

Married At First Sight Chapter 3230-Matthias folded the newspaper, put it on the coffee table, and said to Rosella, "You also specifically asked the kitchen to add food. He came back alone. What kind of food should be added? It would be good if there was a bowl of rice and a plate of vegetables for him to eat."

Rosella put down the brocade box, and she said, "I didn't know he was the only one coming back. Mom said he was coming back for lunch. I thought Abby was here. They had dinner and drinks together last night. He will bring her back to us today."

Rosella didn't even think the jewelry her son gave her tasted good anymore.

The daughter-in-law was the most fragrant.

Evan: "I'm leaving now. I'm going back to the company."

With that said, he stood up and prepared to leave.

Matthias said to him again, "Your mother asked the kitchen to add more food, and the dog can't finish it. You help to finish it before leaving."

Evan: "..."

This means that if the dog they raise at home can finish eating, they will not leave him there to eat.

A son who doesn't bring his girlfriend home is worse than a dog!

"Okay, let's go eat."

Rosella invited Matthias and Evan to have dinner together.

Evan stood up and walked with Rosella, saying as he walked, "I thought I was really not allowed to eat. I am worse than our dog. Forget it this time. Next time Abby comes over, you must bring her back for dinner so that your dad and I can meet her. In case we meet her on the road, we won't know who she is."

Evan said, "Mom, I don't like Abby."

Rosella glared and said, "Your grandma chose her for you. You don't like her? You don't like her. What have you been tossing these past few months? Your brother has been tossing it for two or three months, and your sister-in-law has moved.”

Camryn initially refused to accept Callum because she felt that she was blind and not worthy of him, so she kept rejecting him. In fact, she had already been tempted.

Evan sat down at the dining table and said, “My brother and I are different. My brother hasn’t captured my sister-in-law in three months.”

Rosella followed and sat down. “Isn’t Abby good? It shouldn’t be. Your grandma chose her for you. No matter how bad she is, she won’t be too bad. Don’t be too picky. Think about it; you are not very good. How many of your brothers are there? You are neither the best nor the worst, just in the middle. So, don’t be too picky, and trust your grandma.”

Evan said helplessly, “Mom, I can’t explain emotional matters. If I don’t like her, I just don’t like her. It has nothing to do with whether she is good or not. No matter how good she is, I still don’t like her.

Grandma has already said, Don’t care about me. You can do whatever I want, as long as you are satisfied with the woman I bring back in the future. Mom, my taste is not bad; don’t worry, I will bring your daughter-in-law during the New Year next year, at the latest. If it goes quickly, I might be able to bring her back to meet my parents during my next summer vacation.”

Evan thought that he was good enough, and that not many people could surpass him.

When he and the fox met for the first time, their mutual impression was not very good, but later they got along well, and he was confident that he could win the fox.

Rosella glared at Evan for a long time, then sighed, “Since your grandma doesn’t care about you anymore and your parents can’t care about you, let it be up to you. After all, you are the one who has to live, and you have to like it. A marriage without feelings—it’s hard to stay in business. It would be too hard to spend your whole life with someone you don’t like. Just be happy.”

Grandma May and Rosella were both unable to control Evan.

“Evan, you said you gave up being with Abby. What did your grandma say?”
Rosella felt that her mother-in-law was too talkative and did not behave like her mother-in-law.
