

Chapter 888 Kidnapped

At dusk, Liam went to Oracle Kindergarten to pick up Asher from school.

On his way there, he bought a candy for Asher. As he held the candy in his hands and made his way to the school, a gentle smile curved his lips.

Just thinking of his son, Asher, filled Liam with a burst of warmth. He loved the little boy more than words could express. Liam had never expected to enjoy being a dad as much as he did.

His smile widened as he thought of how Asher would ask him to carry him in his arms in his sweet little voice.

By now, Liam had been waiting at the gate of the kindergarten for some time.

School was over, and the children had been let out. The parents of all the other children had come to pick them up, but Liam was still waiting outside the gate.

After an hour, the security guard walked out with a lock, clearly intending to lock up the school for the day.

When Liam saw this, he frowned and quickly walked up to the security guard.

"Sir, have all the kids in the kindergarten left? Why are you locking the door now?"

The security guard raised an eyebrow at Liam and said, "All the children were picked up by their parents thirty minutes ago."

"What? How is that possible?"

Liam was shocked to his bones. It was only at this moment that he realized that something was wrong.

Something bad had happened to Asher!

Liam was furious, and a dangerous glint appeared in his eyes.

Not long after he came back to Salem, someone had dared to hurt his child!

Whoever did this was courting death.

Immediately, he took out his phone and called Bowen.

"Asher is missing! I want every government agency in Salem to search for Asher right now! Tell the big families in Salem that if anyone can find Asher, I, the five-star general, will owe them a favor!"

On the other end of the phone, Bowen was horrified when he heard that Liam's son had been missing.

He agreed to carry out Liam's orders immediately.

After hanging up the phone, Bowen stared into space with a gloomy expression. All of a sudden, he slammed his hand on the table and cursed, "Who did this? Damn it! How dare you kidnap General Hoffman's child!"

After venting his anger, Bowen didn't dare to delay. He knew how terrible it would be if Liam got angry.

Bowen ordered all the police force in Salem to investigate Asher's disappearance.

At the same time, Bowen, in the name of Liam, the "five-star general", coordinated with the nearby military region and asked the major leaders of the military region to send soldiers to search Salem.

After that, Bowen picked up his phone and dialed the numbers of the major families in Salem and conveyed Liam's offer.

The news was akin to an earthquake sweeping through all the top families in Salem.

The five-star general was looking for someone.

And once they found that person, the five-star general would owe them a favor.

The offer was enough to turn the top families into wild dogs scrambling for the last morsel of food.

They all knew that if they got the chance to find favor in the eyes of the five-star general, their family would be prosperous and be the most revered in Salem.

Therefore, all the heads of the top families ordered their people to search Salem.

Nolan also received the news, and he also arranged for people to look for Asher.

But as he finished giving out instructions, he suddenly remembered that his son, Klein, had a grudge against Liam.

A niggling feeling of foreboding arose in Nolan's heart. He quickly went in search of Klein.

However, Nolan didn't find Klein.

As he stared at Klein's empty room, Nolan couldn't help but feel desperate.

"Son of bitch! Did he really do it? Then, our family is doomed!" he shouted.

Meanwhile, at Nightingale Villa Area, Julie suddenly received a text message from an unknown number.

Curious, Julie clicked on it and saw a photo.

However, when Julie saw the content of the photo, her face turned pale, and the phone fell from her suddenly limp fingers.

Because the person in the photo was none other than her and Liam's child, Asher.

After several seconds, Julie managed to snap out of her shock and reached for her phone with trembling hands. Then, she read the message that accompanied the photo.

"If you want to save Asher, come to room 808 of Von Merri Hotel alone. I'm waiting for you. Remember to dress nicely. I know you have been a widow for many years. Today, I'll make you relive the feeling of being newlywed. If you dare tell anyone, you will never see your son again!"

Upon reading this, Julie's eyes blurred, and her legs turned weak. She stumbled and nearly fell on her face.
