

Chapter 1760 Locke Is A Good Person

---

Janet was aware of Mandy's feelings for Draco, so assisting him should have lifted her spirits.

Detecting Mandy's unusual mood, Janet also sensed a hint of gossip.

Driven by concern for her friend and a touch of curiosity, Janet initiated a video call with Mandy.

Following a few rings, Mandy responded on the other end.

Seeing Mandy's somewhat downcast look on the screen, Janet furrowed her brows and asked, "What's going on? I thought you'd be all smiles helping out Draco. Why the long face? Did he give you the cold shoulder or something?"

Having expressed that, Janet shook her head in disbelief.

Given her understanding of Draco's character, she knew he was gentle and wouldn't mistreat Mandy, regardless of her assistance to W Marks.

Before Janet could dive deeper into her thoughts, Mandy quickly denied it. "Oh no, it's nothing like that. Don't overthink it."

If not Draco, then who else could it be?

Janet tilted her head, pondering about another individual.

She leaned in mysteriously towards the camera, prepared to inquire of Mandy whether it was related to Locke.

But before Janet could get a word in, the agitated Mandy spilled the beans.

"It's Locke. Actually, the Ocean Heart is his. He was the one who first spotted that the guest's Ocean Heart was fake. So, Locke's the hero who fixed the whole mess!"

Releasing a long sigh, Mandy provided an explanation.

Hearing this, Janet nodded thoughtfully. "Well, looks like Locke's a good guy."

Mandy stared at her in disbelief, almost questioning whether she had misheard.

Yet, she kept her question to herself, just mulling over it repeatedly in her head. "Is Locke really a decent person?"

"Seems like Locke's got a heart of gold, willing to use his precious gem to help out Draco, especially when they could be seen as love rivals," Janet mused.

But at Janet's praise for Locke, Mandy couldn't help but roll her eyes. She shot back, "Oh, please. Locke already said he did it for me, not to be some hero."

Janet's lips twitched. For some reason, she sensed that Mandy was deliberately undermining Locke in her presence.

Mandy went on to brief Janet about the incidents at W Marks and how Locke had his team assist W Marks.

However, she omitted the part about Locke asking her to kiss him, finding it too embarrassing to disclose.

"The Ocean Heart is still in my hands, and Locke doesn't seem in a rush to take it back. I messaged him earlier about returning it, but he's swamped and told me to hang on to it for now," Mandy added, sporting a troubled expression. The Ocean Heart had turned into a predicament for her.

Lounging on the sofa, Janet, reveling in the gossip, contemplated the situation.

Noticing Mandy's annoyed expression, Janet teased, "Well, that's a win. The Ocean Heart's like a top-grade ruby, super rare, and hard to come by. Since you're all about gems, might as well keep it. You can admire it whenever you want."

"Humph!" Mandy snorted, looking rather proud.

Maybe Janet's schadenfreude was too apparent, as Mandy, following a disdainful huff, promptly concluded the video call.
