

Even After Death by Lilting Champ

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1631-A shrill howl interrupted the conversation from outside.

Olivia heard the bells ringing, and Willow ran outside.

Some of the bodyguards suddenly sprawled onto the ground.

Ethan carried Willow. "Run!"

She gestured, assuring him that she wasn't afraid of this. She freed herself from his embrace.

Leia didn't know much about spells. However, the fact that those people collapsed out of the blue surely had something to do with spells.

In fact, those bugs were just a feint. Other cursed bugs were used while Olivia's party was distracted.

Ethan was used to using military force in confrontation. However, their radar could only detect drones, not bugs. Some bugs were so tiny that they could enter a human body and end someone's life without them knowing.

It might sound like a myth, but those who had experienced it before knew how scary cursed bugs could be.

Willow hurriedly rushed to those who had fainted. They all showed similar symptoms-foam around their mouths, eyes that had rolled back, twitching bodies, and green lips. She slit her palm without hesitation, feeding the affected her blood.

Her blood could neutralize many kinds of poisons. She saved Ethan with that before.

Leia was dumbstruck. Could a four-year-old child really do that?

Willow's execution was neat, and she did not show a sign of panic. She didn't lose her cool at all.

"Watch out!" Ethan suddenly pushed Leia away. A little green bug was flying in her direction, but his efforts were in vain. When it fell to the ground, its color matched with that of the ground.

"Better watch out, guys! These bugs can camouflage! Don't let it bite you!"

These men had been following Ethan through thick and thin. They had slogged through the most dangerous artillery field; hiked through thick woods; and fought against the strongest mercenaries in the world.

But none of them had ever dealt with bugs!

On top of that, they couldn't detect the bugs with the radars. Those bugs might bite them the moment they put their guard down.

Willow was the only person who knew how to curse bugs, but she was busy saving those who had been bitten. It was a competition against death. The medicines wouldn't work if they were delayed any longer.

By the time Olivia noticed that something wasn't right, it was already too late.

There was no point running outside.

Jacqueline let out an ominous smile.

It was a trick!

Jacqueline was simply trying to buy some time by promising that she would confess everything. Like those cursed bugs, it was a mere distraction! Perhaps the deadliest bug had already entered the room.

Humans were born with a sixth sense. The more dangerous the situation was the more heightened their sixth sense would be.

Olivia sensed that something was watching her in the dark, something extremely dangerous.

Its sheer stare gave her goosebumps! A chill ran down her spine. She didn't dare to budge an inch.

She didn't know what the thing was, but it put her in a fight or flight mode.

Jacqueline was cursed. As long as the curse wasn't lifted the enemy!

would be able to send over waves of cursed bugs again and again.

"Still trying to deny reality? No one can save you today. There's a Deathsting Bug behind you with hundreds of poisons for more than ten years. It knows how to read people too."

That would not be good for Olivia.

Jacqueline, whose hands were still chained, grinned at Olivia. "Olivia, I win."

"Not so fast."

Even After Death by Lilting Champ Chapter 1632-Despite her frail state, Jacqueline was over the moon at the thought that the person she hated the most was going to die. Ever since their lives were switched, peace could never settle between them. Only one out of two could survive.

Jacqueline knew how heavy the consequences were considering what she had done. The worst case possible would be her dying a tragic death.

Either way, it wouldn't make much difference. It would just be death.

Even if she beat Olivia, she would have to deal with the Fordhams, the Heaths, and the Millers. There was nowhere else she could escape to. Everything was going as she had planned. She intentionally promised Olivia to confess everything to buy some time.

Meanwhile, Olivia didn't dare to act recklessly. She focused intently.

There were many types of spells, and different people could cultivate different species of poisonous bugs. Still, regardless of the species, the murder could be committed only if the bug touched human skin.

As long as she could dodge before the bug touched her skin, she would be fine.

Olivia was in full defense mode. Her face, arms, and neck were exposed to the air.

"Oh really?" She remained calm, staring into Jacqueline's eyes.

