

Arabella 2007

Chapter 2007

Uriah spoke with a serene air, "Thank goodness I taught her some self-defense when she was a little girl. I saw that video online; it was dangerous. I'm so relieved she could protect her friend and ensure her own safety. As her grandfather, I'm comforted and proud of her. I'd like to take this chance to encourage everyone to teach their kids some self-defense. It can really make a difference when it counts."

When the crowd learned that Arabella's self-defense skills were taught by Uriah, they were taken aback. Before his retirement, he was a political big shot, but a deeper dig revealed that in his youth, he was a legend in the Special Forces.

His team used to say he was an all-terrain, multi-skilled captain, nicknamed "Tiger on Land, Dragon in the Sea, and Falcon in the Sky". Not only was he adept at parachuting, sniping, and hand-to-hand combat, but he could also draw, load, aim, and shoot in just 0.5 seconds, earning him the title "King of Guns".

Such a versatile talent, it's no wonder Arabella, at such a young age, had such skills.

It figured that Arabella could take down those thugs that night; it was only natural.

Consequently, public opinion swiftly shifted in Arabella's favor.

Meanwhile, the Collins family's raffle event coordinator, a high-ranking executive, came forward to announce the investigation results.

The data showed that the ninety-nine cars had rigorous inspection certificates proving they were problem-free before the winners drove them away. However, after they left, several cameras in the vicinity of the victim's parking lot coincidentally broke down.

Arabella restored the surveillance and had the relevant footage uploaded online. It clearly showed several masked figures tampering with the cars in the dead of night.

The internet was in an uproar!

The company involved with these masked saboteurs was also exposed. It was StoryStyle Co., led by Esther, who had held a grudge against the Collins family for ages.

Because the Collins family had ceased their partnership with her in the new year, she was irate and orchestrated this plot to take them down.

Before long, the police arrived and took Esther, the head of the charming fashion company, into custody.

But Arabella knew it wasn't that simple.

"Esther wouldn't resort to such despicable tactics, jeopardizing so many lives, just because the Collins family stopped working with her. She must be taking the fall for someone else. I did some digging, and the person she was in contact with belonged to a film company."