

Chapter 226: A VULGAR CONVERSATION AT THE TABLE

A VULGAR CONVERSATION AT THE TABLE

Cane stayed like that for another minutes, until the clamoring sound from outside became even more lively.

But, the moment he let her go, he returned to his usual self. There was no trace of vulnerability on him, he looked as calm as ever and became even more taciturn, as he held Iris's hand and they walked out of the room.

"Stay with me," Cane said, but Iris didn't respond to that.

She stared at his side profile and felt down. Until when he would act everything that happened between them had never happened? He had never mentioned it, neither he acknowledged it.

She was sure that he said something, she could feel it when he was saying something against her shoulder, though she couldn't hear it. She really wanted to know what was that.