

The Princess and the Pauper (Arabella)

Chaper 977

Chapter 977

Clark was still nursing some wounds while cradling Carol in his arms.

In the living room.

Carol stirred at the noise, opening her eyes to see Dennis. She cried out in delight, "Bro!"

Seeing the injuries on her body, Dennis' eyes welled up with tears, "I didn't protect you well enough."

They began to recount what happened after they were separated.

Meanwhile, Romeo was updating Arabella with the latest news. Arabella announced, "As we predicted, a large number of forces are making their way towards us."

They had severed close to half Mount Doom's power, and assassins were already sent after them.

"There's a data package that contains evidence of all the evil deeds they have been doing over the years, and I want to expose it," Carol suggested.

"But these people will use their influence to cover it all up. Maybe the moment we expose it, it'll vanish without a trace.' This was what Dennis feared.

"Romeo and I have everything set up." Arabella assured, "And people on Clark's side will help us. Now it's a matter of who can last the longest."

"What identity should we expose this under?" Dennis asked again.

"Obviously, as the victims, but we don't need to show ourselves.' Arabella had already chosen a candidate - Carol's old confidante who had been tortured for over a year in T3 Research Institute's lab.

When they rescued her, she was barely alive.

Another candidate was a former teacher from the orphanage. Everyone thought she was dead, but she was saved halfway.

These two were the perfect people to speak out.

In addition, some people abroad had already been arranged by Arabella. Their stories could incite public outrage as long as they were real enough.

"They will describe all the cruel things T3 Research Institute and the orphanage did, implicating Inferno Clan and exposing their shelter."

Carol had a feeling that war was about to break out, "The reason why this organization is feared is not just because of its extensive branches, but also because it involves too many powerful figures. As far as I know, after taking over Mount Doom, they even have the protection of the Ghost Soldiers, who are said to be an upgraded version of the Dead Soldiers."

The Dead Soldiers were already enough to cause shock, but now there were Ghost Soldiers??

"Who is training these people?" Clark asked again.

"It's said to be T3 Research Institute, but I have a hunch it's not. It's like there's a bigger, stronger organization, silently controlling everything."

"What did you say?" Clark never thought the situation could get this complicated.

"Also, T3 Research Institute has secretly cultivated many viruses, and I don't know what they're planning. They seem to take orders from the headquarters, but not completely."

"Anyway, we'll deal with whatever comes our way.' Arabella decided firmly, "We'll cut down as many as we can, whether it's local or international. We have to win."

"Right" Everyone nodded.

Soon, shocking posts began appearing online.

Simultaneously, the news anchor was not standing in front of a news background but images of the two victims' ordeals.

All platforms began to expose the truth.

The orphanage's actions alone were enough to cause a huge uproar, crashing servers across various platforms multiple times.