

Triplet Alphas Gifted Luna 153

3 - 42 Jones

Xavier flipped their SUV back on its wheels.

"I don't know about its life expectancy, but it should drive out of here," Alpha Knight said. "Let's put Luna Thea in a different vehicle, just in case."

New Dawn's kitchen staff had brought over mountains of food and laid it out on the cafeteria tables by the time the group returned to the school. Everyone dug in and ate their fill.

"I'm proud of you, Thea," her father said, hugging her. "You've changed hundreds, maybe thousands of lives today."

"It wasn't just me, Dad," she said.

"It's good to stay humble," he said, mussing her hair.

Thea laughed and her phone rang. The caller ID read Cassandra. She answered the call.

"Cassandra?" Thea said.

"Luna?"

"Yes, it's me."

"You need to call the next one on the phone before you go there."

"I don't think I have his phone number, Cassandra."

"You'll find it on his father's phone."

"Of course," Thea said. "Okay. I'll call him. Anything else?"

"No."

"Thank you, Cassandra," Thea said. She hung up.

Thea walked over to Alpha Jones' body and rifled through his pockets until she found his phone. It asked for a fingerprint to unlock it, so she took his hand and pressed his thumb to the phone. It unlocked. She scrolled through his contacts.

"Hey, does anyone know what Jones' son's name is?" Thea said.

"Brian, I think," Alpha Reese said.

She found Brian in the contacts and pressed call.

"Hello?" a deep voice said, sounding suspicious. 1

"This is Thea Lyall, future Luna of New Dawn. Am I speaking to Brian Jones, son of Alpha Jones?"

"Yes."

"I'm sorry to inform you your father is dead," Thea said.

"I figured that out when the Alpha power transferred to me. Can I assume it was your doing?"

"He joined an alliance with Alpha Jett and others. They called us to a summit and tried to kill us. They're all dead now."

"Does that mean you're coming for me?"

"I'd like to talk to you," Thea said. "I didn't get along with your father—"

"Or my sister." 1

"Or your sister," Thea said, thinking about Lumia Jones. "But I think we could get along. I believe you're a very different person from your father and sister. I'd like to come to your pack to return your father's and your men's bodies, and I'd like to talk with you about a possible alliance."

"I'm open to that," Brian said, relief in his voice.

"Could we come now?" Thea said.

"Yes."

"Do I have your guarantee that your pack won't attack us?"

"Yes."

"I'll see you soon."

Thea programmed Brian's number into her phone. Then she turned to the men in the cafeteria.

"It's time to take Alpha Jones' body back to Ice Moon," she said. "This one will be a bit different. I'm responsible for his sister's condition. I need to be the one to talk to him.

Jones's son is a good person. If he can get past what I've done to his family, I believe he will lead his pack in line with our values."

"You're sure Alpha Jones' son is good?" Alpha Ulric said.

"There was no darkness in him when I met him at the school," Thea said. "I think we can give him the chance to rule his pack. We'll keep an eye on him, and if it doesn't work out, we'll reassess."

"Even if he's a good person, it may be difficult to align yourself with the people who killed your family," Alaric said. "I think we need to be cautious."

"We will be," Thea said. "Xavier can move faster than any of their guys. He'll be next to me, as will the three of you. Delta team and all these Alphas will be between us and any Ice Moon warriors. The risk is minimal."

"Let's say he agrees to form an alliance," Kai said. "There will be people in his pack who won't want their lives to change. He'll have a difficult time getting his pack in order."

"We can help him get it in order right then and there," Thea said. "And if it goes south, you all know what to do."

They arrived in front of Ice Moon's pack house without incident. Ice Moon's new Alpha, Alpha Brian Jones, stood in front of it with a shaved head, his warriors standing behind him. Everyone got out of the vehicles. A few of the Alphas carried the former Alpha Jones' body toward Alpha Brian Jones. More carried the other Ice Moon bodies.

Brian motioned for his warriors to take the bodies. They handed them off.

"Alpha Jones," Thea said, walking toward Brian. Xavier and the triplets flanked her.

"Luna, Alphas," Brian said. He eyed Xavier, unsure who he was. He motioned to his men again, and they brought out chairs. He sat in one of the chairs. "Please, sit."

"I'd like to address the elephant in the room," Thea said. "Lumia."

"Yes?" Alpha Brian Jones said.

"I understand your father left Lumia, your sister, to die after she challenged me."

"He gave her to the warriors as a sex doll. Death was a mercy," he said.

Thea couldn't hide the surprise on her face.

