

Chapter 1032 , Heading To The Ministry Of Defense

At the crack of dawn, Liam and Julie had meticulously packed their belongings, preparing for their journey to Invone.

Julie, who had spent the entire night fretting over Asher, looked visibly worn out from the weight of her sadness.

Nonetheless, Julie's resolve remained unwavering as she insisted on joining Liam to seek justice for her late mother, Yesenia, and to save Asher.

At first, Liam had planned to venture to Invone on his own, yet Julie's determination left him with no alternative but to bring her along.

"Liam, what's our next move?" Julie inquired eagerly.

Liam, with a strategy already formulated, responded, "First, we'll make our way to the Ministry of Defense. I intend to use our official influence to pinpoint Asher's whereabouts."

"I'm hoping we can negotiate with them. Achieving a resolution through diplomacy would be ideal," Liam added optimistically.

Despite Liam's words, a glimmer of doubt lingered in his mind.

Nevertheless, fueled by hope, Liam was determined to persevere, knowing that Asher's fate hung in the balance.

Right before their departure, Shayla approached them with unwavering determination, declaring, "Wait! I'm coming with you two!"

Liam cast a quick glance at Shayla upon hearing her declaration.

Though no longer as impulsive as he had been yesterday, Liam firmly denied Shayla's request, instructing her, "Remain here. Do not leave."

Julie also said, "This doesn't concern you, Shayla. It's a family matter. I understand your eagerness to assist, but Invone is extremely dangerous. Joining us would only lead to peril. Liam and I have reconciled with the possibility of not returning. It's best for you to steer clear of this."

However, Shayla remained resolute, reiterating, "I've made up my mind. I love Liam, and his affairs concern me deeply. Please stop trying to dissuade me. I am adamant about accompanying you there. I even had plans for Asher to address me as 'Auntie!'"

Liam and Julie shared a meaningful look, preparing to dissuade Shayla from her impulsive decision once again.

Yet, Shayla's patience wore thin this time as she frowned and retorted, "Why the delay? I'm ready to go, and now you're hesitating?"

Liam, recognizing Shayla's unyielding resolve, shook his head in resignation and agreed to her participation.

"Fine. Another ally will bolster our efforts. Shayla, remember, this mission is perilous. Proceed with caution," Liam said.

Shayla nodded in acknowledgment, signaling her comprehension.

Subsequently, the trio embarked on their journey to the Ministry of Defense.

Several hours later, they reached the Ministry of Defense.

Although the Minister of Defense showed courtesy to Liam, the congress members were less than welcoming, mocking, "General Liam, your commitments have been long overdue, and there's been little progress. What have you been occupied with?"

Disregarding the jeers from the congress members, Liam turned to the Minister with earnestness. "Minister, I seek your assistance. Can you apply pressure on the Ducan family using official means? I implore you to request the return of my son, who has been taken by the Ducan family, as a member of a government."

Just as the Minister was about to reply, the congress members mocked Liam once more. "We thought you might be of assistance in resolving our current crisis. Alas, it turns out you've failed even to safeguard your
