

Married At First Sight Chapter 2915

-A night of silence.

The next day, in the early morning, Camryn, who had not yet woken up, felt cold and instinctively crawled into the arms of Callum next to her.

The morning in the villa felt much colder than in the city.

The couple didn't close the windows; they just closed the heavy curtains.

Therefore, the cold morning air poured into the room, and Camryn felt cold.

It's raining outside. When it rains in winter, it can easily lower the temperature, making people in Wiltspoon feel the arrival of winter.

After a week of cold weather last time, the temperature had warmed up. The recent weather had been sunny during the day, and it was as hot as summer, which meant they needed to wear a thin coat in the morning and evening.

As it was raining, it made people feel cold.

Callum didn't even open his eyes. He stretched out his arms to hug Camryn, who had crawled into his arms, and pulled the quilt again.

After a few more minutes, Callum woke up.

He heard the rain.

It's raining; no wonder it's cold.

Callum lowered his head and kissed Camryn on the face, then gently pushed her away. He stood up and tried not to wake her. He walked to the window and opened the curtains on one side, letting in the cold wind. Rain blows in.

He immediately closed the window, closed the curtains, turned around, and walked back.

"It's raining?"

After returning to the bed, Callum sat down, and Camryn on the bed asked him.

Callum said, "Well, it's raining. Wife, wake up. It's still early. Let's sleep a little longer."

Camryn was still lying down, and she asked, "What time is it now?"

Callum took his phone, looked at the time, and replied, "It's still early; it's only 6:30. Let's sleep for another thirty minutes. Then we'll get up, eat breakfast, and head back to the city. It's windy and raining pretty hard right now, so let's stay inside."

If the rain gets heavier, he will tell Zachary that he will not return to the company in the morning.

Camryn closed her eyes and said, "I'll lie down for a while after that. It's cold for a reason. It has rained. The weather report says that the temperature will drop again and that it will be as cold as it was before. Five or six degrees is the coldest it gets at night."

It was cold, and she didn't want to go out; she just wanted to lie in bed.

Especially in cold and rainy weather, who was willing to go out not to earn a living but to earn a few taels of silver?

Callum lay back next to her, hugged her from behind, and said softly, "It's only when the weather gets cold that you take the initiative to crawl into my arms. I wish it would snow."

For example, in order to serve as a heater for Serenity, Zachary deliberately turned off the heater and opened the windows to lower the indoor temperature. It was so cold that Serenity used Zachary as a heater.

He only found out about this interesting boudoir story after Zachary let it slip once.

He really didn't think that a serious person like Zachary would have such evil plans against Serenity, who Zachary eventually ate to death.

People outside always said that Zachary was a maniac who doted on Serenity, was a wife slave, and was controlled by Serenity.

Callum said, "In Wiltspoon, it won't snow. The coldest time of year is when the temperature falls to a few degrees in the middle of the night."

Camryn said, "Yesterday you told me about taking me to the north to see the snow. I had a dream last night. I dreamed about snow all night long. I dreamed that we were making snowmen and having snowball fights. We had a lot of fun. But in the end, I also dreamed about Carrie, who rushed over like a madman and destroyed the snowman we built.

She was still pointing at me and yelling at me in my dream. Anyway, she was very fierce. The look in her eyes seemed to be quenched with poison. Then, I felt cold and instinctively approached you, and I woke up."

Callum said, "When your eyesight is completely restored, I will take you to the north to see the snow. Carrie dared to destroy the snowman we built, so I buried her in the snowdrift and turned her into a snowman. In your dream, didn't I teach her a lesson?"

Married At First Sight Chapter 2916-Camryn was speechless and said, "Maybe in my subconscious, I feel that this is a dispute between me and Carrie, and I don't want to involve you. I didn't see you teaching Carrie a lesson in the dream."

Callum turned her body over and bit her lips lightly. "You didn't put me first in your heart. When you encountered difficulties, you didn't think of me first. You thought of Brother Dal, right?"

Camryn said, "Here you go again; you are jealous of Brother Dal again. Brother Dal is married. Don't say such things, lest your sister-in-law misunderstand and affect their relationship as a couple."

Camryn was helpless to know that Callum was still jealous of Brother Dal. After explaining it countless times, he still regarded Brother Dal as his love rival.

But when Brother Dal came over, he called him brother more affectionately than anyone else.

Camryn said: "The environment in which I grew up has made me accustomed to finding solutions on my own when encountering difficulties, so even if I have a dispute with Carrie in my dream, I will not dream of anyone helping me to teach Carrie a lesson.

Brother Dal is repaying his kindness, which has been very good to me. We support each other, just like brothers and sisters. How many times have I explained to you that you are afraid that it goes in the left ear and comes out in the right ear? You are always jealous of Brother Dal. “

Callum hugged her tightly and muttered something softly. She was hugged too tightly by him, and she was busy pushing him away. She didn't pay attention to his mumbling and didn't know what he was mumbling.

Dalton loved Camryn, but he didn't show it, but Callum, who was also a man, could see it.

Every man is probably like him. If he knows that a man once loved his wife, he can't help but be wary of him. If his wife cares about him, he will have random thoughts and worry about the two having an affair.

When Dalton came to Wiltspoon, Callum called him brother even more affectionately than Camryn. This was to remind Dalton that he was just Camryn's eldest brother and not to have any other inappropriate thoughts. Besides, Dalton is married, so don't let his wife down.

“If you can't sleep, get up.”

As the couple talked like this, neither of them felt sleepy.

Camryn pushed Callum next to her to get up.

“You lie down first. It's cold when you wake up. There's no heating in the room. I'll get you some clothes.”

Camryn couldn't help but put her arms around his neck and give him a sweet kiss.

Callum was so considerate.

He was too good for her.

He simply held her in his heart.

How could she be so virtuous and capable of marrying such an excellent and dedicated man?

If a husband is like this, what more can a wife ask for?

Half an hour later, the young couple went downstairs.

“Second Young Master, Second Young Madam, morning.”

The butler smiled and said hello. When he saw the young couple coming downstairs, their fingers were clasped together, and they were in a very good mood.

The butler smiled happily. He merely wished that the young couple would continue to improve, that Camryn would soon regain normal vision, that she and Callum would become parents, and that she would recover quickly.

That way, it would be complete.

“morning.”

Camryn responded to Butler’s greetings gently.

“Second Young Master, Second Young Madam, breakfast is ready.”

Knowing that the young couple had to go back to work in the city, Butler in the second room reminded the chef last night that today’s breakfast would be prepared ten minutes earlier than usual.