "Attlee even offered to write her a guarantee yesterday. What good are her 30% shares if the company goes under? She's just too stubborn!"

"Mom, mom," Yolanda whispered urgently as she saw Arabella getting pissed off. "You're supposed to apologize, not ramble on!"

The head cop turned to the other guests, and a bunch of people immediately stepped up to speak.

"Yeah, we all saw it. It was this woman, hitting and swearing at Grace. The old lady was so stressed out that she died because she wasn't rescued in time."

"I saw it too. There's a camera in the old lady's room. We've all seen the footage."

"I can also vouch for it. The old lady was killed by this woman."

"It was her!"

"What are you trying to do?" Olga was a bit scared. "Officer, this girl is threatening me; she just whispered threats in my ear."

"Take them away!"

At the cop's command, Attlee and Olga were instantly hauled off in front of everyone.

"Let me go." Attlee had never been so humiliated!

One could say that the moment he bought the property, he was on top of the world, but now he's eating humble pie!

"I haven't committed any crime; the old lady died of a heart attack; it has nothing to do with me!" Olga was still struggling. "Let me go; I want to see my lawyer, Yoli. Call my lawyer for me."

You better settle up quickly! If you don't pay, I'll call the cops. You're an accomplice to this crime since you had us pick the lock!"

Now, Yolanda truly experienced the betrayal of friends, the indifference of society, and the helplessness of not having power and status.

"The Murphy family is so rich; would we be short of your salaries?" Yolanda retorted angrily.

"Indeed, the Murphy family is loaded!"

"You're not trying to scare us by saying you're the richest family in Tranquil City, are you?"

"Right now, it's your grandmother who's rich, not you! I heard your grandmother was killed by you guys and left everything to Arabella, and your parents have been taken to the police station! I also heard that your family has to pay more than three hundred thousand dollars in interest each month, which you can't afford!"

Yolanda was shocked. She didn't expect the incidents from her engagement party to have spread so quickly, leaving her incredibly embarrassed.

"Also, look at yourself. Do you even look like a rich girl anymore?"

Chapter 546

On their way to the Murphy Group, Romeo had Arabella in his lap, taking care of her like a child.

"Have some food first."

Inside the caravan, the chef served them a feast. Romeo forked a piece of steak and held it up to Arabella's mouth.

"This is your favorite."

Arabella had no appetite.

"Try some," Romeo encouraged gently.

Arabella lifted her eyes. The coldness in her gaze warmed slightly at the sight of him. "You've been with me all day; can the group handle things without you?"

"Carl's handling it." Romeo fed her the steak and forked over another piece. "How's the taste?"

Arabella told the man in the car, "Wait here for me."

"Alright." Romeo was about to stand up when he heard her words and sat back down. "Let me know if you need my help."

"Sure."

"I'll have Gabry go with you."

Gabry was Romeo's driver, and he'd been with Romeo for a long time and was very smart.

To keep Romeo at ease, Arabella agreed.

"That's your folks, not my circus, not my monkeys." Arabella glanced at Ben. "So, what's it gonna be, Ben? Follow your old boss or stick around and work for me?"

Ben looked from Arabella to Yolanda, weighing his options.

Yolanda shot him a warning look, as if to say, 'Betray me and see what happens.'

"Stay, and I'll double your salary."

At Arabella's words, Ben quickly changed his tune. "I'll stay and work for Ms. Bennett."

"Well, aren't you a flip-flopper?" Yolanda was taken aback by the speed of Ben's change of allegiance. One moment he was all respectful to her, the next he was siding with Arabella.

"Throw her out and anything related to her. Replace everything they used in this office."

Arabella grabbed Olga's hair fiercely, just like how Olga treated Grace back then, making her actions even more ruthless.

"You treated Grandma like this, didn't you?"

Arabella held her hair with one hand, slapped her harshly with the other, and then shoved her away with force.

Olga's body hit the wall; the pain was so intense she couldn't even muster a scream.

That's exactly how she slapped Grace and then pushed her, causing Grace's back to smash against the bed's headboard.

Olga didn't expect Arabella to come today to recreate the "crime scene." She was so scared she wanted to call for help: "Help me, is anyone there?"

Arabella suddenly turned her head, and one of her men immediately covered Olga's mouth.

Olga shook her head, her face as pale as a ghost. "No, that can't be."

"Believe it or not, that's on you." Arabella had already anticipated her reaction and said nonchalantly, "By the way, before I came here, I had a DNA test done. Attlee and Grandma aren't blood-related."

Olga turned even paler, as if the last glimmer of hope had vanished. She whispered, "No, that's not true."

If Attlee and Grace weren't blood related, then Attlee had zero ties with the Murphy family. They can't inherit anything from the Murphy family, and, on the contrary, Arabella won't let them off the hook because of past relationships.

No wonder Arabella was so ruthless at the engagement party, humiliating them. She even slapped her and kicked her.

So, Arabella knew about this all along.
