

Even After Death by Lilting Champ

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1621-The Fordhams surrounded Jacqueline like menacing tigers. The briddling resentment in them was screaming to kill her.

David took a deep breath, suppressing the murderous intent in him.” Jacqueline, I want you to tell us Toxic Hive’s hiding spot and what Deborah has done all these years. I want you to lure her out too.”

That was the only reason they let her live.

Jacqueline sneered. “You tried so hard to take away all my savings. I have nothing now, so what’s the point of telling you that? It’s just a matter of time before I die.”

She was trying to guess what they plotting. “I do have all the documents and data from Toxic Hive. Unless you spare my life. I’ll kill myself.”

A clever person would always fight for a way to survive during hardships.

Like a seed on a cliff, she was determined to grow higher and higher no matter how bad the environment was.

It was unfortunate that she stooped so low just for her benefit.

She forsook morality and lost her conscience.

She was inhumane, a mere monster driven by desire.

Sean slapped her again. “In your dreams! You’ve hurt so many people all these years and yet you’re asking us to spare your life? Not a chance! It’s best you come clean with us. Don’t force us to take legal action on you.”

A streak of blood adorned the corner of her lips.

Unlike before, she no longer whined at her brothers. That was an act to maintain her image; a necessary act to gain some benefit.

Since whining would no longer put her in favor, she wouldn’t do it again.

A grin plastered on her face instead. She seemed calm. “Can’t believe you call yourselves righteous when all of you are bullying a woman. Do you even call yourselves a man? No wonder your family is dysfunctional.”

Sean's chest heaved up and down due to anger. "Jacqueline Fordham, do you think that we won't hurt you?"

The biggest difference between humans and beasts was human nature, but not everyone had that.

Jacqueline was one of them.

At that moment, the door opened to reveal a man and a woman.

The handsome man stood tall, but his expression was rigid.

The woman next to him appeared delicate, but her expression expressed the same old numbness.

"Let me do it," Leia suggested.

Jacqueline could be said to be a villainess, but Leia was as bad as she was.

Jacqueline's expression changed when she saw Leia.

Her first victims were here, and she knew how crazy Leia was.

Back when the Fordham family members were the only ones who, knew Aver's illness, Jacqueline drugged him without Leia's knowledge.

Avery was the world to Leia.

In addition to that, Jacqueline had lied to Leia, and that ruined Ethan's family.

With all the resentment piled up, Leia would never let Jacqueline off the hook.

Leia stood in front of the Fordham family, announcing seriously, "Mr.

David, she lied to me so that I would do all those bad things. I've realized my mistakes and would like to make up for them.

"You might take pity on her since you raised her, so why not hand her lover to me? I'll gain the information you want from her."

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1622-An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth; a ruthless person should be handled by another ruthless person.

Jacqueline couldn't believe her ears when Leia requested to have her handed over.

Even if the Fordhams resented her to the bones, they upheld morality.

But Leia was different. She was the most cruel person among the researchers in Toxic Hive.

To make things worse, Jacqueline had a record of harming Avery and lying to her. Leia would never let Jacqueline off the hook that easily.

On top of that, Leia wouldn't show mercy when it came to the interrogation. Jacqueline was dead meat.

"No, Dad! Guys, don't hand me over to her for old times' sake. She's a monster!"

The Fordhams, who were hesitant at first, made up their mind when they noticed how much Leia feared Jacqueline. 1 Wearing a lifeless expression, Leia slowly walked up to Jacqueline.

Jacqueline attempted to escape, but Linus was quick enough to yank her back.

The murderous intent loomed over her.

His towering stature and strong presence overwhelmed her.

With a single swing from him, her body hit the table, causing the documents to scatter on the floor.

Men were born physically stronger than women Her back hurt so much that she couldn't speak.

Linus looked down at her. "Where are you trying to go?"

"I... I..." She couldn't say anything.

Suddenly, her arm stung. Leia had injected a syringe into her!

By the time Jacqueline realized what was going on, the liquid was injected into her body.

"Leia Miller, what was that!"

Leia smirked coldly. "Something that'll make you confess everything that you've done."

Although Leia held a high position in Toxic Hive, Deborah and Jacqueline put their guard up because of her identity.

Aside from some research and work, Leia couldn't access the core secrets of the organization.

