

Arabella 124

Chapter 124

No sooner had Louisa finished speaking than Romeo assured them, "Don't you worry, I'll take good care of her."

He always had an affectionate look in his eyes when he looked at Arabella.

Kenneth and Louisa exchanged glances; both could tell that Romeo was head over heels for Bella—really smitten!

Just then, Serena walked down the stairs elegantly with her carefully applied makeup, flashing a classic debutante smile and warmly saying, "Hey, sis, bro-in-law, you're here?"

Every move she made as she descended the stairs was filled with grace and nobility, like she was well-trained and practically flawless.

Seeing

her manners and demeanor, Louisa was satisfied. At least all these years efforts weren't wasted, especially when she heard her say "bro-in-law, It was clear that she knew her boundaries; she wouldn't try to replace Bella just because she was previously engaged to Romeo and step into the McMillan family.

Arabella noticed Serena's subtle makeup and responded lightly.

Romeo's

gaze remained on Arabella, filled with fondness. "Shall we go out for breakfast tomorrow morning?"

"I'd rather eat at home."

like to join

and thought,

the kitchen prepare extra breakfast tomorrow, Romeo; you can come over and eat with Bella, thought, just as

asked with a grin,

glance at Arabella and said, "I'll eat whatever Bella eats."

on the side, felt both to bring over a glass of lemon water, saying, "Miss Serena, to Romeo and Arabella earlier, so nobody found it conspicuous when she brought a glass for the just-arrived Serena.

the leg of a chair, and the water in her hand splashed all over

it splashed

which was now mostly wet at Holly was extremely regretful and quickly pulled out a okay, don't worry; I can take care of it myself." Serena showed Romeo didn't even glance at her for a it's all my fault; I got your clothes wet!" Holly emphasized the word