

Epilogue

It had been three arduous months since Kurt had passed away. It had been three months since he had passed away.

It has been three months since she was crowned the queen of the vampires, and it has been three months since she took over as the new alpha of her pack.

Bella looked at her expanding belly in the mirror.

She broke into a sweet smile as she realized that she was carrying a young boy inside of her.

Since these past few months, a lot had changed; she had gone from being the queen of the vampires to being the alpha of the pack. She closed her eyes softly for a while and reflected on all of the new experiences she had had.

Even though it was a challenging job, her partner was there to help guide her through every step of the way.

She decided to call her pack the Blue Moon pack after she made the change.

"You've got me on your mind."

Blade asked as he gently kissed her on the neck while slowly wrapping his hands around her waist.

"HmMMM, you arrived already, that was a lot faster than I anticipated."

Bella said as she placed her entire body on top of his.

She took a deep breath in of his wonderful aroma as she slowly approached him.

"Why don't I come back earlier if I have a beautiful wife and a beautiful companion? During the entire time we were at the conference meeting, I could not stop thinking about how much I missed you."

Blade remarked as he hurriedly entered their quarters, carrying her wedding attire in his arms.

"Just so you know, I'm capable of walking on my own."

Bella said as she continued to look at him with an enormous grin on her face.

"I know, but I feel honored to have you by my side and I don't want to stress you any further," the speaker said. "I don't want to stress you any further."

Blade said, staring at her tenderly.

He placed her carefully on the bed as she guffawed loudly, and then he watched her.

"So, how are things going for you? Have you received any word from my sister Lara recently?"

After the decisive battle, Bella asked, "Does anyone know when Lara escaped from the party?" She had no intention of killing Lara because she knew that if she kept her alive, she would have someone from her pack who was close to her family.

"There has been no word about her recently, so she must have made her way to territories inhabited by humans, where she may now be hiding out among them. Your forgiveness is not warranted, my love; she is not worth it."

Blade remarked as she slowly nodded her head while he watched her.

"I just got a message from Carson saying that your pack is ready and waiting for you to arrive. It is fortunate that my pack and mine are connected to one another as one unit."

Bella gave a small breath as she realized that she wasn't used to having the responsibilities of both an alpha and a queen at the same time. Blade continued.

"Shall we then proceed?"

Bella said, and Blade walked after her while slowly nodding his head. He watched her every step as he followed her.

In the large meeting hall that was full of werewolves who were starting to get used to the idea of having a female as their alpha.

The members of the pack were muttering among themselves as they realized that this was going to be the first time in history that there was going to be a woman as alpha and not just a woman. This woman was the mate of their feared adversary who had unexpectedly become their friends.

"Everyone, be quiet; the alpha of the blue moon pack is currently observing you, and he expects you to obey."

A voice spoke up, cutting through the mutterings of the other members of the pack.

She wasn't just an alpha, she was the mother of the pack, and her experiences in the past have made her stronger than anyone else. Bella smiled softly and nodded.

"Over the course of the past few months, everyone is still adjusting to the fact that I am the alpha, particularly with regard to the fact that I am a woman. But what happened to the alphas that came before, they stole the title, and they snatched the title away from my alpha, who had given his traitor his name. I wished that things weren't going to end this way for alpha Vincent and his father, alpha Lucas, but karma has a way of always finding a way to reciprocate its evil. I wished things weren't going to end this way. They both met an unjust end in their lives. The desire for power that was exhibited by Kira resulted in the loss of an innocent fetus that belonged to Ronald. As a result, I made Ronald the beta; however, the fact that he is the beta does not signify anything because it will not bring his baby back, but he did assist in the disclosure of some vital secrets."

As Bella watched, she could see that her packs were concentrating their attention on her.

"Before reaching alpha, this pack was undeniably one of the best in the area. After taking control, Vincent appointed his son as the new alpha. He was responsible for a great deal of suffering, particularly among the weaker members of society; he forced them to work in mines deep underground and in the coals while the powerful grew ever more powerful.

She looked down at her stomach and touched it once. A light squeeze from Blade was all the support she ever needed. She breathed in the fresh air, which never smelled like violence or tribulation. Bella said with a little smile appearing on her face. She looked down at her stomach. She touched it once.

"Using the authority that has been granted to me, I hereby decree that there will be no more werewolves employed in the mines. A weak werewolf has the same rights as other werewolves, including the right to live a normal life and the right to be free from being treated like trash, dirt, and unwanted. If any of you are found to be bullying or making life difficult for any human, werewolf, or vampire of any kind, you will suffer the consequences of disobeying the law. I will personally see to it that your head is severed from your body, and the remains of your body will be fed to the vulture."

According to Bella, the impact of her words helped her become more courageous and strong.

"The mines are going to be split up among all of the members of the pack, and everyone is going to till according to their own preferences. The person who worked the land in the mine is the owner of any resources that are discovered there. Because I won't tolerate any room for violence, this new rule should prevent any instances of physical conflict from occurring. Bring whatever issue you're dealing with to me, and I'll help you find a peaceful solution. I have faith that you will comprehend me, and rest assured that you will be safe under my protection; together, we will coexist peacefully with the vampires, just as the vampires will coexist peacefully with the werewolves. It is an honor and a privilege to hold the position of alpha in this pack."

Bella said this as she watched as they all slowly nodded their heads and for a moment, they remained silent, it seemed as if everyone was going through her words, slowly a clap was heard, then another, and another, and slowly it turned into very loud claps. Bella said this as she watched as they all went through her words.

They were making significant progress toward becoming a new pack, and the hall resounded with cheers, claps, and screams of joy and happiness from those present.

When Bella turned to look up at her mate, she felt her eyes swell up with an undying love, the goddess knew everything, the goddess knew she was going to have a happy ending, and that was all that mattered, nothing else mattered. Bella smiled down at the happiness she saw, and when she turned to look up at her mate, she felt her eyes swell up with undying love.

She quickly gave Blade a hug, and he encircled her with his arms in a gentle manner. 1

"I love you so much, my sweet amour. You are doing so well, and you will continue to do so well. You will be the best queen to the vampires, and you will be the best alpha to the werewolves."

Blade said that the noise seems to be fading away slowly and quietly, and then they left the hall. Everything was set up appropriately, and things would have ended well only if Kurt, his brother, hadn't left. Things were set up accordingly.

"Fool."

Blade forgot that they were still together and leaned in close to whisper something into Bella's ear.

"What....."

She said that she heard him and she knew what he was thinking; her mate hasn't gotten used to the idea of not seeing his brother again. Bella said that she heard him and she knew what he was thinking.

"Nothing, Mon amour, I will be back in some minutes, head to our chamber, I got a surprise for you," he said, "just thinking about brother."

Blade whispered to her as he tenderly kissed her on the lips, "fuck." He knew he could never have enough of her, so he intended to savor every moment he spent with her throughout the night. Blade said.

When Bella was walking through the dim hallway, she felt a movement sped right through her face. She abruptly stopped walking because she was now a vampire and could see movements quickly. Again, the flashing speed of a human body flashed through her eyes, indicating that the person was definitely fast and that he or she was not an ordinary being.

Bella stopped moving because the smell, the scent that came after the speed was recognizable, and the smell could only have come from one person.....

"Kurt....."

Bella mumbled something quickly before turning around and saying that this wasn't real, that Kurt had passed away, and that she had seen his body when he was laid to rest.

It's possible that this was all a dream; perhaps her preoccupation with Kurt caused her to lose touch with her senses.

"Bella....."

In the dim hallway, she heard a voice say....., causing her to completely freeze.....
