

Chapter 1145 Traitor Of The Company

Bess, unable to contain her excitement, coughed and yelled, "Do not freak out. I have faith that Levi will be here. Whatever you do, do not make a move until he gets here."

Xzavier scoffed at her after hearing her words.

This woman was great at fooling people. How could Levi show up? He might have died already.

While Xzavier paid the man with the broken finger a large amount of money, he never heard from him again after the job was done. He wondered if the man was fooling around somewhere.

But Xzavier could only swear quietly to himself and didn't dare to call the man.

That man was crazy and had killed many people.

Also, Xzavier doubted that Levi would make it out alive while being pursued by that crazed guy.

He did not have much tolerance for the workers' resistance and decided to speed up the process of acquisition.

Xzavier frowned and glared at an accountant of Sky Film and Television Company.

He had bribed the accountant.

Henry Lane, the accountant, said loudly, "Our company has been running out of money for quite some time now. Levi asked me to keep it a secret. He has gone missing at this time. Maybe he just gave up and ran away."

After saying that, Henry hid in the crowd and snickered at the panic around him.

This morning, Xzavier gave him a considerable amount of money, and he promised to stand out at a crucial moment so that people would freak out.

Even Asho was taken aback by Henry's betrayal. He instantly stood up and explained loudly, "Do not freak out, guys. It's not true. Our company just got a movie project worth billions. I do not see how we could ever run out of money."

Realizing the severity of the situation, Nelly added, "A concert was organized by our company only a few days ago, and the profits are enormous. We don't have to worry about our capital chain because it is in excellent shape."

Now, keeping the employees calm was the most important thing.

If the company's employees believed Xzavier's words, Star Film and Television Company would undoubtedly poach them regardless of whether Xzavier could finalize the purchase.

This was fatal to Sky Film and Television Company, which was just starting out.

Henry jumped on the opportunity and asked, "But he's been away for too long. Why is not he here yet?"

Both Nelly's and Asho's expressions became gloomy.

Trevor was the boss of Sky Film and Television Company. His absence was a major disappointment to them.

Xzavier was laughing and in a good mood. He raised his glasses and put on an air of confidence.

"There is no need for alarm at this time, ladies and gentlemen. Why don't we sign a new contract right now and let me show you the way to a better tomorrow?"

The lawyer made eye contact with Xzavier and pulled a stack of documents out of his briefcase.

If Xzavier could get Trevor's employees to sign the buyout agreement, he would have a legitimate claim to Sky Film and Television Company.

Aeneas smiled and said to Xzavier, "Congratulations."

Westley also congratulated Xzavier.

They acted like Xzavier already had control over Sky Film and Television Company.

Xzavier laughed, dumped a pile of contracts onto the table, and said, "Come on! Please sign these contracts."

Just then, an unexpected voice echoed through the door.

"Sign the contracts? Did I give my permission?"

Xzavier turned around in shock. "Levi!"

Chapter 1146 The Generals

"Damn it! What the hell!"

Xzavier was shocked out of his wits. His eyes widened, and a look of utter disbelief appeared on his face.

"No! No way! How could you..." He suddenly fell silent, but he still looked so nervous.

Xzavier was shaking and felt a lump in his throat. He wanted to pull out his phone and call that broken-fingered man right now.

That bastard had promised to kill Trevor after the banquet. How could Trevor still be safe and sound?

Xzavier thought he was in the middle of a nightmare. He was this close to acquiring the company and now Trevor appeared out of nowhere and stopped him.

"Huh!" Trevor cast an indifferent glance at Xzavier, then he looked around the hall.

Xzavier looked terrified. Aeneas' face was full of regret, while Westley looked gloomy. As for Henry, he was hiding in the crowd.

Traitors were far more detestable than enemies.

When Bess saw Trevor, she could hardly contain her excitement. "You're finally here!"

Trevor nodded. He could feel the expectation in the eyes of Nelly and Asho.

He knew that they were all waiting for him, and were looking forward to a beautiful counterattack.

"Henry Lane, you are fired. Should I find something wrong with the company's financial situation, expect a court summons!" Trevor fired

Henry without hesitation. He hated traitors the most!

Several emotions appeared on Henry's face. Finally, he looked at Trevor with guilty and didn't dare say a word.

"As for you..." Trevor pointed at Xzavier, Aeneas and Westley with a sneer. He moved his wrists as if he was going to beat them. "Get out of here right now! Otherwise, you'll only have yourself to blame for what I might do to you."

Aeneas' and Westley's expressions changed dramatically. They knew that from now on, Trevor counted them as his enemies and there was nothing they could do or say that would change that.

The information provided by Xzavier was wrong! Trevor was completely fine.

For a brief moment, regret flashed across Aeneas' fat face. But soon, it was replaced by a fierce look.

Anyway, he had already fallen out with Trevor, so he might as well support Xzavier. With that in mind, he said in a cold tone, "Don't be so arrogant, you brat. I guarantee you you'll regret not selling your company to Xzavier. No one will be willing to buy your company in the future!"

Aeneas complacently rubbed his protruding belly and added, "To tell you the truth, our department can request the construction of major municipal facilities near your company. Humph! During construction projects, it is very common to cut off water and electricity in a given area. I heard that your company invested a lot in the movie, right? All those funds you invested can go up in smoke. In a short time, your company will go bankrupt. I can tell you that no one will be willing to purchase a bankrupt company! It will be too late to regret!"

Hearing what Aeneas said, Westley laughed and said arrogantly, "That's right! When the water and electricity are cut off, you won't be able to shoot the movie anymore. At that time, it will be useless to kneel and beg me. Either you sell the company now, or you will go bankrupt!"

Trevor was completely unfazed by their threats. Instead, he seemed curious and asked with a faint smile, "Are you saying that you will cut off the electricity and water to my business and drive me out of business?"

At this point, Aeneas abandoned his hypocritical friendliness. He stared straight at Trevor and said bluntly, "Yes! As long as I cut off the electricity and water supply, you won't be able to continue to shoot your movie! It will just be a matter of time before you go bankrupt!"

Hearing that, Trevor just shook his head with a smile.

Aeneas thought that Trevor was going to give in and beg for mercy.

But at this moment, an old but energetic voice came from the company gate. "Who wants to ruin the movie I invested in?"
