

Alpha's curvy bullied human mate

Chapter 122: The End

Nathaniel

Months later

"Roger, Rebecca!"

I saw my mate run over to greet my beta and his mate. They were holding their baby girl who had been born a few months ago.

It was always a celebration when we were all reunited, especially all of us with our children.

"Look, Landon! you've got someone else to play with!" my mate said happily, introducing everyone.

Luther, Luke and Marianne twins were full of energy and now it looked like we had a kids' club. I could see them playing with their fathers, who were in their wolf form.

The little ones climbed on their parents' wolves like horses, and their laughs could be heard from afar.

My little Landon was also playing with them, thrilled to have cousins and two big wolves ready to spoil them with care. Michael kept an eye on them and laughed at their antics.

"They all look wonderful," Roger said, smiling, his eyes fixed on his little girl, the only girl so far.

"The children have to play..." my mate said and came over to me. We were always close, it was inevitable.

"Do you say it for me, my Luna?" I ask, kissing her on the cheek. Penelope looks at the others and explains.

"Nate doesn't let go of the child, he takes him everywhere, he's only a few months old, and he already knows the whole forest and practically everyone in the pack. The kid needs to be a kid, play with the others, not be a mini Alpha," she said smiling, and they all laughed.

"It is never too early for Landon to know how to be a real Alpha, good, kind, strong and who knows his pack and his people," I explained and she came closer to give me a kiss.

"Just like his daddy..." she told me affectionately, and I swear I melted.

It wasn't a lie, my little boy was very special, I already knew it, and for nothing in the world I was going to let him make the mistakes of his father, his grandfather and surely several generations before.

I could already feel his power and the other children could feel it, they were all wolves, especially the twins were always near him when they played, protecting him.

Outside...sometimes we heard rumors of pack fights, and that the fear that Marco and the previous Crimson Fangs had sown was slowly dying out.

Penelope, Roger, and Rebecca had worked wonderfully to make the White Wolves a good pack, and they were beginning to succeed.

Asher came infrequently, Jeremiah gave us details of battles with Marco's remaining allies. Asher still couldn't find his mate, and the problems outside seemed... far away.

We were here in our little paradise, secure and protected. Supported by the king... fear seemed to be a thing of the past.

It had cost us a lot to protect and rebuild. My grandmother told me that there were still problems in the council, but that many recognized that Moonstone, with the support of the White Wolves, was the most powerful of the packs.

We were firm, confident, and knew how to fight. Naomi was a strong and relentless war chief. I used to go to Alpha meetings with Penelope and when the king invited us.

My Penelope had become famous as a human Alpha, practically the only woman with real power in this region, and perhaps in all of them.

That gives us power, however... we don't want to conquer anything else. We just wanted peace and for everyone to find what they wanted.

I wondered if my father and his father had imagined the pack like that. I don't know if they were disappointed that it wasn't powerful in its attack and had everyone under its control.

What I thought it meant to be an Alpha had also changed, and I hoped to live up not to their expectations, but to my own. Those of my Penelope, my son, and the people I love.

We laugh for hours as the children play happily and talk about our quiet life. It's a truly happy place.

"What a day! It's so happy to have all together...." says Penelope, snuggling up next to me as we watched Beauty and the Beast for who knows how many times.

Our home was everything we wanted it to be, the doors always open to everyone. I had my family, my pack, my son, my beautiful Luna, what more could I ask for?

I was always amazed that I really had her by my side, that it wasn't an illusion, that really a lot of bad things had happened, but she was with me... my fated mate. My curvy girl. And she will always be, until the last of my days.

"I think my little Alpha is crying..." she says sleepily.

"Let me take care of him. I think my mom spoiled him too much and now we have to suffer the consequences," I say and she laughed.

"Nate!" she screamed as I carried her to our room and took off her robe, reveling in her curves under her nightgown, my hands running up her leg driving me crazy.

"You are becoming more and more beautiful and seductive, my Luna... I swear to the Goddess that every time I think it's impossible... but no... I'm getting more and more crazy about you" I say panting. She seems to wake up completely and comes closer to give me a kiss that leaves me in the clouds.
