

Arabella 1585

Chapter 1585

"No need, I'll come down and eat," I called out, trying to sound casual.

"Take it easy, hon," Louisa hollered from downstairs, her voice tinged with a mother's concern. "You've been spinning like a top all day. Try to clear your schedule for the holidays. I want to take you out for some fun."

"Sure," she replied, the word barely a whisper.

Meanwhile.

Serena's Facebook feed was completely taken over by the concert updates. As she scrolled, she stumbled upon a proposal segment with a couple who bore an uncanny resemblance to Romeo and Arabella.

She was so shocked that her phone slipped right out of her hands, clattering to the floor. She didn't even bother to pick it up right away.

Arabella did have a similar black coat. Serena had seen her wear it once. But the concert lighting was dim, and it was hard to make out any details.

If it was them, then their coats, their black masks, everything matched—they looked like a couple straight out of a storybook. Especially when Romeo dropped to one knee, ring in hand, proposing to Arabella.

to describe her feelings. Shock? Jealousy?

searched through multiple social media platforms for any scrap of evidence in the videos and newly engaged couple's recognized them in the instant they pulled down their

It really was them.

had been on stage, kissing so

Absolutely shameless!

worldly desires, but crumbling

the Collins family blood and was the true young lady of the

a long while until the surprise guest's silhouette, the movements, those bright eyes, and the shock on David's face was clear—the

gone, replaced

Arabella was Summer?

How could she be Summer?

How could she have so many identities?

Considering Summer's status was even higher than David's, a mysterious international superstar.

If she was ranked second, no other female singer in the country would dare claim the first spot.

The shocking revelation made Serena shiver slightly, a chill creeping up her spine.

She couldn't believe that Arabella had another identity as Summer.

Arabella's many layers and the Collins family blood would only make her more valuable in their eyes.

What about Serena then?