Suddenly, Olivia sprinted forward. Now, her only and the best shield was Jacqueline! Before the bug flew toward her, she quickly grabbed Jacqueline to block the bug's way. Right then, Olivia finally had a glimpse of Deathsting Bug's appearance.

It was a bug with an appearance of beyond scientific knowledge. Its body was built of six wings eight legs and two antennae. Two fangs were hanging from its big mouth, and its head was the size of a baby's fist. That pair of fly-like eyes shone in a glossy green color.

Olivia had never seen such a creature before. The mere sight of it was gross.

As the Deathsting Bug bumped into Jacqueline's stomach, Olivia quickly grabbed a torture tool prepared by Leia and flung it in the bug's direction.

The bug hit the ground. When it was going to fly up again, she stomped it without holding back.

Green liquid splattered across the floor, and the room began to reek of rotten smell. It was repulsive.

Olivia almost fainted because of the smell. She wondered if the enemy had fed it with hundreds of stink bugs. The foul smell was way too intense!

The sound of the bell rang again. Willow and Ethan rushed into the room hurriedly.

“Liv, are you alright?”

Olivia lifted her foot. The bug’s blood was glued to her shoe. Even though it didn’t touch her skin, she felt awful.

“I’m fine. I just took care of a big bug,” she cooed.

Ethan sighed in relief. “Thank goodness. You got me there.”

Willow came up to her, gesturing, “Don’t move. It’s poisonous.”

Common poison wouldn’t scare Olivia, but it could be rare poison. It was best to be cautious.

“Okay, got it.” Olivia was being very careful. After making sure thabiti wouldn’t come into contact with her skin, she let her foot down.

Ethan called someone over to fetch a full set of clothing and shoes for her.

That kind of bug was definitely fatally poisonous. Just a single touch might expose one to danger.

He had a bad feeling about it. “Liv, what’s wrong?”

Her complexion looked bad.

She could feel it. There was something else on her neck!

She didn’t know what bug it was and didn’t dare to remove it. She stammered, “I…”

Before she could finish, her neck stung, and she lost consciousness.

“Liv!”

Even After Death Chapter 1633 by Olivia Fordham And Ethan Miller-Ethan: “Liv!!”

Olivia fainted so suddenly that Ethan couldn't register the situation yet. All he could do was make assumptions. She had been the enemy's target since the beginning.

Willow ran toward Olivia's side. The intense ringing bell showed how anxious she was.

Ethan darted to reach Olivia. He didn't know spells, so he didn't know what to do at this time. All he could do was stand right there. He tried to touch her with his hands, but he soon withdrew them.

"Willow, w-what happened to your mother?" His voice trembled in concern. A pale-faced Olivia lay on the floor as though she was sleeping. While Willow was still checking on Olivia, Jacqueline suddenly blurted from behind, "Stop wasting your time. Olivia's gonna be gone for good!"

She could've just stayed silent. Now that she had spoken up, Ethan turned his head and glared at her. Before she could react, he grabbed her neck and pinned her against the wall. T

The iron chains rattled as the back of her head hit the wall. In an instant, she felt dizzy.

When she opened her eyes and met Ethan's bloodshot eyes full of hatred, Jacqueline knew that if she didn't speak up, she would be dead.

"Ethan, if you kill me, Olivia will never come back!" The Deathsting Bug that she was infected with and mine are both connected heart bugs, and there is only one person in the world who can solve it."

When Jacqueline said this, she clearly felt that Ethan's hand on her neck slowed down a little. She licked her bloodstained lips and continued to explain.

"The connected heart bug is also called the love bug. It was originally developed by Ashbluff women to punish their betrayed partners. This bug has been changed. Putting it in two people is equivalent to sharing lifespans, and everyone will prosper or suffer together."

"If you kill her, the bug will also explode. In addition, the bug in Olivia's body will also explode and die when it senses the death of the other party. Do you know what will happen after it dies?"

Ethan said viciously, "What!"

