

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1628

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1628-Olivia looked at Jacqueline with a disdainful smile. "Scared? I thought you didn't feel fear. I won't kill you, Jacqueline Fordham. I'll make you watch your hard won prizes vanish from your sight. You should know how it feels like to be at your wit's end."

"You can't do this to me, Olivia! This is torture! This is against humanity!"

"Humanity? Why should I treat you like a human?" Olivia yanked Jacqueline over by the wrist.

Jacqueline couldn't break free due to the chains, and she was barely breathing from Leia's torture before Olivia's arrival. All she could do was to watch Olivia inject the cold liquid into her arm. The syringe soon emptied.

"I wanted to kill you even before I found out that you were my enemy." Olivia flung away Jacqueline's arm.

Olivia pinched Jacqueline's chin. "I know you're smart. Family is not the thing you care about the most. Love is not it either. It's an abundance of wealth and power. You worked so hard just to escape from poverty, that poor place you were born in.

"It surely wasn't easy to afford all those expensive clothes, was it? Well, I'll strip them off you one by one. Let's start with your face."

Olivia's fingers traced along Jacqueline's cheek. "Have you forgotten what your face looked like? You've used my face for so long. It's alright. I'll help you remember."

"You don't know what I looked like in the past!" Jacqueline barked.

"Oh really?" Olivia took her phone out. "Let me show you something interesting."

They were photos of the young Jacqueline. However, the last few photos were that of the face of a stranger.

At first glance, those were Jacqueline's biological parents from the mountains!

There were photos of her two younger brothers and elder sister too! Jacqueline recognized them at a single glance.

"They live in a rural area. How did you find them?" She was dubious.

“There are no secrets in this world. You’re so cruel, Jacqueline. You could’ve let them live a good life, but you didn’t. Your younger brothers have never seen the world outside those mountains. They’re so poor that they can’t find themselves a wife.”

Jacqueline scowled. “You want me to feed them? No way. Those two old fogeys almost strangled me to death because I was born a girl! Since they wanted a son that much, I wanted to see how my brothers could make a footing in society.

I’m not as generous as you are.”

“I’m glad to hear that.” Olivia showed the last photo. “This photo is AI-generated with the photos of your younger self and your family. I’ll contact the best plastic surgeon for you. You should look like yourself for once and for all.”<sup>1</sup> Compared to getting killed, seeing her old photos was more torturing to Jacqueline.

“Please don’t do this to me. Don’t you want to know where Deborah is? I’ll tell you! I’ll tell you everything!”

To deal with someone like Jacqueline, stripping her mask off worked better than physical torture.

Willow pointed at the sky through the window. A swarm of bugs flew at full pelt, forming a black moving cloud in the sky.

“Great. Other than that, I want to know about Brandon. Where did he hide my mother?”

As soon as she said that, Olivia heard the commotion outside.

Due to the distance and the small size of the bugs, Olivia couldn’t discern what kind of bugs they were.

“What’s happening out there?”

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1629-Olivia recalled Willow’s words about the spell on Jacqueline. Strangely enough, Jacqueline was all tied up. She couldn’t do anything to manipulate the bugs.

“No. She’s not a witch. It’s because of the spell!” Olivia figured it out.

Willow nodded in agreement.

“Hurry! Tell those people to come inside”

Jacqueline didn’t pose that much threat, but the spell on her could work as a tracker. The witch could track down her whereabouts accurately.

Those densely packed bugs surely weren't a good sign. The other party might intend to exterminate all of them. Once the guards were killed, the other party could take away Jacqueline easily.

In the past, Olivia might have thought such tales were a myth and wondered how scary a bunch of bugs could be. However, her experience told her otherwise.

The village where she and Willow once stayed was an isolated residence of the minority community that had remained hidden from the world for a thousand years. The villagers were most skilled in spells. Willow was born after a difficult labor, in which Olivia nearly lost her life due to severe bleeding.

In addition to Willow's green eyes, the villagers believed that she was a divine gift. When Willow was born, the villagers cast a banned spell to protect her. That was why poison and spells would never fear her.

Furthermore, they would teach Willow spells during their free time as the village was located in nature.

Olivia tried to learn, but she didn't have the talent for it.

Although she couldn't learn it, she had witnessed how powerful a spell could be.

A simple spell could basically manipulate a human.

The legendary killer that topped the killer charts was said to be invisible. Even without the use of weapons, he never left a trace whenever he murdered someone.