"I'm sorry," she said.

He shrugged. He had so much muscle, even his pecs moved with the gesture. "I can't account for my father's choices, but my sister knew who he was. She dug her own grave."

"You're okay with it?" Thea said.

"There's no use crying over spilled milk."

Thea nodded. She felt Brian's disgust with his father's actions. Not just with Lumia, but everything he ever did. He had never been successful at changing his father's mind. He learned to be quiet, bide his time, and prepare for when he inherited the Alpha position. He had erected a wall in his mind. Everything that happened under his father's rule was on one side. He ignored that side since there was nothing he could do about it. The other side was what he planned to do. That side was full of light and goodness.

"Now I bring you your father's corpse," Thea said. "I would understand if you couldn't forgive me, but I hope we can get past it." She said the next part softly so only he could hear. "I know you're not like your sister or father. You have light and goodness in you. It will take work, but we will support your reign if you plan to lead your pack in line with our values."

"What did you do with the other packs with dead Alphas?" Alpha Brian Jones said.

"We gave them to our allies," Alaric said.

"Their new Alphas put down any challenges," Kai said. "Freed the slaves. Abolished the position and title of omega."

Alpha Brian Jones nodded. "My father went to your meeting of Alphas," he said. "He told me about New Dawn's plans. I'll join with New Dawn."

"You'll have dissenters," Thea said. "People who want to continue living the old way. They'll challenge you."

"I knew how I wanted to rule since I was a child. I've been preparing for every possibility, challenges included."

"If you know who the people are that will dissent, we could help you take them out right now," Thea said.

"My pack wouldn't respect my rule if I let others fight my battles."

"We're not talking Alpha challenges, are we?" Thea said.

"It's possible but unlikely," Alpha Brian Jones said.

"You really have been preparing," Thea said. He nodded. "I want you to succeed. Would you let me assist you?"

"How?"

"I can give you a boost," Thea said, lowering her voice.

"What do you mean?"

"I'm going to tell you a secret in good faith."

"Of course."

"I'm goddess gifted. I share it openly with my allies. My enemies want to take it forcefully. I'll use it on you now if you want."

"Okay." He seemed surprised and intrigued.

Thea funneled her magic into him, ensuring he was the strongest he could be and maximizing his Alpha potential while boosting the light and goodness in him. He felt the magic working in him, and he looked at her in awe.

"My father had no idea," he said. "He even thought your Alpha tone was a fluke." He let out a quiet laugh.

"Are you aware of the Great War to come?" Thea said.

"My father mentioned it in passing. Something about packs back east being annihilated. Said you guys were freaking out over nothing."

"I can assure you it's real," Thea said. "You know the goddess only gifts her children when something big is happening."

He nodded, captivated.

strongest he could be and maximizing his Alpha potential while boosting the light and goodness in him. He felt the magic working in him, and he looked at her in awe.

"My father had no idea," he said. "He even thought your Alpha tone was a fluke." He let out a quiet laugh.

"Are you aware of the Great War to come?" Thea said.

"My father mentioned it in passing. Something about packs back east being annihilated. Said you guys were freaking out over nothing."

"I can assure you it's real," Thea said. "You know the goddess only gifts her children when something big is happening."

He nodded, captivated.

"That's the driving force behind everything. We're preparing for something big. We need everyone on board."

"I'm on board. I will get this pack in order. I've been waiting my whole life for the opportunity." 1

Thea smiled.

"We will assist you in any way you need," Conri said. "All our allies help each other where they can."

Alpha Brian Jones nodded. He understood that he would be expected to join in assisting other packs as well. 1

"We'll have you come to the next meeting of Alphas," Kai said.

"I will happily come to the next meeting you hold. I look forward to a growing friendship."

Samantha Doyle  Author

"
As I'm nearing the end of this story, I'm thinking about my next project. Don't worry. I'm going to finish this one. I might try a voting thing on social media when I figure out how to do it, lol. For now, I'll ask you here. What are you interested in? Billionaire love story(s), a story I'm calling "Kidnapped By My Alpha Mate," high school romance(s), a reverse harem story about shifters(not just werewolves), or spin offs from Triplet Alphas? What spin offs would you be interested in? GoodNovel has an ongoing LGBTQ contest this year, so I'm considering doing a spin off of Alpha Stoll and Alpha Ledger. Though, I could do other LGBTQ stories that are unrelated to Triplets. Also, if you have ideas you would like to see in a book, whether it's a trope, a certain kind of character, whatever, let me know.
"

 Comments

 Vote (40.4K) 