

Chapter 1021 Finishing His Apprenticeship

After the emergency treatment, Arlo regained consciousness. "What happened? Did I faint?" he asked.

Sally shot him a cold glare.

"You're a doctor. You know it's dangerous to lose your temple after your head is injured. How could you be so careless? Dragon advised you to calm down, but you didn't listen and passed out in anger. You would have died in the clinic if it weren't for us!"

Arlo's forehead creased as he tried to recall what had happened. He remembered the moment right before he collapsed and lost consciousness. Fear immediately gripped him.

He felt so guilty and didn't want to cause trouble for Trevor or bother Sally any longer.

Without another word, Arlo took the medical devices and scurried off the clinic in shame.

Watching Arlo run away, Sally grinned and poked Trevor with her elbow.

"You've done me a huge favor again today. I didn't have the chance to invite you to dinner the last time. What do you say we have dinner at my place tonight?"

collapsed and lost consciousness. Fear immediately gripped him.

He felt so guilty and didn't want to cause trouble for Trevor or bother Sally any longer.

Without another word, Arlo took the medical devices and scurried off the clinic in shame.

Watching Arlo run away, Sally grinned and poked Trevor with her elbow.

"You've done me a huge favor again today. I didn't have the chance to invite you to dinner the last time. What do you say we have dinner at my place tonight?"

My mother will cook for us, and she's an excellent cook. It'll be great!"

Trevor smiled and nodded. He lived alone in Esterham, so it would be great to be with other people at dinner tonight. "Sure."

Soon, the night fell. The two headed to Sally's house.

Trevor brought a box of good tea as a gift.

Madison was preparing the dining table when the two arrived. She smiled and gestured for the chairs. "Have a seat."

As they started eating, Sally talked about the competition in the clinic earlier that day.

"Mom, Trevor's skills have improved greatly. He gave very accurate diagnoses of the patients today!" Sally said cheerfully.

Madison nodded and smiled, pleased by the news.

"I've seen your progress too. What you need now is more opportunities to practice your skills."

She took out a new set of thick books and handed them to Trevor.

"Take these. They're copies of my family's medical books. You can study them in your free time to learn more about medicine and enhance your skills."

Taking the books, Trevor said sincerely, "Thank you so much. You and Sally are great teachers."

Compared to professional doctors, Trevor was more attentive and stable in practice. The martial arts training he received from Pearce had helped develop his concentration and muscle control, which was a great advantage in the medical field.

It was the reason why he learned the techniques and acquired the skills easily and fast.

"Congratulations, Trevor! You've finished your apprenticeship," Madison said with a smile.

Surprised, Trevor raised his head eagerly. "It's such an honor to hear that. To tell you the truth, I've recently received new information about the guys I'm chasing after. I'll leave for Barlowtown in a few days."

According to the investigation, Xzavier's businesses were concentrated in Barlowtown.

Trevor would not let him go this time!

"Barlowtown?" After a short silence, Madison took a sip of tea. "Have you heard of the legendary general, Nicolas Bowman?"

Although he wondered why Madison mentioned the old general's name all of a sudden, Trevor nodded and said, "Yes, I havev."

Madison smiled. "He's retired and lives in Barlowtown now. But he isn't feeling well lately, so he asked me to treat him. Since you're headed there, why don't you treat him?"

Trevor was stunned. He didn't expect Madison would be so generous and trustful of him. She suggested this so he could have a connection with Nicolas.

Even though Nicolas had retired, a general like him still had a lot of influence.

With Nicolas' help, it would be much easier for Trevor to do what he wanted in Barlowtown.

"This is so unexpected. Thank you. Really." Trevor couldn't hide his gratitude.

With a kind smile, Madison reached for his face and said softly, "It's nothing, good boy. Just take good care of yourself. That's all I can do for you. You have to depend on yourself moving forward."

Deeply moved, Trevor nodded his head repeatedly.

His two masters had offered him such great help.

The only thing left for him to do was to finish his enemies.

"Xzavier and Barlowtown, I'm coming!" Trevor murmured.