Jacqueline couldn't die here. The Fordhams needed a lot of information from her.

There was no way Brandon was unrelated to Deborah's and Jacqueline's long-year plan.

He was missing, and no one could find him.

Linus gave the two bodyguards a look, hinting at them to follow Leia.

It would be easier to gain information from Jacqueline if they employed Toxia Hines method.

Jacqueline was taken away with her face covered,

The Fordham family issue had also finally come to a temporary conclusion? the content is on En.novelxo.com! Read the latest chapter there!

The family members were the only ones left in the meeting room.

David stretched out his arm toward Olivia, and she took his hand. "Dad."

"Sorry for letting someone else take your place for so many years."

She shook her head as she didn't mind it.

David passed a stack of documents to her. "These shares were supposed to belong to Jacqueline. They include part of my and your brothers' shares. I've drafted a share transfer agreement. When the agreement becomes effective, Fordham Group will belong to you."

Jaw going slack, she waved her hands. "Dad, I've never thought of taking over the company. Plus, I don't know much about it either. I—"

"Avery owns a lot of companies. He's in a bad state too. He needs rest.

And you know Troy's condition. Sean has always disliked this kind of thing. This is not only to make up for you, but it's also rightfully yours.

You're my daughter." Then, David glanced at Ethan. "My daughter doesn't have to walk on eggshells for anyone. From now onward, you'll be the heir of Fordham Group. You can do whatever you want. No one can bully you."

Even After Death by Liting Champ Chapter 1623-Olivia's sole wish was to reunite with her real family, nothing more. She didn't expect David to prepare such a huge gift!

She had come so close to death several times in life until this day came, the day she found her real family.

Money and assets didn't appear to be that important compared to family.

Avery stroked her head. Don't see it as a burden. We weren't by your side during your hardest time. We weren't part of your life journey."

Sean hugged her too. "It won't be that way anymore. You have US now, your family."

That was the word she wanted to hear the most-family.

Olivia hugged them back and couldn't fight back her tears anymore.

She had grown stronger, but she couldn't seem to control her emotions these days.

Things were not as bad as they seemed.

Quietly, Linus watched the family reunion. He was genuinely happy for Olivia.

Although she had reunited with the Heath family back in Aldenvine, Linus could tell that she held a regret that couldn't seem to go away.

Now, it seemed like the regret wouldn't weigh her down as much as before.

David's decision to cut ties with the Fordham family was out of everyone's expectations.

Although things, including Linus' arrival, were going according to his plan, he didn't expect his wife to be dragged into this.

David used every connection of his to look for her.

However, Brandon had been using a fake identity the entire time and had left no trace behind. So there was no clue to lead them to him.

Their only hope was Jacqueline.

How much did she know?

She was locked up in an abandoned mansion.

The Fordhams still had to clean up Henley's mess, so Olivia left the company first.

In the car, she was unusually quiet.

After officially reuniting with her family, her emotions returned to tranquility.

There was even a tinge of sorrow.

Someone held her hand. "Something on your mind?" asked Ethan with Willow on his lap.

Olivia watched the fleeting scenery outside the window, muttering, "In the past, I thought that my life would be complete as long as I could survive. When I survived and met the Heath family, I wanted more.

"I wanted to find my real family. And I've found them. They treat me well, but I don't feel as happy as I should be."

"Are you afraid?" Ethan was the person who knew her the most.

She nodded. "I thought rainbows would come after the rain and would reach the top of the mountain as long as I put in effort. But there are higher mountains after this one. The future is becoming unsettling to me."

Ethan pulled her into his arms. "It is scary that we don't know a thing about the future, but that's the same reason to be hopeful. It's those mountains that force us to move forward and become stronger. By the time you look back at the past, you'll realize that you've surmounted them.

Olivia interlaced her fingers with his and hummed in response.

"Don't be afraid, Liv. You won't be alone in the future any more you have, me, the kids, and your family by your side."

Willow placed her hand on theirs. Her determined eyes were assuring Olivia that she would be by her side too.

Olivia, who was at a loss in the face of the future, grew confident as she looked at them.

"I'll find Mom," she swore.

"Don't worry. Brandon loves her to the bones. She's safe for now. We still have time," Ethan assured.

"Before this, I have to settle the score with Jacqueline."