Jacqueline continued, "This Deathsting Bug has just entered her body. As time goes by, it will grow bigger. It carries hundreds of eggs in its body, which will hatch within 24 hours. Once it bursts, these eggs will become man-eating bugs, eating brains, hearts, and all the organs in her body until her beauty is dead and there is no cure in the world!"

Jacqueline's narration alone made people feel disgusted. Ethan was furious, slapped her face hard, and said, "You are the one who should die!"

Blood flowed from the corner of her mouth, but Jacqueline raised her mouth and said, "So what if it's me? I finally got out of that mountain. I tell you, as long as I can survive, I will pay any price, regardless of the consequences.

Isn't Olivia destined to be a daughter of destiny? Let her die with someone like me. I don't know if you are willing to let her die! Either live together or die together!"

Jacqueline had gone crazy, and Ethan was not far from crazy. He and Olivia have finally come to this point.

Olivia had gone through so much pain in the past, and now she should live well, but why was God so cruel to let her go to this point!

Ethan's pupils lost focus, and his mind was full of only one thought: to kill Jacqueline!

It was Jacqueline who was the source of the trouble! She was the one who messed up everything.

Jacqueline said, "Haha, Olivia, you have come to this day, and I won't suffer any loss if I drag you to take the blame for me. If we die, we die together!"

A gun was suddenly placed on her forehead, and her laughter stopped abruptly. "Then go and die!"

Even After Death Chapter 1634 by Olivia Fordham And Ethan Miller-Leia grabbed Ethan's hand and said, "Brother, you can't be impulsive. The current situation of the eldest sister-in-law is still unclear. You can only leave her alive!"

Ethan looked at Olivia, who was still lying on the ground. He was so angry that the veins on the back of his hand were exposed. He held the gun tightly, wishing he could shoot Jacqueline now.

This crazy woman!

Seeing his hand fall down little by little, Jacqueline knew that she had won the bet.

She wanted to escape, and the most important part was Olivia.

How could anyone hurt the baby that everyone cared about?

The more Ethan hated her, the more he would leave her. But now he could do nothing and could only watch Willow check on Olivia.

Willow made a gesture: "Mom is not in danger of life for the time being."

Ethan: "Can you be sure whether what she said is true or false?"

Willow shook her head and said, "I can't tell what kind of bug mom was infected with by the naked eye. What I can be sure of now is that she is fine for the time being."

Even so, Willow's face was full of worry.

There were many types of bugs, and each bug has different habits. No matter what kind of bug it is, it takes time to hatch.

So she made a prompt decision: "Go back to the village."

Now the only person who could help Olivia was Wendy, from the isolated little mountain village.

Ethan: "Okay, I'll have someone arrange a helicopter right away."

Willow pointed at Jacqueline and said, "Take her with us."

Although Jacqueline didn't understand sign language, she could roughly understand what Willow meant.

As Ethan got closer and closer, a look of fear appeared on Jacqueline's face, she said. "Where are you taking me? Ethan, I tell you, the best way now is for you to listen to me and let me go obediently, so that Olivia can save her life; otherwise, she..."

Leia stuffed a cloth ball directly into her mouth. No one knew what it was used for before, and it smelled extremely fishy.

The spoiled Jacqueline almost vomited on the spot.

"Willow, are there any poisonous bugs here?"

Willow shook her head. "I'm here; no poisonous bug dares to move."

Willow regrets it now. If she hadn't left Olivia at that time, Olivia would not have been attacked by the poisonous bug.

Facing Willow's self-blaming expression, Ethan picked her up with heartache and said, "It has nothing to do with you; there is no need to blame yourself; mom will be fine."

Jacqueline only then knew Willow's true identity. Judging from her age, she was actually the child born during the time when Olivia was suffering from cancer.

She wanted to say that Olivia was a lunatic! But at this moment, she couldn't say anything and was thrown into the helicopter.

There was not even a seat, and she was thrown on the ground casually, like a sandbag with no self-esteem.

Olivia's accident happened too hastily, and no one knew what this poisonous bug would become.

