Chapter 5: The dinner

Penelope

We had spent a happy day, but as the time for my date approached, my brothers became more and more strange.

They knew Nicholas, he was a normal guy, but I found him very attractive, and we were just starting to date, nothing serious.

"I heard a noise outside? You too? I think it must be the wolves, did you leave food for them like I told you?" I asked the twins, but they were extremely quiet and nervous.

"I'll go check," I said.

"Penny... maybe you should put a robe over your " Luke said looking at my clothes, I had small shorts and a blouse...maybe a little revealing. Now I heard a growl near the door.

"Damn, they must be starving... " I said, grabbing a robe and coming out with the leftover food. I saw some footsteps but nothing else.

I saw in my closet the dress my friend had mentioned. It was red and velvet and... I thought it accentuated my curves.

"You look... good," my brothers said worriedly. What was wrong with them?

I had my blonde hair pulled to the side and a red lipstick on. As I put on a coat, I gave them my final recommendations.

"Well... Nicholas should be here soon, I hope to be back early," I told them. With Nicholas, I had not yet reached the stage of sleeping together. When I heard a honk.

"Ohh it must be him!" I said happily getting out and as I opened the car door I thought I saw a wolf's eyes and a growl in the dark.

"Hi Penny...you look beautiful," Nicholas said, giving me a kiss on the cheek.

"Thanks, you look great too.... " I replied.

He was a tall, muscular man with light brown hair. He was funny and made me laugh, sometimes he said things without thinking them through.

But overall I thought he was a good catch, and sometimes I wondered what he was doing with a girl like me. A lot had happened and I... I still thought a little too little of myself.

I thought he could get any woman he wanted, but he kept asking me out, so that had to mean something, right?

We went to a restaurant in a nearby town. When I took off my coat, I could see his eyes on my body.

Normally I didn't think of myself as a very attractive woman, and now I didn't know what to make of the appreciative look he gave me.

"It's really nice here, Nicholas.... Thank you."

"You told me you've been working so hard these days, so I thought you deserved a nice date," he said.

I listened to his stories and laughed out loud, Nicholas usually talked a lot about himself and asked a few questions about my life and how I was doing, but at that moment it helped me to think about something else.

"You look really sexy today.... " he said, taking my hand and kissing it, I could see he was looking at my cleavage and I felt nervous.

I had to say ... I didn't like that he had his eyes on that part of my anatomy all night.

I foolishly tried to cover up when suddenly we heard someone clear their throat... and I felt myself turn pale as he stood in front of our table, none other than... Nate.

What the hell?

"Penelope...good to see you..." he said in a loud, husky voice.

He had his fists clenched tightly. I lifted my eyes to look him up and down, unable to help myself. Nate was wearing only a t-shirt and jeans.... But he looked like he'd stepped off a runway.

"Nathaniel... What are you doing here?" I asked in surprise.

I had watched him hold his breath when I mentioned his name, so far I had practically skipped naming him.

"And who are you?" asked Nicholas, looking up and down at the stunningly handsome man who had spoken to me. I had no idea what Nate was going to say, so I went ahead.

"He's an acquaintance from where I used to live," I said nervously.

"I was more than an acquaintance.... " he said, and I looked at him horrified.

But... I realized that something even stranger was going on, and that was that behind my former Alpha were none other than my brothers.

Luke and Luther had embarrassed looks on their faces like they didn't want to be here. I didn't understand what was going on, I had explicitly told them not to come out, they were of age, but they usually paid attention to me.

"What are you doing here?" I asked and now Nate answered.

"I...I was in the mood to eat somewhere else and your brothers were thoughtful enough to recommend this place," he said.

The twins didn't know about this place...so there was only one reason to come here: because my date was here.

"Oh Luke and Luther! My dear Penny won't stop talking about you and your father," Nicholas said with a big smile, looking at my brothers while not letting go of my hand. I could see that Nate's eyes were now resting on our hands together.

"Hello... nice to meet you," they said nervously at the same time, casting furtive glances at their Alpha.

"Gentlemen... this way, you are welcome, please..." the waiter said and placed right next to us.

Everything that can go wrong is going wrong.

"Well, it looks like we have company.... " Nicholas said, and I was about to say let's go somewhere else when the waiter brought our food.

I could see Nate calmly ordering several plates, while my brothers looked as if they wanted the earth to swallow them. I wished the earth would swallow the three of them together.

Although I had the impression that they did not want to be here and that Nate was forcing them... but to what end?

"Where were we? Ah yes! I was telling you that you looked wonderful today... I always see that you take great pains to look your best ... and I think it is very important that a woman knows how to dress, you know ... how to bring out her best features " Nicholas says, and I hear a growl next to me that basically scares me.

We both turn to the next table and I see that Nate is looking at the menu like it's nothing and his mouth is practically shaking. The twins looked anxious.

"Sorry...it was me...I'm starving...and my stomach is growling. You know, I'm in a growth spurt," Luke says, clearly nervous. How could he say such a thing?

"It was me, too...we usually do everything the same way, you know... Twins!" Luther adds with a forced laugh. I look at them in disbelief.

"Guys! What are people going to think, that I don't take good care of you and starve you? we ate a few hours ago!" I whisper annoyed, they look stressed now shaking their heads frantically.

"Of course not!"

"You cook delicious sis!"

"Yes, really wonderful, I've never tasted anything like your food!" they say now, one after the other, while I stare at them lost.

I have practically forgotten my plate as I watch the whole circus go on around me. Now Nate and Nicholas stare at me. They bring the food to the other table as well and my brothers eat like there's no tomorrow.

"Is that true, dear?" asks Nicholas with a smile.

I always thought he liked me in some way, but after this strange date, he seemed more interested in me than ever.

"Well... I do my best..."

"You should definitely cook something for me...preferably breakfast," he says quietly, intending only for me to hear him...but he has no idea that he's standing next to three werewolves with very good hearing.

Out of nowhere, I hear a glass shatter and when I turn around there are hundreds of pieces of broken glass next to Nate. The waiter comes over and cleans what appears to be a cup of water.

The rest of the night passes between Nicholas dropping hints at me, seeing too much of my cleavage, and telling me about his life with virtually no time for me to talk.

Plus Nate snarling and making comments about my past, and how much we know each other, implying that he's obviously much more aware of our conversation than he should be.

My brothers eat everything in front of them in silence, looking from one side of the table to the other as if watching a game of ping pong.

The torture ends, and I don't even ask for dessert, I just want to go home. When Nicholas drops me off, he glances at me with a seductive look.

"I've had a rather strange, but very interesting night "He says and leans in for a kiss, pulling me close, taking my arms and running his hand down my bare back.

It is a kiss that is not sweet, but quite possessive. He has never kissed me like this before. I hear a commotion in the distance, but I continue the kiss, pulling away when I get the impression that he wants something more. I said good bay and go to my place.

I slam the door and sit on the couch, angrily waiting for my brothers to arrive. The poor twins come in with their heads down, knowing what they're in for.

"Can you explain to me...what the hell was that?" I say bursting out.

"I work my ass off every day! I'm just asking for a moment of peace and have some fun! I specifically told you to stay here! And what do I get?"

"That dumb and dumber went to the restaurant, right where I was going with my date and also with their nasty alpha of all people!" I yell and they look really remorseful.

"Sorry, we... " Luke says and goes silent.

"You what? Ah?" I ask and hear another voice.

"It was me... it was my fault."