Olivia had enough reasons to believe that he could cast spells too, but he was mysterious. His origin was a mystery, and he rarely accepted missions. Although it had been years since he last accepted missions, stories of him spread like legend within the circle. 1 After knowing all this, Olivia would never underestimate a puny bug anymore.

It was no wonder Jacqueline was fearless. She knew that someone would come to save her!

"How about I impart some knowledge, Olivia? Those bugs are cultivated to kill people. They've been fed with a thousand kinds of poisons since they were young. Every part of them is poisonous. Once they enter a human's body, the person will instantly die of poisoning.

"Hiding in a building won't help. As long as I'm here, they'll find a way to intrude on the building no matter how small the crevice is. I wonder how many crevices we can find in this run-down mansion?"

She caught a breath before continuing, "They're not only very poisonous, but they're intrusive too. They'll squeeze their way into every hole they see. From the nose, ears, and mouth, they'll find their way to get to the human brain and heart.

"Have you seen anyone having their heart eaten up? I'll show you how it works today."

Olivia rushed out of the room.

Willow could cast spells, but she didn't bring any cursed items along with her.

Olivia shouted, "Get inside the building! Don't touch the bugs! You'll die!"

None of the people outside retreated.

Ethan had realized the problem much earlier on. His back remained straight despite the urgency of the situation.

"Ethan, do you hear me? Those are trained cursed bugs! Just one of them is enough to kill you! Tell your men to retreat!" she urged.

He flashed her a gentle smile instead. "My men don't have that option, Liv."

At the same time, a line of people saluted professionally. "We're ready, sir."

Olivia noticed that many of them were geared with flamethrowers.

With a single order from Ethan, the flamethrowers projected streams of flame into the air, reaching those bugs in the air.

Those bugs were burned and fell onto the ground.

Olivia pointed at the ground of toasted bugs. "I think... your trump card is gone."

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1630-Things became awkward. Now, Jacqueline felt as humiliated as she felt confident a while ago.

Similar to Olivia, Deborah and Jacqueline had never gotten involved in the army, hence their fixed mindset to fight spells with spells. Little did they know, flamethrowers could put an end to those bugs. The whole process took less than a minute. It was so quick that Jacqueline was left dumbfounded.

She had personally witnessed how powerful those bugs could be. Yet, it didn't take long and much to exterminate them!

Jacqueline became agitated. "You're going to get it from me, Olivia!"

Olivia was unbothered. "Enough. Your reinforcements have been completely annihilated. You'd better be honest with me or I'll put you on the operating table." Feeling defeated, Jacqueline leaned against the wall. After contemplation, she slowly said, "Fine. There's not much I can tell you about Brandon. He's a mystery. He works with US simply to achieve his temporary objectives.

"It was kinda funny. Before he kidnapped Mom, I had always thought that he had the same objectives as us-to take over Fordham Group."

Olivia growled, "Don't call her 'Mom'! She treated you so well all these years! As long as you give US more clues, the higher chance there is for us to save her." Jacqueline added, "He's a genius doctor. He worked with Toxic Hive to invent antiviral drugs. They're effective but at the cost of serious side effects. People can grow dependent on them, so those drugs were banned.

"At the end of the day, it turned out that he was skillful in making poisons! His body is filled with all types of poison. Every time I meet him, I tend to avoid him as much as possible.

"Okay, I've already told you everything that I know. If you want to capture Deborah, there's more reason for you to keep me alive. You need me to stay in touch with her and catch them all."

"Are you serious about this? She's your adoptive mother." Olivia doubted.

Jacqueline coldly said, "All I know is every human is selfish. She only sees me as a chess piece and nothing more. I think the same of her too. If I help you, could you spare my life? Deborah and Brandon have something going on between them. I bet she knows something that I don't.

"Olivia, I know I was ruthless toward you guys in the past. But put yourself in my shoes. I think you'd make the same decision I did. If I hadn't helped Deborah, I wouldn't have become a subject of her experiment. I didn't have a choice."

"If you help US big time, I won't let you die that tragically. Tell me, where is she?"

"Before Deborah left, she told me to come along. But I didn't because I couldn't bring myself to give up an everything & barely earned after so many years. I cut contact with them one-sidedly, so I don't know their whereabouts for now. But I can contact the people around her. That's how we'll track her down."

Noticing Olivia's hesitation, Jacqueline added, "I'm not trying to trick you. I don't have @ @haic@here. I want to live, and know that you're a want to live, and I know that you're a kind person. Please, I don't have anything anymore. Trust me just this one time."

Olivia responded.

"Fine. Last question, who's the one practicing witchcraft?"

"So, there'll be a second wave?"

"Yes, but I don't think it'll be those bugs again."