If it was delayed for a while, the situation would change. Ethan left immediately and didn't care about the Fordhams's affairs.

It's just that, flying from one country to another, crossing the ocean, and passing through some airspace, he needed to report in advance.

Even if he did an expedited treatment, it would be twenty hours later when he arrived at the small village.

Willow accompanied Olivia throughout the whole process. The wound on her palm had been bandaged. Basically, she didn't eat or drink much, and she kept guarding Olivia, fearing that something would happen.

Until they passed the familiar Miasma forest, Willow picked a kind of leaf in advance and let them put it under their noses, and then they easily entered the forest.

Willow played the flute, and soon a huge body appeared in the forest.

Even After Death Chapter 1635 by Olivia Fordham And Ethan Miller-Hearing the familiar voice, the big red snake crawled very fast.

Even though Brent and Kelvin had seen this snake before, they were still a little creepy when they saw it for the first time.

Its huge body was like a small mountain, and its tongue was even more creepy.

Especially when the vertical pupil looked at the person, Brent felt that he was about to go see his great-grandmother.

It was also the first time that Leia saw such a big snake, and it was poisonous at first glance.

The strange thing was that the people traveling with Willow did not mean to hide, but she took a few steps forward.

"Be careful!" Leia subconsciously wanted to hold Willow. But she saw that the giant snake actually lowered its head obediently.

It was so huge, but it was willing to crawl in front of Willow.

Willow raised her hand and touched it, as if saying, Long time, no see.

Leia had experienced a lot in her life, but it was the first time she had seen something so outrageous, and her eyes were straight.

Willow sat on the giant snake and gestured to everyone, "Let's go."

Olivia's bug couldn't be delayed.

As for Jacqueline, she was tired and hungry, with cotton stuffed in her mouth and her hands bound. She had no choice but to follow them into the strange forest.

The small village was the same as always, without the bustling cities outside.

Earth-shaking changes.

Even after another five or ten years, it would still be the most primitive and simple.

Wendy, with gray hair, was drying herbs in the yard.

Willow ran towards her quickly. Hearing the familiar sound of bells, Wendy put down the angelica in her hand.

"Willow, I knew you would definitely come to see me when you are on vacation. I miss you so much." Wendy was in good health and picked up Willow.

Willow didn't bother to reminisce with her, and she quickly used sign language to tell her that her mother was in trouble.

"What's wrong with Liv?" Wendy's face changed drastically. With Olivia's current medical skills, she would not take the initiative to come if it wasn't for an emergency.

Ethan's voice entered the yard first: "Liv has been poisoned by a poisonous bug."

He lowered his head and glanced at his watch. "It's been almost a day, Madam Wendy; please take a look at her; some people say that the bug in her body is the Deathsting Bug."

Upon hearing the name, Wendy frowned even tighter. "Really? If it's this kind of bug, it will be difficult to deal with."

Ethan: "We can't be sure for the time being; you have to come and see what kind of bug she has."

Wendy said, "You carry her to the room; I will treat her right away."

Ethan quickly entered the room holding Olivia, and Wendy ordered with a cold face, "Willow, stay here. Everyone should stay outside the house, and no one is allowed to come in without my permission."

"Yes."

Although Ethan was anxious, for the safety of Olivia, he quickly retreated outside the door and stood by the door without saying a word.

Leia, Brent, and others were watching Jacqueline. Seeing that she looked ugly, they pulled the cloth ball out of her mouth.

After a burst of dry heaves, Jacqueline said weakly, "Water, give me water."

She hadn't drunk a sip of water for nearly a day.

Brent got angry when he saw her. It was not easy for Ethan to catch up with Olivia, but she caused them to part ways with each other again.

Brent scooped a large spoonful of water with a wooden ladle and splashed it directly on Jacqueline's face. "Drink enough."

Jacqueline coughed repeatedly after being choked, but Brent still felt it was not enough, so he splashed her again as a vent. "Is that enough?"

"Stop!"