Married At First Sight Chapter 3304-Even a simple late-night snack could make people hungry just by looking at it.

Elora didn't eat dinner and only ate a few snacks to fill her stomach. She was already hungry at this moment.

"Have you eaten yet?" Elora asked Tatum while moving her chopsticks.

Although Tatum was her chef, she had a little more respect for Tatum because she knew that he also had his own career.

She felt that Tatum was already considered a successful person in his career, and he was still learning. In order to cook, he even gave up his identity as the boss and came all the way to work for her as a chef.

And he was able to quickly adapt to the role of chef, and he was respectful to her.

Elora dared to say that Tatum would have greater potential in the future.

This man's potential was unexpected.

That's why she would tease Tinsley from time to time. If Tinsley really liked Tatum, she would be happy to bring them together.

Tatum was really excellent and good-looking too.

Tatum and Tinsley were a good match for each other.

"I've already eaten," Tatum said.

While Elora went to handle business, he cooked himself a delicious dinner. After eating and drinking, he also walked around the hotel to familiarize himself with the environment.

It wasn't until after nine o'clock in the evening that he started preparing midnight snacks for Elora.

Elora told him that she could return to the hotel at around 11 o'clock in the evening. Now that he has eaten, Elora no longer invites him to have supper together.

Tatum didn't stay here either. He walked out silently and sat in the living room.

After Elora finished eating, he cleared the table.

Elora ate very quickly, and she looked very good while eating. This was the cultivation of all ladies.

“Tatum, you can come in and clean up.” Elora came out of the dining hall.

Tatum responded respectfully, got up, and went in to clear the table, clean the dishes and chopsticks in the kitchen, and clean up the kitchen to make sure it was clean.

He just came out of the kitchen.

Who was Elora texting?

Tatum walked over, stopped beside her, and said warmly, “Miss, I will go out if you have no other instructions.”

Elora said, “It’s okay; you can go back and rest.”

Tatum asked, “Will breakfast be served at the normal time tomorrow?”

Elora hummed. She said, “Time remains unchanged. Tatum, thank you for your hard work today.”

Tatum still replied warmly, “It’s not hard; this is what I should do.”

When he went on a business trip with her, he only needed to be responsible for her three meals a day.

At Ormond’s house, he also had to prepare three meals for Elora’s family. Sometimes people from other houses came over to eat, and he had to do more.

Fortunately, someone helped prepare the ingredients; otherwise, he would be so tired that he couldn’t straighten his waist.

“The eldest lady, please go to bed early. I wish you a sweet dream. Good night.”

After saying good night to Elora, Tatum walked out.

The two female bodyguards guarding the door of the suite closed the door of the suite after Tatum came out.

Elora locked the door from the inside.

The room where Tatum and the two male bodyguards lived was on the lower floor, which was a family room. He slept in a small room by himself, and the two bodyguards were left to sleep in the two beds in the large room. Although they lived in the same room, the three of them rarely interacted with each other.

Elora didn't like people who talked too much. All of her bodyguards only worked and didn't like to talk.
